HARDING WILL SEEK TREATY REVISION, SAYS WICKERSHAM

Predicts It After Talk with Candidate, Who Does Not 'Wholly Reject' League.

COUNTS ON ALLIES' CONSENT

Harding's First Work as President Must Be 'to Secure Modifications' to Suit America.

THINKS LEAGUE NECESSARY

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Sept. 5.—George W. Wickersham, Attorney General under Taft, had a conference with Senator Harding this afternoon, after which he issued a statement to the effect that the Senator, if elected President, would make it the first effort of his administration to "secure an agreement with the parties to the Treaty of Versailles for its modification, so as to remove the objections of the American Government."

While announcing himself in "full accord" with Senator Harding's foreign policies, Mr. Wickersham has not abandoned his allegiance to the League of Nations. He deplores its having been made a political issue, and would be satisfied if the treaty could be ratified as written, with amendments thereafter suitable to the national interest.

Neither has Senator Harding wholly rejected the League, Mr. Wickersham declared. He says he finds that the Senator recognizes that its unobjectionable features "must be preserved" if the covenant has become entwined with the peace of Europe.

Sure the League will be Adopted.

"When President, Harding, working in accord with a Republican Congress, takes up the work of placing upon a firm and sure foundation the relations of this country to the other nations of the world, I am confident that the logic of accomplished facts will lead to the adoption of the League, so modified as to remove all just doubts as to its undue effect upon American rights and interests," Mr. Wickersham said.

"The first effort of his Administration obviously must be to secure an agreement with the parties to the Treaty of Versailles for its modification. No one will dispute Senator Harding's insistence that the United States may take the lead in revision, amendment or reconstruction and be able to count on the cordial co-operation of all nations concerned."

Mr. Wickersham's statement was not prepared until after a conference with the candidate, and it was issued to the press through the Harding campaign headquarters. It reads:

"At Senator Harding's invitation I have come to Marion to discuss with him various issues of the campaign. As a lifelong Republican, I am deeply interested in the success of the national Republican ticket. I believe the Democratic Administration conducted the war with unexampled partisanship, and that it has been recklessly extravagant to a degree unparalleled in the history of this nation. These facts, apart from any others, I believe account for the determination by the people to restore the conduct of the Government to the Republican Party. I share with Senator Harding in the belief that under Mr. Wilson the Executive authority has been exaggerated far beyond its proper constitutional limits, and that one of the first duties of a Republican Administration will be to restore the constitutional balance of our Government.

"I deplore the fact that the League of Nations should have been made to any degree a political issue in this campaign. That it is so, must be distinctly attributed to the stubborn unwillingness of President Wilson to recognize the constitutional power of the Senate as part of the treaty-making power, or to assent to any modification by it of the treaty as formulated in Paris.

"I earnestly favor the League of Nations. I recognize the imperfections in the Paris covenant. Yet I should have been satisfied to see it ratified as written, believing that the power of amendment was ample to enable it to be moulded as our national interests might make necessary. I think the President sacrificed the interests of the country when he refused to accept the amendments adopted by the Senate, or seriously to endeavor to frame amendments to meet the Senatorial objections.

"I am in full accord with what Senator Harding said in his address of Aug. 28, when he expressed his belief in a society or association of league of nations, animated by considerations of right and justice, instead of might and self-interest, and not merely proclaimed as an agency in pursuit of peace, but so organized and so participated in so as to make the actual attainment of peace a reasonable possibility.

"In common with Senator Harding, such an association I favor with all my heart, and I would make no fine distinction as to whom credit is due. Let it be an association, a society or a league, or what not, our concern is solely with the substance not the form thereof.

Says Harding Doesn't Reject League.

"Senator Harding does not wholly

Aim to Fight League By Newspaper in Geneva

GENEVA, Sept. 5.—A new journal, with a policy of open opposition to the League of Nations, will attempt publication in Geneva in November next when the first meeting of the League is to be held here.

The projected publication is sponsored by intellectuals of various countries who are against the Treaty of Versailles. Doubt is expressed, however, if the local authorities will permit the publication to appear.

COX GIVES LEADS FOR FUND INQUIRY

Charges That the Republicans Fixed $80,000 Levy for Chicago Coal Dealers Last Summer.

NAMES SEVEN MEN PRESENT

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Governor Cox spent today in Chicago, coming here from Milwaukee. He discussed the situation in Illinois with more than a hundred State leaders and again interested himself in the Senate Committee's investigation of Republican campaign funds. He later gave out a statement intended to give a lead to the committee, in which he charged that attempts had been made to levy a quota of $80,000 on the coal dealers of Chicago.

"I would like to ask Mr. Hays," said the Governor's statement, "if he knows anything about a quota or assessment on the coal men of Chicago for $80,000 for the Republican campaign fund. I would like to ask him if he knows anything about a meeting held for the purpose on the ninth floor of the Auditorium Hotel early in the Summer, where Mr. J. K. Deering announced the details of the quota. If he doesn't remember Mr. Deering, perhaps his memory might be refreshed by Mr. C. M. Moderwell, or Mr. George M. Cartor, or Mr. E. E. Fyke, or Mr. Robert H. Zoller, or Mr. James Forrester, or Mr. Rice Miller.

"There were some Democrats present at this coal meeting who demurred at the action being taken. But the meeting was held and the assessment made. This was just one group in Chicago which was assessed, and I thought as I was passing through Chicago I would leave this little lead behind me for the committee. I thought Mr. Hays might be interested in it."

Discussing his statement, Governor Cox said that Forrester lives at Duquoin, Ill., and Miller at Hillsboro, Ill.

"Was there a representative of the Republican National Committee present at the meeting?" Mr. Cox was asked.

"The meeting was held and the funds were certainly not asked for the City Council," was the reply.

Denies Fyke Gave Information.

E. E. Fyke, one of the men named by the Governor as having been present at the meeting at which the "quota" for the coal men was fixed, was said to be among those who called on him today. Mr. Fyke was a delegate to the Democratic Convention which nominated the Governor.

Governor Cox had a long conference with Edmond H. Moore, former National Committeeman of Ohio, who will be the personal representative of the Governor at the future meetings of the Senate Committee. Following the conference Mr. Moore left for Michigan. The Governor was asked about this trip and said he knew nothing about what Moore was doing.

"But," he added, "there is plenty to find out in Michigan, just as there is in other parts of the country. We heard of some of the quotas in Michigan towns when we were campaigning there the other day.

"I have only been one day in the State," he said, "but that was long enough to find out that there were township 'quotas' there. In one township—Seneca, I think—the quota for the Republican campaign fund was $310. There is plenty to be found in Michigan if any one is desirous to find. And in Wisconsin I learned that a Republican newspaper in Oshkosh had admitted that the 'quota' which I had mentioned for that city was correct. There is plenty to be found in Michigan and Wisconsin, as there is everywhere."

Cox Helps Woman and Baby.

Governor Cox arrived at the Congress Hotel at noon. He walked from the Union Station to the hotel. When he was at Adams and Franklin Streets a woman slipped on the pavement. She had a baby in her arms and both fell. The Governor ran to her side, helped to brush the mud from her clothes and picked up the baby.

The Governor was in a happy frame of mind today. When he got to Chicago he was greeted by an enthusiastic group of Illinois leaders who told him there had been a very strong reaction in his favor since he started his campaign and that they were putting forth every effort to win the State in the national election. He was told that the Republicans of Illinois were no longer claiming that it was a "cinch" and were admitting that by election day they looked forward to a "fifty-fifty" situation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Sept. 5.—A gathering here today of the executives of all the working men's organizations in Italy, principal among which is the Italian Labor Confederation, numbering 2,500,000 adherents, marks the culminating phase of the metallurgical agitation.

Labriola, the Socialist Minister of Labor, has suggested to the Premier the appointment of a technical commission in which the Government as well as the parties in conflict shall be represented, but such a step has been thwarted through the blunt refusal of the employers to participate unless and until their factories, which practically throughout the length and breadth of the country are occupied by the employes, have been evacuated.

The Milan council, which is likely to last for several days and in which representatives of the Nationalist Socialist Party are also taking part, holds out some hope of a peaceful settlement provided the Government remains steadfast to its present attitude of strict neutrality and the masters lose no time in putting forward some practical proposal.

In the event of the contrary happening the trade unions threaten to extend the order for peremptory seizure to industrial establishments of every description all over the kingdom. Indeed the Corriere della Sera affirms that not only have explicit written instructions in this sense been issued by the Labor Chamber to its local fiduciaries in the provinces but also urgent recommendations for the formation of military companies inside the factories under command of corporals and sub-officers who held similar rank during the war.

As things are, rigid militaristic rule already prevails in the workshops. The men are formidably armed, even with machine guns and armored tanks. The entrances are defended by massive barricades of metal and the boundaries with a stout network of barbed wire entanglements. Sentinels and patrols carry rifles and frequently in the stillness of the night powerful sirens in one or other of the big foundries on the outskirts are heard resounding over Milan, rousing the workmen with a false alarm to test the spirit of discipline.

Last night it was supposed that a police squad which happened to be passing by the Borletti Works wished to intrude. Besides firing on the police, the workmen directed on them streams of boiling water pumped from hydrants.

Nevertheless, when the passionate nature of the agitation and its vast extension are taken into account, it must be said that the leaders hitherto have proved surprisingly successful in restraining the rank and file from tragic excesses.

No weekly wages were paid anywhere yesterday. Beyond a categorical refusal to pay for the period of invasion the owners decline all liability for accidents or for contracts undertaken, for goods ordered or for work done without instructions.

Factories where raw material is running short are being supplied from others stored with ampler reserves, but the workmen are clamoring for the seizure of all business engaged in furnishing raw materials.

Want to Try Co-operative Plan.

ROME, Sept. 5.—Italian union labor and the National Syndicate of Co-operatives propose to run the seized ironworks on co-operative principles, but the co-operative experments made so far in Italy—generally agricultural—have not been such a success as to encourage the belief that the system could be undertaken in great industrial businesses without the same defects and drawbacks which the workers condemn in individualist management.

Meanwhile the employers declare themselves ready to examine the demands of the labor organizations if the workers will abandon the present abnormal state of affairs. However, it remains to be seen whether the workers, having with such facility obtained a position of mastery, would be willing even if their unions ordained it to give up the factories and renounce the golden dreams of power and monetary advantage which they have been encouraged to form.

In fact, at Turin a notice has been posted saying that in case of intervention by the defenders of the bourgeoise—that is to say the army—the workers will destroy the factories entirely.

Meanwhile the nation and Government look on aghast, the latter vainly seeking means calculated to bring about peace

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—It is reported here tonight that Federal officials working under the direction of Internal Revenue Commissioner Williams, seized $4,900,000 paid over by the Harriman interests to the Kerr Navigation Corporation, when the money was turned over a few days ago at the Chase National Bank of New York.

The transaction is veiled in mystery. Internal Revenue Commissioner Williams tonight declined to discuss the report, which has been current here for several days. He refused to confirm or deny the rumor.

According to the report this money, representing the purchase of 49,000 shares of the Kerr Navigation Company's stock, was turned over in cash by the purchasers at the Chase Bank and the money was immediately seized by the Federal authorities. The money, it is said, was deposited in a safety vault of the Equitable Trust Company, where it will be held, it is said, until the affair has been adjusted.

The money was paid to H. Farquhar Kerr, President, and A. C. Clegg, Vice President of the corporation, for the 49,000 shares owned by them in the Kerr Navigation Company, or their agents, according to the report.

Federal officials who have been investigating the case say that the stock was actually worth $10 a share and that their profits therefore were $90 a share. According to the rumor it was feared by the authorities that inasmuch as the arrangement of the sale was to be cash in large denominations, an attempt would be made to evade the payment of the excess profits taxes, which probably caused the seizure.

Kerr and Clegg are identified with the American Ship & Commerce Corporation, which has made a deal with the Hamburg-American Line. The corporation is a holding company, which controls the William Cramp & Sons Shipbuilding Company and the Kerr Navigation Corporation of New York. W. Averell Harriman is President of the concern, having recently succeeded General Goethals, and Kermit Roosevelt is Secretary.

Kerr and Clegg are Englishmen, who formed the Kerr Navigation Company early in 1917. It is chartered under the laws of Delaware, with a capital of $1,500,000.

MOTHER SURE SHE'D KNOW STOLEN BABY

Mrs. Coughlin Feels That It Would Be Impossible for Her to Mistake Him.

Special to The New York Times.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Sept. 5.—Mrs. George H. Coughlin, whose search for her baby boy, Blakely, thirteen months old, when he was snatched from his crib last June 2 by a kidnapper, has stirred the sympathy of the country, was sitting on a bench under an arbor at the entrance of her Summer home on the outskirts of this city late this afternoon.

Her other two sons, David, 8, and McLean, 5—blond and blue of eye as she—were romping on the grass in the yard. Their laughter sounded as carefree as the wind. Any casual observer might have been forgiven for the belief that here was as happy and as ideally situated a little family as might be found in a long search over the sun-warmed green countryside.

But Mrs. Coughlin's figure tensed as the automobile bearing a NEW YORK TIMES reporter stepped in the driveway. And she remained motionless, her right arm held rigid and at an awkward angle in front of her as the stranger walked toward her. At any time a stranger may bring either the word that Mrs. Coughlin dreads to hear—that her baby is dead—or the message that she is longing for—that he is alive and well and on his way back to her arms.

She only relaxed when the newspaper man stated his identity and his errand. She smiled rather wanly, and said:

Boy Scouts Hunt for Baby.

"There is nothing new at all. There is nothing we know that hasn't been printed over and over. I am afraid you have had your journey for nothing. The only thing I might tell you is that the Boy Scouts now are out there (she nodded toward the rolling country round about) making a thorough search. Everything has been searched so thoroughly. But they believe that it is impossible to make sure (she paused for an instance) that his body is not lying somewhere concealed and neglected."

She turned her head a trifle, revealing a trace of gray in thick blonde hair. Seeing it, and contrasting it with the youthful comeliness of her features, one who had not seen her face might wonder if it had not silvered since June 2.

"There was a story in the newspapers this morning," she was told "that you and Mr. Coughlin had gone to Hammonton, N. J., to see a baby there, that you were undecided for a long time as to whether or not that baby was yours, and that even now your husband is in doubt."

She shook her head decidedly.

"No," she said, "that is not true. I knew instantly that that baby at Hammonton was not mine. My baby would be fifteen months old now. That Hammonton baby was at least three or four months older than that. Besides, the color of my baby's eyes could not have changed, which would have had to be necessary. My husband did not hesitate either. Here he comes now."

Mr. Coughlin, a tall, slim, quiet man with brown hair also slightly touched with gray and with straight-looking blue eyes, came across the lawn.

"There is no question about that baby in Hammonton," he said. "We were there last Friday. The Chief of Police was sure that he had found our baby. He was very kind, as we have found everybody in our trouble. He came here for us. But the baby wasn't ours."

Nothing could shake the certainty of Mr. and Mrs. Coughlin on this point. They were told that Chief of Police Harry P. Mottola of Hammonton and Mrs. Walter Bakely, in whose care the baby was left, felt sure that the baby was theirs.

"I would know my own baby," Mrs. Coughlin said.

"You can't fool a mother," said Mr. Coughlin.

PREMIER REFUSES HYLAN'S APPEAL FOR CORK MAYOR

Politely, but Firmly, Asserts That He Cannot Interfere with Course of Justice.

BONAR LAW ANSWERS LABOR

CALLS SENTENCE LENIENT

MacSwiney Could Have Been Shot, on the Evidence, He Asserts—Lord Mayor's State Unchanged.

LUCERNE, Sept. 5 (Associated Press).—Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain has replied in the negative to the message of Mayor Hylan of New York City, which urged the Premier to release Mayor MacSwiney of Cork from prison.

The Premier in his reply, dispatched yesterday, stated politely but firmly that he could not interfere with the course of justice and law.

Bonar Law Refuses Labor's Plea.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Mrs. MacSwiney, who was with her husband at Brixton Jail all afternoon, appeared much agitated when she left the prison this evening. She was not inclined to talk to waiting reporters, but said her husband was "dying fast."

Bonar Law issued today a statement setting forth the Government attitude toward the Lord Mayor which shows that the Government is firm in its determination not to release him. The statement is an official reply to the Labor Party's appeal for his release. It reads:

"The Lord Mayor was one of the leaders of the Irish Republican army, which has declared itself to be at war with the forces of the Crown, and according to his own written word, in one of the seditious documents for the possession of which he was convicted, he and his followers were determined to pursue their end, asking for no mercy, and making no compromise.

"He was arrested while actively conducting the affairs of a rebel organization under cover of a Mayoral court. Had he been taken at his word and dealt with as an avowed rebel, according to the universal practice of civilized nations he would, having regard to the circumstances of his capture, have been liable immediately to be shot. Instead, he was tried by a legally constituted tribunal, sentenced to a moderate term of imprisonment, and given at once all the privileges of a political prisoner.

"From the moment of his arrest he sought to defeat the ends of justice and to reduce the forces of the Crown to impotence by refusing food, no doubt in the belief that that course would lead to his speedy release.

"It is the clear duty of the Government not only to take every step possible to suppress disorder in Ireland, but also to protect those brave men who, in carrying out their duties as servants of the Crown, are in daily peril of their lives.

"Release Would Betray Loyal Officers"

"To release prisoners who, like the Lord Mayor, have been guilty of complicity in a movement which uses as one of its main instruments assassinations and outrage would be nothing short of betrayal of those loyal officers on whose devotion to duty the fabric of social order in Ireland rests. Since the arrest of the Lord Mayor fifteen officers have been brutally and treacherously done to death without even a chance of defending themselves. Surely the sympathy which has been given in such full measure to the Lord Mayor, whose condition has been brought about by his own deliberate act, is due rather to the bereaved widows and families of the murdered Irish policemen.

"The Government fully realizes how large a part sentiment plays in all human affairs, and if it were possible they would gladly have taken the attitude of the English King who said of an opponent, 'He is determined to make himself a martyr, and I am equally determined to prevent it.' Greatly as the Government sympathizes with those who desire to see peace and order restored in Ireland, they cannot take a course which, as the Prime Minister has said, would inevitably lead to a complete breakdown of the whole machinery of law and government. The policy of the Government has been made clear from the outset, and if the Lord Mayor dies in prison the responsibility will rest in some degree upon those who by their repeated appeals have encouraged the belief that the Government would prove insincere in their determination, and the hope that notwithstanding all declarations to the contrary his misguided action would lead eventually to his release."

Father Dominic, private chaplain to the Mayor, administered the sacrament this morning. A mass for the release or happy death of the prisoner was said in the Roman Catholic church in Maiden Lane.

LONDON, Sept. 5 (Associated Press).—Father Dominic left Mayor MacSwiney at 9 o'clock tonight. He reported that the Mayor had occasional fits of dizziness, but had not lost consciousness.

Duke of Wellington's Tenants in Spain Fight Evictions

Six persons were killed and thirteen injured yesterday in automobile accidents in the city and vicinity, the death list including two killed and seven injured in the wreck of a heavy commercial truck called into use in Brooklyn because of the strike on the B. R. T. lines. Two of the dead were eight-year-old boys, and one of the injured men was run down twice—the second time as he was leaving the physician's office where he had gone for treatment of the injuries received when he was run down the first time.

Handling the overflow of passengers from the crippled B. R. T. lines, a big commercial truck swung over toward Pilling Street from Broadway. At the wheel was Altro Rubin of 3,927 Industrial Avenue, Flint, Mich., who had come East to share in the B. R. T. bus harvest. Twenty passengers were riding in the truck. Just as Rubin was about to turn the Pilling Street corner another car swept up Broadway.

A quick snatch at the wheel and Rubin's car dashed for the sidewalk. The Michigan chauffeur stepped on his brakes, but not in time. The heavy truck crashed through the plate glass of John Kraneer's store at 1,785 Broadway. It ground its way across the shop and smashed its way out through the Pilling Street wall. At the curb hundreds just coming down the steps of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, opposite, saw the truck halt. Nine of the passengers had failed to make the trip safely. Two men, their heads almost cut off, were dead; seven others were bleeding from cuts.

GOLDSTEIN, PHILIP, 262 South First Street, Brooklyn.
STROHEN, HYMAN, 304 Stanhope Street, Brooklyn.

Rubin was arrested on a technical charge of homicide. He was also charged with operation of a motor vehicle without a license. According to the police the bus bore only the Michigan number tag.

Alderman Frank Cunningham of the Thirty-seventh District, chairman of the Finance Committee, who lives at 237 Baltic Street, Brooklyn, is in St. John's Hospital, suffering from a fractured right leg and cuts on face and body received in an automobile collision at Atlantic Avenue and Schenectady Avenue, Brooklyn, last night. James Raleigh of 57 Atlantic Avenue, who was in the car with Cunningham, also is in the hospital with a fractured right collarbone and cuts on the head. Jack Marder of 346 Sutter Avenue, driver of the automobile which hit Cunningham's car, was arrested at the Atlantic Avenue police station charged with felonious assault. Marder and two friends were also injured.

Driving his automobile at high rate of speed along the Lincoln Highway in New Jersey yesterday, Ellsworth Terrill of 65 Union Street, Rahway, lost control of the car and it crashed into a telegraph pole with such velocity that the pole was snapped off. Harry A. Davies of Roseville, N. J., and Frank Shanley of 150 Clinton Street, Brooklyn, were fatally injured, both dying in an ambulance on the way to the Rahway Hospital. Terrill himself was seriously injured, as was his brother, Walter T. Terrill, and Aaron Smith of 5 Union Street, Rahway.

Terrill served in the war in the 78th Division and won the Distinguished Service Cross and the Croix de Guerre for repulsing a raid upon the American trenches. In this encounter Terrill was cited for catching enemy bombs and throwing them back with his left hand after his right had been mangled. Surgeons who examined his wounded hand said Terrill seemed to have recovered full use of his hand and that inability to use the member could not have been responsible for the accident.

The two 8-year-old boys who died in hospitals from fractured skulls were Joseph Bazat of 323 East Seventy-first Street and Louis Phillips of 37 Crosby

WILL MEET HYLAN TODAY

Asks the Press and Public to Join with Him in Bringing Peace.

STRIKERS HELD FOR MURDER

William D. Mahon, International President of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, arrived here yesterday and assumed charge of the strikers' fight against the B. R. T.

In a statement issued at his headquarters, Mahon deplored the criticism which had been leveled at Federal Judge Julius M. Mayer, and, disclosing a conciliatory attitude, said he would visit Mayor Hylan this morning in an effort to effect a peaceful settlement of the strike, "an honorable and satisfactory adjustment," as he phrased it.

The statement of the union leader was as follows:

"My coming to New York at this time is to see if it not possible to bring together the contending forces and secure a settlement of the strike now in force upon the Brooklyn Rapid Transit lines. It was impossible for me to reach this situation sooner on account of the meeting of the General Executive Board of our association and the work it placed in my hands.

"This I sincerely regret, as it is most difficult for one to asume charge of a matter of this kind, especially after much bitterness has been engendered by actions and words spoken by those who do not understand the circumstances or represent the policies of our association. But the creation of this unpleasant condition was not with my consent or of my making.

"Therefore it is my hope that after the matter has been fully gone over we may be able to reach an honorable and satisfactory adjustment.

"I am advised that the railway company is represented by Judge Julius M. Mayer and Receiver Lindley M. Garrison. They are both broadminded and men of large affairs.

"Then I am advised that Governor Smith and Mayor Hylan have been working hard to bring about an honorable adjustment. It seems to me that with all these big public spirited men we ought to be able to gain a speedy settlement of this unpleasant affair.

"So far as the amalgamated association is concerned we only want justice and a fair deal.

Appreciates Judge Mayer's Position.

"We are not here to vilify Judge Mayer or to abuse the Receiver, the authorities or the newspapers. I fully appreciate Judge Mayer's position. He represents the court, which always has my respect. My years of experience with street railway affairs have taught me to know of the many difficulties and trying positions that both the court and the Receiver must face in handling roads under such circumstances.

"The court necessarily must represent all parties and you can rest assured that those who have criticised the court in this case were not speaking for me or the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes.

"In such negotiations, if any, that will take place I shall personally represent the Amalgamated Association and its policy.

"This is an important state of affairs. Eleven thousand men and their families are affected, the great riding public is discommoded and inconvenienced, and the company's cars are practically at a standstill.

"It is no time to permit anything foreign to the issue at stake to interfere with a just and speedy settlement, and I take this means of appealing to the court, the receiver, the press and the public to unite in bringing the interested parties together and establishing permanent peace.

"It is my intention to call tomorrow on Mayor Hylan and take up the work through him with the hope of bringing about a settlement as above suggested."

Four Strikers Arrested.

Four striking B. R. T. guards were arrested yesterday charged with the killing of Frederick Friedman, a Sea Beach passenger, who was struck by a stone and who died Saturday night in Kings County Hospital from a fractured skull. The second victim of the strikers' attack, which took place last Tuesday night, Motorman George W. Fairbanks, was reported dying last night in the same institution.

Other developments in the strike situation were the death of two persons and injuries to seven others when a bus, carrying B. R. T. overflow, crashed into a store window, and further gains in all types of B. R. T. service.

The arrest of the four men by a squad of detectives operating in command of Acting Captain John McCloskey of the Tenth Inspection District resulted from information supplied to the police by Robert Wilkie, a private detective employed by the Brooklyn transit system. According to the police, Wilkie was with a gang of twelve men who awaited the passage of trains last Tuesday night through the Sixty-second Street cut of the Sea Beach line, between Fort Hamilton and New Utrecht stations. The first train to appear was that in charge of Fairbanks. A shower of stones came from the right hand side of the cut. A stone weighing several pounds hit Fairbanks and he dropped unconscious in the motorman's box. Automatic devices halted the train, preventing it from "wild-catting."

Second Train Attacked.

Ten minutes later, a short distance down the line, a second train was volleyed. This time, Friedman, only 17 years old and on his way home from work, was struck. Immediately after the young man's injury a strong detail of detectives was assigned to look for the stone throwers. His death on Saturday redoubled the police efforts.

The police learned of Wilkie's information and, with the private detective accompanying them, they journeyed late yesterday to the scene of the attack.

At 1,202 Sixtieth Street the detectives arrested Frank Morzano, twenty-three months in the B. R. T. employ; Silvio Orsing, three years a Brooklyn guard, and James Delapapio, ten months in the company's service. At 1,330 Sixty-fourth Street, Michael De Coluccio, nineteen months a B. R. T. guard, was put under arrest. All were charged with homicide and, in addition, a charge of violation of the Sullivan law was filed against Orsing. The men will be arraigned this morning.

The police said last night that Wilkie had reported the names of other members of the gang and that they expected to round up the entire band before morning. They alleged that Delapapio had confessed that he had been in the neighborhood just before the attack was made, and that his statement had implicated De Coluccio as also there. The police said he was silent as to the two others arrested.

"A fairly normal Sunday service" on B. R. T. lines was indicated by the reports issued by the Public Service Commission. During the afternoon 157 subway and elevated trains, made up of 500 cars, were in operation, the commission reported. The Sea Beach line, which had been closed, except for a few hours, since the beginning of the strike, was operated on something like normal schedules for the first time. Some of the trains were running through to Coney Island, but most of them turned back at stations nearer to the heart of Brooklyn. On the surface lines, twenty-seven of which were in service, 490 cars was the peak of the operation.

Five hundred automobile buses will be put into operation today by the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, according to William Reilly, a member of the Strike Committee, who addressed 3,500 strikers at their meeting in Palm Garden, Wilson and Greene Avenues, Brooklyn. The buses, he said, would follow the routes of the more patronized trolley lines and will be manned by strikers, who need money to keep their families together. The fare will be 5 cents. The hours of operation will be from 5 A. M. to 10 A. M. and from 4 P. M. to 8 P. M.

B. R. T. SERVICE NEAR NORMAL.

The B. R. T. officials announced last night that the company had managed to give normal Sunday service on all its elevated and subway lines except the routes serving Coney Island, on which the normal Sunday service is larger than on week days. The same service was promised for today's holiday crowds. The hourly schedule was as follows:

Twenty-seven of the borough's seventy-seven surface lines were in operation. All cars were withdrawn from service early in the evening except the Williamsburg Bridge locals, which continued operation up to midnight. Today's schedule will be identical with yesterday.

CAR STRIKE HURTS BEACHES.

Reported to Have Already Cost Coney Business Men $1,000,000.

The strike dealt another hard blow yesterday at Coney Island and the other beaches, for, despite better train service, only a scant 100,000 were at Coney, and Rockaway had the smallest crowd in many moons.

The absence of big holiday throngs yesterday and a week ago has cost Coney business men something like $1,000,000, it was said. The annual Mardi Gras, scheduled to begin Sept. 13 and end Sept. 19, will be held as usual, it was said last night, although reports had been current that the event would be called off if the strike were in progress next week.

During the day the Brighton and Culver lines operated to the island, while the Smith Street surface cars during the daylight carried many. At 5 o'clock the Culver trains and the trolley cars were withdrawn, and the thousands had to depend on the Brighton line and the half-hourly schedule of the Iron Steamboat Company for transportation home.

Street. The boys were playing in the streets near their homes when run down.

Bernard Kapper, superintendent of the Samuel Sloan estate near Peekskill, N. Y., was run down and injured twice by an automobile yesterday. He was just leaving the office of Dr. Snowden after receiving medical attention for superficial injuries suffered by being run down by an automobile on the State Road, when he was run down a second time by an automobile driven by a man who gave the name of Joseph Schneider of 1,166 Eleventh Avenue. This time his injuries were more painful and he went back to the physician's office to have stitches taken in cuts in his scalp.

Other persons severely injured were Peyton Brown, 56 years old, of 11 Houston Street, Harrison, N. J.; Angelina Cucco, 6 years old, of 224 East 117th Street; Emanuel Morgenstein, 5 years old, of 199 East 152d Street; Arnold Redfield, 17 years old, of 500 East 163d Street; John Kyupin, 29 years old, of 142 East Third Street, and Andrew McGuiness, 50 years old, of Hartford, Conn., who was run down at Second Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street.

LABOR DAY TO MARK THE MARNE VICTORY

Allied Officials to be Guests at Lafayette-Marne Exercises at West Point.

In accordance with resolutions adopted by the American Federation of Labor, Lafayette-Marne Day will be celebrated today throughout the country in conjunction with the observance of labor's national holiday. Labor meetings will be held in various parts of the city, today, a parade will feature the observance in Brooklyn, and the principal ceremony in honor of Lafayette-Marne Day will be held at the United States Military Academy at West Point.

B. R. T. strikers, according to plans announced yesterday will have the position of honor in the Labor Day parade in Brooklyn this morning and a great throng is expected at the dual ceremony in Prospect Park. The police arrangements for the parade and the exercises to follow were completed last night, when several hundred additional policemen were assigned to posts in and about the park today.

The line will form at 9:30 o'clock, at Clinton and State Streets. The unions will first report to parade headquarters at Saengerbund Hall, Smith and Schermerhorn Streets. The line of march will be along Clinton Street to Joralemon Street to Boerum Place, to Schermerhorn Street, to Flatbush Avenue, through the arch, passing the reviewing stand at this point, thence along the east drive of the park to the music stand.

According to an announcement of the Central Labor Union last night the general program for the day will be the opening exercises at the music grove, a band concert, the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by the assembled audience, followed by speaking, with Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for Vice President; James O'Connell, President of the Metal Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, and Judge Jacob S. Strahl as the principal speakers.

A sporting program begins promptly at 2:30 o'clock. This includes running races, novelty races and other contests for men, women and boys.

Called Answer to Anti-Unionism.

"All local lodge secretaries are urged to give this important event the widest possible publicity, as the Central Labor Union and affiliated locals, together with the Metal Trades Department of the Navy Yard, have left no stone unturned to make this the largest demonstration and celebration of Labor Day as an answer to open shop and other union-baiting propaganda that is now being carried on," the Brooklyn Central Labor Union's announcement stated.

At the close of the exercises commemorating Labor Day there will be another parade to the statue of Lafayette at the Ninth Avenue entrance of the park, where other appropriate exercises will take place. The guests of the Central Labor Union will include the Mayor, Borough President Edward Reigelmann, William E. Kelly, P. J. Cleary, Frank X. Sullivan, Hugh Frayne, general organizer of the American Federation of Labor; Peter J. Brady, Lawrence T. Gresser, Judge Jacob Strahl and Congressman C. P. Caldwell, John McCrate, T. H. Cullen, J. P. Maher, W. F. Cleary, D. J. O'Connell and J. B. Johnston.

According to plans announced last week William D. Haywood, I. W. W. leader, will be the chief attraction at four mass meetings at which the radicals of the city will renew their propaganda for the release of prisoners. The speakers assisting Haywood will include Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, Isaac McBride, Max Eastman, Roger Baldwin, Dudley Field Malone, candidate for Governor on the Farmer-Labor ticket; A. L. Shiplacoff, Lucy Robins, Rose Pastor Stokes, Rabbi Judah L. Magnes and others.

The meetings will be held at the Labor Temple, Third Avenue and Eighty-fourth Street; Labor Temple, Second Avenue and Fourteenth Street; Park Circle, 110th Street and Fifth Avenue, and the Broadway Casino, Broadway and Sumner Avenue, Brooklyn. Radicals had planned to hold meetings in Union Square, but police permits could not be obtained.

Both the Park Department and the Police Department prohibited the Union Square rallies, it was learned. It was expected that at least 20,000 persons would attend the meetings addressed by speakers in various parts of the square. In the near future the American Civil Liberties Bureau, it was said, plans to test the Park Department's right to withdraw permits.

Hoover to Speak at West Point.

Herbert Hoover will be the principal speaker at the West Point observance of Lafayette Day, and the chief guest will be M. Jean Parmentier, a veteran of the Marne and head of the French Financial Commission now in this country. Representatives of the allied armies and navies, the French Chargé d'Affaires, and other officials of the allied countries will be present. The New York Lafayette Committee of nearly 500 members, under whose auspices the West Point ceremony was organized, have been invited to attend the ceremony as guests of General Douglas MacArthur, head of the Military Academy.

The American Legion, the Sons of the Revolution and the Society of the Cincinnati, which Lafayette helped to found, with the Daughters of the Revolution and the Daughters of the Cincinnati, all will be officially represented at West Point.

Special rail accommodations have been arranged for guests who will leave the Grand Central Terminal at 2 o'clock (standard time) in a special train. The ceremonies will begin promptly at 3:30 o'clock and will include a drill by the West Point Cadets.

ASKS STATE-OWNED BARGES

O'Malley Suggests New Plan to Cut Food Prices.

Commissioner of Public Markets Edwin J. O'Malley said last night that he expected to ask the support of Governor Smith for a plan he has for the State to own and operate boats on the Barge Canal, bringing about a more general use of the waterway and at the same time, he said, permitting the handling of food and other commodities between New York and up-State points at a much lower freight rate than at present. "We wouldn't have to worry over a 40 per cent. increase in freight rates with this plan in operation," he said.

The first shipment of apples from up-State dealers, in accordance with a plan worked out by Mr. O'Malley, will be received on Wednesday. Three carloads will make up the first shipment. This number will be increased daily, Mr. O'Malley said. The shipments will arrive over the New York Central at 130th Street and will be carted to a warehouse at 120th Street and Third Avenue, where they will be put in storage until they are disposed of. The apples are to be sold at a price that will enable the dealer to sell them to the consumer at 4 or 5 cents a pound, which is about half the price charged in most of the stores.

Mr. O'Malley will go to Syracuse today to attend a meeting tomorrow at the State Council of Farms and Markets.

WANTS INVESTIGATION OF SINN FEIN FUND HERE

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—Investigation of the $1,500,000 fund voted by the Dail Eireann, controlling body of the so-called "Irish Republic," to influence the American Presidential election has been demanded in a telegram to Senator Kenyon in Chicago from the Loyal Coalition in Boston. The demand sets forth that any attempt by "foreign money" to control American politics constitutes a most serious menace to the whole structure of American self-government.

"That the investigation by the committee of campaign funds, which are improper in amount and purpose, may be comprehensive and of definite value, we urge that you deal unflinchingly with the fact disclosed to the American people by the Philadelphia Public Ledger and other American papers, namely, that the Dail Enreann, the governing body of the so-called 'Irish Republic,' has voted to spend $1,500,000 to influence the Presidential election in this country and bring about the recognition of the so-called 'Irish Republic.'"

BAY STATE CONTESTS LIVELY

Many Women Registered for the Primaries Tomorrow.

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—The nomination of Governor Calvin Coolidge for the Vice Presidency has resulted in a lively contest for places on the Republican State ticket which will be chosen at primaries on Tuesday.

Women will vote in the primaries for the first time. In the cities alone more than 130,000 have registered.

Lieutenant Governor Channing Cox is unopposed on the Republican ticket for the nomination for Governor. For the Democratic nomination the candidates are Richard H. Long of Framingham and John J. Walsh of Boston.

Secretary of State Langtry, instead of seeking renomination for the office he has held, with the exception of a two years' Democratic interim, since 1911, entered a four-corned contest for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant Governor. His opponents are Representative Alvan T. Fuller, Joseph E. Warner, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and Charles L. Burrill, who for five years was State Treasurer, retiring last year.

The Democratic candidates for places on the State ticket below Governor include one woman, Mrs. Alice E. Cram of Boston, widow of a building contractor, who is unopposed for the nomination for Auditor.

The candidates for other places are: Lieutenant Governor, Michael A. O'Leary, at present Chairman of the Democratic State Committee; Secretary of State, Charles H. McGlue; Treasurer, Patrick O'Hearn; Attorney General, Michael L. Sullivan.

MALONE DENOUNCES TAXES.

Delivers Address After Rochester Meeting of Farmer-Labor Party.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, Sept. 5.—The State Committee of the Farmer-Labor Party met here today and ratified the State ticket previously named. The change of name from Labor Party to the present designation also was ratified. Every fair to be held in the State during the next month will be covered for spreading propaganda.

At a meeting at Convention Hall tonight the speakers included Dudley Field Malone, candidate for Governor. He declared housing should be made a public utility to provide sufficient homes, urged publicly owned markets and protested against interference with Soviet Russia. "The profiteers are piling up unheard-of dividends," he continued. "There are three new millionaires out of war profits for every American soldier who lies dead in France. We are still paying war taxes on food, on clothing, and even on the soda in our drug stores. The Farmer-Labor Party advocates that these consumption taxes on our lives and comfort be immediately reduced by a heavy levy against those who made enormous fortunes out of the war."

He said the League of Nations was "not only dead but damned."

CHEERS BRAZIL IMPORTERS.

Provincia Tells Them Normal Europe Will Give Credit We Refuse.

PERNAMBUCO, Brazil, Sept. 5.—The Provincia today adversely criticises the report that American exporters have withdrawn their credit from Brazilian importers. The newspaper says that the United States market was only resorted to on account of the World War, and that American commerce has not been prepared to meet Brazil's requirements on the same basis of credit as granted by European countries, chiefly Germany.

The editorial continues that exporters are required to open a credit at banks in the United States to have orders filled and that the only credit the Americans permit is on very short terms. There will be a complete change in the situation as soon as Europe recovers and returns to normal conditions, it is predicted.

Jersey Central Brakeman Killed.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Sept. 5.—Leo J. Morley, 22 years old, of 1,283 Bushwick Avenue, Brooklyn, a freight brakeman on the Central Railroad of New Jersey, was found near the Clinton Avenue bridge early today with both legs cut off. He died before he could be removed to Muhlenburg Hospital. It is believed that he fell beneath the wheels of his train.

PLEADS MODERATION IN LABOR SERMON

Dr. Tippy Would Reorganize Industry on Its Present Basis and Beat Back Socialism.

STRIFE MENACES NATION

Labor sermons were preached by many local clergymen yesterday, which was generally observed as "Labor Sunday" in the churches. The Rev. Worth M. Tippy, Secretary of the Social Service Commission of the Federal Council, who preached in the Madison Avenue Methodist Church, where he was formerly pastor, declared that a national reorganization of industry is imperative.

"Socialism," he said, "is undesirable, at least in the present stage of evolution, and is as menacing to the workers as to any other social class. The alternative to socialism is not a return to pre-war conditions, but a national reorganization of industry, in which constitutional processes are introduced into its anarchic individualism, and by which it is made consciously a co-operative and public enterprise, although still on the basis of private initiative.

"The time has come for employers and workers to get together," he continued. "The industrial conflicts of the last year are destroying the solidarity of the nation. They are stimulating the evils of war—suspicion, hatred, cruelty, recklessness—faster than the institutions of religion and education can build up integrity and good-will.

"It must be apparent to all by this time that the social unrest is not a passing symptom of temporary disorder. We shall never go back to the old individualistic industry. It has proved too uncertain, too reckless of human life, too materialistic, too irresponsible to the public welfare. Whether for good or ill, we have entered upon a new industrial era. We face either some form of socialism or a national reorganization of industry on its present basis."

Dr. Tippy said the present economic order is essentially sound and needs only to be corrected and developed. "The motive of service must control the motive of profit," he said. "Individual ownership and initiative, which are fundamental, must be supplemented by collective action."

The preacher at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine was the Rev. Dr. Charles K. Gilbert, Executive Secretary of the Social Service Commission of the Diocese of New York and a vicar of the cathedral.

Dr. Gilbert deplored the fact that the Christian Church "seems to be so powerless a leader in the face of violence wrought by labor conflicts upon God's scheme of human intercourse," and took issue with those who commit themselves without reservation to the claims and contentions of labor.

"Wittingly or unwittingly, in their fanatic zeal for the cause of what they think of as 'human brotherhood,' some of those who are commissioners to proclaim the glad tidings of peace and good-will are preaching strife and contention," said Dr. Gilbert.

"They are adding fuel to the flames of bitterness and hatred which make men the enemies of men within the great family of the God they profess to serve."

URGE AID TO UNDERWRITERS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Admiral Benson, Chairman of the Shipping Board, and Representative Edmonds, Acting Chairman of the House Sub-Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, which recently investigated marine insurance, have impressed on the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners in a memorial their belief that the cost of insurance, as between United States and foreign markets, is the vital question for solution in any attempt to establish lasting American marine insurance business.

A substantial part of the existing adverse differential, it is maintained, is due to artificial legislative restrictions here. Excessive taxation and other legislative disabilities hamper American companies in the foreign competition they must meet.

The recently organized American insurance syndicates are regarded as representing only a part solution of the problem. "These syndicates," says the memorial, "must now be supported in a spirit of fairness. British companies, our main competitors, have enjoyed a lower cost of operation, are allowed and encouraged to co-operate freely, are permitted to write many kinds of insurance, and are taxed only on their profits. American underwriters have expressed to us a desire for similar treatment."

The memorial expresses the hope that the Federal authorities may have the cooperation of the national convention in solving the questions involved. Six recommendations are submitted to the convention. These are enlargement of the kinds of insurance (other than life insurance) which marine and fire marine companies may be permitted to write; removal of excessive taxation, and changing the system of taxing premiums to taxation on profits; removal of unnecessary restrictions on reinsurance; greater liberality with respect to American companies seeking to operate in foreign countries; elimination of statutes forbidding American companies to cooperate, through syndicates or other forms of association, and revision of State legislation relating to marine insurance.

ITALIAN STRIKERS FORTIFY FACTORIES

Some Strikers Return to Work.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Sunday passed quietly in Italy, according to a Stefani Agency dispatch from Rome.

Many of the metal workers remained in the factories they had seized, without their occupation giving rise to any disturbances. Work in some of the shops was again normal in consequence of the employers consenting in advance to accept an agreement which it is hoped will eventually be reached between the employers and the workmen.

PARIS, Sept. 5.—Dealing with the situation created by the seizure of factories by metal workers in several Italian cities, a Havas Agency dispatch from Rome today says:

"The Government, although conscious of the seriousness of the situation, is continuing to refrain from regarding the present demonstrations too gravely, retaining confidence in the good sense of the workers and the conciliatory spirit of the employers.

"In Milan the police drove off a party of workers which was attempting to seize control of a factory.

"The employers and workers at Viareggio have reached an agreement, and work will be resumed immediately."

DENIES STRIKE IS BOLSHEVIST.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 5.—"Bolshevism is not the right word to use about the Italian labor trouble," said an Italian industrial to the correspondent today, "unless you use Bolshevism to mean any form of violent labor outbreak. When a striker throws a brick at a scab it is labor violence, but it is not necessarily Bolshevism.

"Bolshevism proper is an attempt to establish a political dictatorship of the Communist Party over the rest of the nation. It is quite distinct—outside Russia at any rate—from the syndicalist or trade union labor movement, which aims at obtaining for the worker a larger share of the product of his work and better conditions generally.

"What is really happening now in Italy is a development of new and perhaps dangerous labor tactics. In reply to the 'lookout' by the masters the men have adopted the 'lockin.' They have seized factories, and in some cases masters and technicians, as hostages and are refusing to let the masters have a share in production just as the masters refused to let the men work when they proclaimed a lockout. No doubt the Italian Communist Party is working on Russian Bolshevist lines and is supported by Russian Bolshevist money, and propaganda is doing its utmost to aggravate and envenom the quarrel and even, if possible, direct the current of labor feeling into Communist channels.

"This is quite in accord with the policy of Lenin as expressed and carried out repeatedly by the Internationale or utilizing syndicalist outbreaks on occasion to stir up trouble, increase want, suffering and bloodshed, with the view of bringing about revolution. But the Italian Communist Party is very far from having the support of the Italian labor leaders, and we trust the latter will have sense enough to avoid the trap the Communists are laying for them.

"I do not for a moment pretend that the situation is not serious, or that the danger is not great, but I question whether it is as bad as some alarmists pretend. There are financial groups in Italy and elsewhere who would benefit by the fall of the lire, unpatriotic though it may be."

The speaker claimed to express the viewpoint of Italian industrial and business circles generally. So it is possible that the Italian Government has not such cause for alarm as the news from the areas affected would lead one to suppose, and that the coming international conferences, when Italy's share of coal and of the German indemnity will be discussed, are not entirely without influence on the situation.

DEMOCRATS ACCUSED OF ASSESSING WOMEN

Federal Clerks in South Dakota Said to Have Been Asked for Campaign Funds.

Special to The New York Times.

ABERDEEN, S. D., Sept. 5.—Evidence said to show that women clerks and stenographers in Government offices are being "assessed" for the Democratic campaign fund has been uncovered here. It is asserted that fourteen young women in the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue for South Dakota were called to a room in a hotel here today and asked to contribute $40 each to the Democratic campaign fund.

Six of the young women, it is declared, gave their checks to the "collector," who gave the name of E. M. Waterbury, Centreville, S. D., and said he was acting for Clarence H. Mee, also of Centreville. The other girls promised to send contributions at once.

Mr. Mee is a member of the Democratic State Committee and father of J. Walter Mee, Collector of Internal Revenue for South Dakota, in whose office the young women are employed.

When this alleged attempt to "assess" women employes of the Government became known Representative Johnson denounced it as an "outrage." He sent a report of it to Republican National Headquarters in Chicago, intimating that the matter would be laid before the Senate campaign fund investigating committee.

The young women are mostly, if not all, listed as deputies. They are not under civil service, but are appointed and removed at the pleasure of their chief. It is said that some of the girls gave checks for only $20, being allowed to pay the $40 in two installments.

EXPLAINS ABSENTEE VOTING

Personal Registration Required in Cities of More Than 5,000.

The new law making possible "absentee" voting was explained yesterday by Lafayette B. Gleason, Secretary of the Republican State Committee, in a statement issued at Republican State headquarters. Mr. Gleason said that registration is necessary before a voter can avail himself of the provisions of the new law, and explained that personal registration is required for residents of places of 5,000 and more inhabitants and that to avail himself or herself of the privilege of absentee voting each resident of places of smaller population must see that his or her name is on the registration rolls.

"When so registered, a voter who expects to be absent on election day must make application to the Board of Elections in the county seat of the county in which said voter resides," Mr. Gleason said, "which application must be by affidavit and mailed or delivered to the Board of Elections on or before Oct. 16. In New York City, voters residing in the several boroughs should make application to the Board of Elections in the borough in which such voters reside.

"The affidavit must show that the applicant is a qualified voter; that he will be unavoidably absent on business; the nature of that business, or that he is a railroad employe on a road running out of the county, a commercial traveller, an actor or a Federal employe having an office outside the county, and that the application is made in good faith.

"Upon this application the Board of Elections determines whether the applicant is entitled to vote as an absentee and delivers a special ballot, a list of candidates and an official envelope.

"The absentee must mark the ballot in the same way as if he were voting at home, enclose it in the envelope, seal it and deliver it to the Board of Elections not later than noon, Friday, Oct. 29, or mail it in time to be received not later than that time. If received later it cannot be counted."

ITALIAN LEAGUE TO MEET.

Organization with 500,000 Members to Support Harding.

The National Italian American League, which has headquarters at 176 Worth Street, will hold a national convention in Aelion Hall on Sept. 20, 21 and 22, Philip Giordano, Chairman of the league, announced yesterday. The convention will be for the purpose of arranging details for the assistance of members of the league in support of the Republican ticket.

Mr. Giordano said the league was organized throughout the United States and had 500,000 members. Nicholas Selvaggi is Secretary of the league, and Thomas C. Toledo Treasurer.

CREWS QUIT, POLICE GUARD ERIE YARDS

FREIGHT SERVICE HAMPERED

Pavonia and Croxton Yardmen Menaced by Outlaw Strikers—Many Recent Assaults Reported.

Fearful that the outlaw railroad strike sabotage, in practice in the Chicago yards, was to be attempted here, Jersey City Police Headquarters last night rushed every available reserve into the Erie's Pavonia yards to supplement the private guards on duty there. Just before midnight last night the railroad sentries were posted at strategic points and were armed in some instances with rifles.

The warning that trouble was brewing came shortly after 10 o'clock when ten members of the crews making up through freight trains destined for Western points quit work. The sudden determination of the yardmen to leave their posts came without warning and officials were hurried out to ascertain the reason.

According to Captain John Beggins of the Seventh Street Station, in command of the police on duty in the big Erie inclosure, the men declared they feared "trouble." A spokesmen for the group said that they had received a "tip" that outlaw strikers, or, as they call themselves, "vacationists," planned descent on the yards last night. The men pointed out that in Chicago the outlaws had turned loose a freight train and several "wild cat" locomotives and that they feared similar tactics might be attempted in the Pavonia yards.

All efforts to persuade the men that police would be on hand to prevent the entry of any "vacationists" to the railroad property were futile. Realizing that the desertion of the men would seriously cut down the number of through freight trains moved out of the yards, officials hastily scoured the machine shops and other points for recruits to supplement the depleted crews. Few of the repair men, however, were available, and as a result the railroad's train movement schedule for today will disclose a serious cut.

While the movement was under way in the Pavonia yards, word came to the Yardmaster that a similar defection was in progress in the Croxton yards. These are west of Jersey City and extend in a series of sidings out into the Jersey Meadows. It was reported that twelve men of the crews at work there had left their posts, and given the same reason as the Pavonia men.

Up to early this morning the twenty-two policemen on duty in the Pavonia yard had not reported the arrival of any outlaws. The guard, however, it was said, would be maintained until after daylight, when an investigation probably will be made to ascertain whether any organized attempt at sabotage had been planned.

For the last three weeks almost daily meetings of the Jersey City "outlaw" rail strikers have been in progress in Grand View Hall, Ogden Avenue and Franklin Street. The meetings have been for the purpose of maintaining the strikers' morale and practically every speaker who has addressed the gathering has emphasized the necessity for keeping violence out of the controversy.

Despite this constant counseling, assaults on men employed in the railroad yards and shops have been steadily increased. Men have been beaten on their way to and from work and few arrests have been made.

PREMIER REFUSES HYLAN'S APPEAL

Father Denis Mathieu, a Benedictine priest of French origin, who has resided in England for forty years and officiated at MacSwiney's marriage, brought him some water from Lourdes yesterday. The Mayor, however, was too weak to see his visitor.

Mrs. MacSwiney today received a message signed by the President and Secretary of the Cork Urban District Council, conveying in behalf of the townspeople of Cork "heartfelt sympathy," and adding:

"The sacrifice the Lord Mayor and his fellow strikers are making has infused into their countrymen a settled determination to carry to triumph the cause they are suffering and dying for."

Cork Prisoners Fast Twenty-six Days.

BELFAST, Sept. 5.—The eleven hunger strikers in the Cork Jail this afternoon entered the twenty-sixth day of their abstinence from food, having subsisted only on water for the entire period. The condition of one of the prisoners, Michael O'Reilly, is critical, and he is unable to speak to visitors.

The period these men have gone without food is a record for Irish political prisoners. The longest previous hunger strike occurred in the Wormwood Scrubs Prison in England last April, and lasted twenty-three days.

It was stated today that the condition of the hunger strikers was so critical that their relatives were allowed to visit them whenever they chose.

The Cork Nurses' Association has offered the services of its members free to the Deputy Lord Mayor in order that the nurses may attend the hunger striking patients day and night. It was asserted, however, that the Deputy Lord Mayor has been unable to arrange for an acceptance of this order by the prison authorities.

CONTINUE BRITISH BOYCOTT.

Boston Dock Strikers Contribute $3,000 to Spread Movement.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—John P. Lucy, New York leader of the Mannix-MacSwiney Defense Organization, addressing a meeting of striking Boston longshoremen and their sympathizers here today, exhorted the strikers to continue their boycott against British shipping in defiance of their union officials. He predicted that workmen in all industries throughout the country would soon make similar agitation for the release of Irish political prisoners and recognition of Ireland's independence.

Five hundred persons, including many strikers, as well as young women who have been active in picketing the docks at which British vessels are loading, attended the meeting and contributed approximately $3,000 when an appeal for funds with which to carry on the strike was made by Joseph P. Cannon, head of the Irish bond drive in New York.

The gathering applauded enthusiastically the utterances of the speakers condemning the British attitude toward Ireland and hissed the names of Lloyd George and other English statesmen. Hisses also greeted mention of William F. Dempsey and other officers of the Longshoremen's Union, who have declared the strike "unauthorized and foolish." The speakers called them "labor fakers."

O'CONOR DON ANGERED BY IRISH TERRORISM

He Calls for Aid of All Moderates to Make the Country "Fit to Live In."

BELFAST, Sept. 5.—The O'Conor Don (Owen Phelim O'Conor), son of the late Charles Owen O'Conor Don of Roscommon, has written to the Roscommon Messenger, proposing a monster meeting in Roscommon for all who wish the country "to remain Christian and fit to live in."

The letter continues:

"Are all the shopkeepers to have their homes destroyed? Are all the country people to live in terror of their lives and the rich to fly the country, and no step be taken to end such a state of affairs?

"I, for one, do not propose to sit on the fence longer and see my country ruined. I'll do anything possible to bring to reason the wild bloods who are disgracing the land and bringing us all to ruin and damnation, but I can't do it alone."

LLOYD GEORGE THREATENED

He Leaves Lucerne, but Keeps Date of Homeward Trip Secret.

LUCERNE, Sept. 5 (Associated Press).—The visit of Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain to Lucerne ended today. Accompanied by his suite of twenty-four persons, the Premier left on a special train at 10:30 o'clock this morning for Zermatt.

The local authorities were present at the station to bid the Premier godspeed, and two little Swiss girls presented him with Alpine flowers and asked him to return here soon. It is learned, however, that the Prime Minister will not come back to Lucerne, but will continue his journey from Zermatt direct to London. The exact date of his homeward journey has not been made public owing, it is said, to an increase in the number of threatening letters and telegrams received by the Premier, which had led to fears that an attack upon him might be attempted en route.

The Premier himself, it is declared, is not concerned over the alleged threats. It is also reported that he may attempt to climb the Matterhorn from the Riffelalp and that several Zermatt guides have been engaged for the venture.

ARREST 20 RADICALS IN TRAIN WRECK PLOT

WOULD BURN PASSENGERS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Twenty members of the Communist Party of America, five of whom are confessed participants in a plot to destroy the "Diamond Special" crack train of the Illinois Central Railroad, were arrested by Chicago agents of the Department of Justice tonight at Springfield, Ill.

The five men who confessed gave to the authorities information by which they claim the plot will be traced to the Chicago headquarters of the party. In pursuance of this information agents of the Department of Justice and the local police tonight scoured the west side searching for a number of men whose names are withheld.

The plot details were in brief as follows:

On Tuesday or Wednesday night, according to weather conditions, plotters were to have gone to Bissel, a lonely signal tower six miles north of Springfield. There, shortly before the "Diamond Special" came through, they were to have bound and gagged the signal men.

At a curve a quarter of a mile north of the tower, the spikes in one length of rail were to have been removed. On either side of this spot lies a ditch forty feet deep. The train, going around the curve, would have plunged into this ditch.

The plotters, with a tank of compressed gasoline, then planned to blow open the safe, steal its contents, set fire to the train and leave the dead and injured passengers to the mercy of the flames.

The prisoners were captured in six raids made simultaneously on six houses in the Springfield foreign colony, located in the village of Ridgely, a suburb. The raids were made by Special Agent August H. Loula of the Chicago branch of the Department of Justice; Chief of Police Wilbur Morris of Springfield, and his entire force of forty men, with agents of the Illinois Central Railroad.

As fast as the prisoners were taken they were rushed to the Central Station at Springfield for questioning. As they spoke nothing but Polish or Lithuanian, the questioning devolved upon Mr. Loula.

The first information regarding the plot was given to District Inspector Edward J. Brennan of the Chicago branch of the Department of Justice several days ago by agents of the Illinois Central.

Investigation was at once started. Early this morning Special Agent Loula was sent to Springfield with seven warrants to be served.

John Kona, a Lithuanian, the first man questioned, spoke freely of the plot. The plotters had first laid their plans five weeks ago, he said. A man from the Chicago headquarters had come down and talked to them. He wanted money to spread the cause. They had given him a considerable sum from their savings and they planned to get more for the revolution that was to give them fine homes, fine clothes and lots of good things to eat without working for it.

They had heard about the huge sums in money being carried on the trains. So they decided to pick the best train, the "Diamond Special," and wreck it. Thus they would have money for the revolution.

Chief of Police Morris believes the five who have confessed are experienced yeggmen. Beside their Communist Party affiliations, he declares they are members of the I. W. W. In this connection he points to recent news dispatches alleging a merger between the two Communist Parties and the I. W. W. for a campaign of sabotage.

"There is no doubt as to their intentions," he said tonight. "They planned to wreck that train—and they would have done it.

"We will continue the questioning today. All of these men may not be implicated in the affair—we don't know yet. It is only by pure luck that their plans leaked out—or we would have had perhaps scores of dead and injured as a result of their activities."

It is believed that the prisoners will be brought to Chicago for action by Federal authorities. A squad of post office inspectors will leave Chicago for Springfield tomorrow morning to aid in the investigation.

MRS. BOOLE FAVORS BONUS.

Candidate for Senator Declares Also for Preference to Veterans.

Mrs. Ella A. Boole, President of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, came out yesterday in favor of a bonus for ex-service men and for their preferential appointment to civil service positions, provided in the first case that the money could be made available and provided in the second case that consideration was taken of the fact that all men who did not go to war were not "slackers." Mrs. Boole's position was made public in answer to a questionnaire from the 106th Infantry Post of the American Legion in a statement issued from her headquarters, 156 Fifth Avenue.

"Mothers, do not forget that I mean to see that the ex-service man gets a square deal," said Mrs. Boole. "It is a matter of current report that the Administration is not living up to its promises to the men, that wounded soldiers are being neglected and that people do not minister to them as they did when they first came home. Do we not need the influence of mothers to meet this condition? Mothers never forget.

"I am in favor of legislation to increase the pensions and allowances of dependents of men killed in the great war. I also believe tthat legislation to provide adequately for the support of men wounded or disabled in war and to provide for vocational training for such men under the best possible conditions should be passed. I certainly am in sympathy with the principles of the American Legion, as set forth in the preamble to its constitution. I have advocated these principles from the public platform for the last twenty years."

HARDING WILL SEEK TREATY REVISION

and finally reject the League. He recognizes that it may have become so entwined and interwoven in the peace of Europe that its good work and its unobjectionable provisions must be preserved in order to stabilize the peace of that continent. In my opinion this is wise statesmanship. The Paris Covenant is a part of the treaty of peace executed between the German Governmnt and all of the nations with which it has been at war (except the United States); a treaty under which vast property interests have become vested rights; a treaty which has greatly restricted the power of the German Government separately to contract with any other nation.

"When President Harding, working in accord with a Republican Congress, takes up the work of placing upon a firm, just and sure foundation the relations of this country to the other nations of the world, I am confident that the logic of accomplished facts will lead to the adoption of the League, so modified as to remove all just doubts as to its undue effect upon American rights and interests.

"Senator Harding has recognized this fact in the statement that he has no expectation whatever of finding it necessary or advisable to negotiate a separate peace with Germany. The first effort of his Administration, obviously, must be to secure an agreement with the parties to the Treaty of Versailles for its modification so as to remove the objections of the American Government, and, that accomplished, our aceptance of the amended treaty will be the natural solution of the international problem. No one will dispute Senator Harding's statement that the United States may be the leader in revision, amendment or construction, and be able to count on the cordial co-operation of all nations concerned."

Hard Week for the Senator.

This week will be the most strenuous for Senator Harding of any thus far in the campaign, and includes five scheduled speeches and a journey to and from the Minnesota State Fair.

The Senator will make his first long campaign utterance on industrial relations at a picnic of the Marion Central Labor Union at Lincoln Park tomorrow.

Early Tuesday morning the Harding party, in special cars, will leave for St. Paul. Plans for a stop-over in Chicago have been canceled, and Senator Harding will leave his train at Englewood in the afternoon and motor to Fort Sheridan and call on General Wood. From Fort Sheridan the Senator will motor to Deerfield and board a special train for St. Paul, arriving there Wednesday morning.

In the early afternoon at the Fair Grounds Senator Harding will make his first speech outside of Ohio since the campaign began. He will deal with agricultural topics.

The same afternoon the Senator will drive to Minneapolis and attend a reception of the Lincoln Republican Club, at which it has been announced that no speech will be made. Returning to St. Paul for dinner and a visit to the Ramsay County Central Committee headquarters before starting that night for Chicago and Marion.

Ohio negro Republicans will make a pilgrimage to Marion on Friday. On Saturday a speech will be delivered to delegations of business men from Chicago and Northern Illinois and Michigan. That night Senator Harding will address the Harding and Coolidge Railway Men's Club of Marion.

Says Italians Favor Harding.

Oscar Durante, editor of l'Italia, a Chicago Italian daily, called on Senator Harding this morning to learn his attitude regarding matters affecting Italy, particularly the Adriatic question.

"The Fiume question has made all Americans of Italian extraction Republicans," said Mr. Durante. "In 1916 probably three-fourths of those in the large cities voted for Wilson, and in smaller centres they largely voted Democratic in national and Republican in State matters.

"They believed Italy would have a friend in Wilson. When his opportunity came he proved an implacable enemy. It was sudden and brought a shock. As the Fiume issue loomed larger they saw that Wilson was not only an enemy, but a peculiarly obstinate one. It has been a bitter lesson, and naturally they want to know now whether they may hope for a friend in the White House hereafter.

"After talking with Senator Harding I know that Italy will have an understanding friend when he is President. He knows the problem of the Adriatic, on which the whole security of Italy depends. He will accord to Italian interests the fair and friendly treatment that has been denied under Wilson.

"Governor Cox is pledged to carry forward the Wilson foreign policies, which means he can't be fair to Italy. Moreover, weeks ago Senator Harding publicly asked where Governor Cox stood on the Adriatic question, and the Governor has never replied. He can't reply, and Italian-Americans know why."

DR. VON MACH HEADS GERMAN VOTE DRIVE

Former Harvard Instructor Directs Move to Elect Harding and Beat League.

VIERECK WIRES HARDING

Dr. Edmund von Mach, former instructor in history in Harvard University, was revealed yesterday as national head of the German movement to support Senator Warren G. Harding, Republican nominee for President, on the issues of a common opposition to the League of Nations and a common hope of a separate peace with Germany. Dr. von Mach's position as temporary national chairman of the Committee of Ninety-six, the central German organization directing the movement, was disclosed by Lester R. Franklin of 4 Highland Avenue, Auburndale, Flushing, who said the formation of the Committee of Ninety-six was his idea and that he is chairman of its New York State Committee.

Of almost equal public interest was Mr. Franklin's admission that a quarrel had already developed among the promoters of the German movement, and his assertion that some of the German leaders were looking for Republican and Democratic campaign funds. As the Committee of Ninety-six has already declared for Senator Harding, the leaders of whom Mr. Franklin spoke are presumably looking for Republican campaign money nationally, and he intimated that they were looking for Democratic campaign money in return for support of Democratic State and local candidates.

Denounces German "Judases."

"Judases," was Mr. Franklin's term for these leaders in the German movement, whose names he did not give, although he indicated some of those he had in mind. There was nothing in Mr. Franklin's remarks to show that any of these German leaders had actually received money from political sources, but he was emphatic in saying that they were seeking it.

Dr. von Mach, who with George Sylvester Viereck seems to be the leader in the German political movement, according to Mr. Franklin, was one of the most active German propagandists in this country in the period immediately preceding the entrance of the United States into the war. He was Executive Chairman of the Citizens' Committee for Food Shipments to Germany, organized for the purpose of breaking the British blockade, and was the author of a book on "Official Diplomatic Documents Relating to the Outbreak of the European War," the suppression of which as "inaccurate" by the Macmillan Company led to legal action by Dr. von Mach against that firm of publishers. Dr. von Mach attacked President Wilson during this period, accused Secretary of State Robert Lansing of having suppressed documents favorable to Germany and charged Elihu Root with having misrepresented the Belgian situation.

Mr. Viereck made public last night a telegram to Senator Harding, in which he commented upon articles on the German movement in THE TIMES and asserted that the "attempt of the Democratic press to link opposition of Americans of German descent to the League of Nations and their support of Senator Harding's candidacy with German propaganda is wholly preposterous." Mr. Viereck said that the German Government had repeatedly applied to the Allies for admission to the League of Nations and that there was a powerful body of public opinion in Germany, headed by Count von Bernstorff, who hoped to revise the league from within. If Americans of German descent reject the League of Nations, Mr. Viereck said, they do so not because, but in spite of, their sympathy with the plight of the German people.

Mr. Franklin, who is not a German, said he became interested in the German political movement as a matter of principle in the belief that American citizens of German birth and descent were not obtaining their full rights. "I am of Yankee descent," said Mr. Franklin to a TIMES reporter. "I am in favor of the representative form of government, as Washington understood it, which in its essence is Bolshevik. It means a government by the people and not by parties for the benefit of a few for the purpose of collecting contributions.

"I first became interested in the German movement by reading Viereck's magazine, in which suggestions were asked for a form of organization for the Germans which would secure for them the rights which they were denied during the war and are now being denied.

"I suggested the Committee of Ninety-six, which is a German-American Congress for the entire nation, with representatives from each State. This suggestion was accepted. I am Chairman of the New York State Committee of the Committee of Ninety-six. George Sylvester Viereck is Secretary and Henry Helme of New York Treasurer. Edmund von Mach is temporary National Chairman and also representative for New York.

"I am in favor of real Americanism. I insist that the Germans shall sing 'My Country 'Tis of Thee,' but when they sing 'Deutschland Uber Alles,' I say 'quit.' I have no use, either, for 'my country, right or wrong.'"

Reorganization Under Way.

Mr. Franklin was asked to give the names of others in the movement, but refused. He said:

"It is not proper to give at this time the names of other members of the committee, because the organization which has been formed is only temorary. Some now in office will surely be succeeded by others. Only last evening I received a letter from Mr. Viereck to meet him this week in a conference, at which reorganization will be discussed."

Asked the reason for the reorganization, Mr. Franklin said:

"We must get rid of the 'Judases' in our ranks, for it is because of these Judases that the Germans are now deprived of what rightfully belongs to them. I am not willing that any of the traitors to our cause should get either Republican or Democratic campaign funds at the expense of those people who are working for simple justice."

Mr. Franklin was asked if the German meeting at Kissena Park in Queens today would have a bearing on the German political movement and said it would be of considerable importance.

"Are you going to be there?" he was asked.

"No," he replied, "I will not be there because some of the Judases I mentioned are on the program to speak."

The indorsement of any candidate but Senator Harding by the Citizens' Alliance of Queens, the local German organization through which the Committee of Ninety-six is working, has been delayed until after primary day, Sept. 14. Some of the members of the alliance have been reported to favor the indorsement of certain Democratic candidates for State and local offices, while supporting the Republican ticket, including the nominees for President and Vice President, as a whole.

Viereck's Telegram to Harding.

Mr. Viereck's telegram to Senator Harding was as follows:

"New York, Sept. 5, 1920.

"Senator Warren G. Harding, Marion, Ohio:

"Attempts of the Democratic press to link opposition of Americanism of German descent to the League of Nations and their support of your candidacy with German propaganda is wholly preposterous. The German Government has repeatedly petitioned the Allies for admission to the League of Nations. A powerful body of public opinion in Germany, headed by such men as Count von Bernstorff, hopes to revise the League from within. Every mail brings to my desk pleas for the League of Nations from Germany.

"If Americans of German descent reject the League of Nations they do so, not because, but in spite of, their sympathy with the plight of the German people. They denounce the Wilson covenant because they regard it as a monument of injustice and a menace to American independence. They cannot reconcile any advocacy of the League of Nations with their oath of allegiance to the United States.

"GEORGE SYLVESTER VIERECK."

In giving the text of the message to the newspapers, Mr. Viereck said that he had sent it entirely of his own volition, but that he knew his words would be approved by all the members of the "Committee of Ninety-six."

Democratic Party who wanted to greet the Governor and tell him of the reports they had received of promises of support since the people here had begun to read his addresses.

George E. Brennan, leader of the Democratic Party in Illinois, expressed the opinion that the Republicans were losing ground, partly as a result of the growing sentiment for Governor Cox and partly because of the factional fight in the Republican ranks being waged by the supporters of Mayor Thompson and Governor Lowden. Brennan felt, he said, that there might be a close fight in Illinois but that it would be at least an even break on election day. The Democratic workers, he said, were given new life and were looking forward confidently.

Governor Cox was especially pleased because this was the sentiment which he had found in other States like Ohio, Michigan, West Virginia and Wisconsin, in which he had campaigned.

Says He Has Time of His Life.

Discussing the opening of his Western tour the Governor said:

"I'm having the time of my life; I'm enjoying every minute of it, and I make that statement with the utmost sincerity. It's not a jocular statement.

"There's something going on among the people. I am sure it is the voice that spells progress, and that it represents the desires of the voters of the nation. I have heard it everywhere on this tour.

"I don't believe that there is any one who will question my statement when I say that we have the Republican oligarchy, the little group of Senators who sought to control the Republican Party and the Presidency in disregard of the will of the people, on the defensive now. And that group will be on the defensive from this time until Election Day.

"We have entered their first line trenches, and we have entered the second breach in the line of the enemy as well. Pretty soon we will enter the third line of defense. The bottom will soon drop out of the movement to nominate a reactionary candidate for the Presidency and the people will never vote for such a cause."

Governor Cox added that he had found in Wisconsin much of the same sentiment among the voters which he had found in Michigan, a great independent movement which took in both independent Republicans and Democrats, which would spell defeat to the reactionary wing of the Republican Party.

Mrs. Cox came from Dayton today to meet the Governor, and they had dinner tonight at the home of Mrs. Cox's father.

HAYS SAYS QUOTAS WERE ONLY TENTATIVE

Replying to Cox's Accusation He Reaffirms Testimony in Chicago That They Meant Little.

Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, replied yesterday to the charge of Governor Cox that he had told an "untruth" when he said the Republican National Committee has no quotas in his testimony before the Senate investigating committee. Mr. Hays declared that he did not say there were no quotas, but did say that the quotas suggested were changing constantly and meant little, as the National Treasurer was seeking only to collect enough money to meet the expenses fixed by the budget of the Republican National Committee, estimated to be a little more than $3,000,000. In a statement Mr. Hays said:

"According to the public reports, Governor Cox yesterday made the following accusation against me personally:

"'I charge that Will H. Hays perpetrated a deliberate falsehood when he said under oath that there were no quotas.'

"In my written statement read to the Senate committee on Aug. 30 in Chicago I said:

"'Tentative quotas were fixed by the Treasurer's office, all tentative and rather as a goal, always high, of course, for the particular State to drive for, and changing constantly.

"'At different periods different quotas have been suggested by the Treasurer's office as tentative goals in different States, and the State Committees themselves have fixed different quotas. These, as above suggested, are changing constantly, and always, of course, were made very much higher than either necessary or anticipated. The fact is, the quotas meant little. Furthermore, whatever may have been suggested as quotas by overzealous solicitors in their enthusiasm in different localities, the fact remains that a certain amount was believed necessary, and the budget above referred to was indicated therefor, which is $3,079,037.20, for the use of the National Committee. When this amount was fixed as the budget, that became the sum fixed for the Treasurer to reach, and the purpose became definite. The fact at all times remains that the Treasurer is driving to collect enough and no more than enough to meet the necessary expenses, estimated to be something in excess of $3,000,000.'

"These are the facts. Let the public judge as to the truth or falsity of Governor Cox's accusation. It has the same reckless irresponsibility as his claim of $15,000,000. Further comment on the reliability of his statements is unnecessary."

EDGE GIVES INQUIRY RESULTS.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 5.—Senator Edge of New Jersey, a member of the Senate Committee investigating campaign funds, when asked here today what progress the committee was making said:

"As a matter of fact what the committee has really established to date through sworn testimony is that the Republican managers have had varying quotas in different States from which Hays swears that the National Committee wishes to raise slightly over $3,000,000, of which something over $1,000,000 has been raised to date.

"The Democratic managers, on the other hand, have declared that they want to raise from $2,000,000 to $2,800,000. The former Chairman White's and the latter ex-Chairman Cummin's estimate.

"The hearings likewise established the fact that the Democrats were generally assessing Federal office holders, contrary to law, and had no limit to the amount to be subscribed by single contributions, while, with few exceptions, the Republicans had limited their individual subscriptions to $1,000.

"The funds to be expended by the Senatorial and Congression Committees of both parties, it would appear, would be in addition to the above sums."

ROOSEVELT HAZARDS NO GUESS ON MAINE

HOPES THEY WILL ALL VOTE

If They Do Cox Will Carry State, Democratic Candidate Predicts.

Prediction of the result of the Maine elections, the State election on September 13 and the Presidential election in November is imposible because no one can tell how many of the newly enfranchised women of that State are going to vote, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for Vice President, said yesterday immediately after his return from a three-day speaking tour in that State. Mr. Roosevelt, who will return to Maine today after his Labor Day speech in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, said he had found a strong sentiment among the women of Maine for the League of Nations. He was certain that if all the women there who were entitled to vote did vote Maine would go Democratic at the November election on the League of Nations issue.

"There had been no widespread, organized woman suffrage in Maine and the coming of suffrage took that State by surprise," Mr. Roosevelt said. "The Legislature had to meet hurriedly and pass a special law providing for the registration of women in the cities, the regular registration days having passed. In the country women can still register up to and including the day of election."

Mr. Roosevelt said the Republicans had carried on a campaign of misinformation to keep women from registering, and said they had been told they would have to give their age and would have to enroll in a political party and vote the same way at the election.

"The result is that it is impossible to make any kind of guess as to the result," Mr. Roosevelt continued. "I found the same great interest among the women in Maine concerning the League of Nations issue that I found among the women of the West. They are beginning to see through the ridiculous stories that have been circulated about it."

Mr. Roosevelt said that the Republicans in Maine had been carrying on a "whispering campaign," saying that Canadian troops were about to be sent to Poland by order of the League of Nations. "This may fool temporarily ignorant voters in remote sections," Mr. Roosevelt said, "but with eight weeks still to go I think the big theory of the League of Nations will be understood before election.

"It must be remembered that the election in Maine on Sept. 13 is primarily an election of a State ticket, although four Congressmen also are to be elected. The Republicans are claiming the election of their State ticket by 25,000 majority. I do not care to make any prediction."

Mr. Roosevelt will receive a present of a loving cup from the employes of the New York Navy Yard at the bandstand in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, at 2 o'clock today, in recognition of his services as Assistant Secretary of the Navy. Mr. Roosevelt will then make a Labor Day speech before representatives of organized labor, after which he will lay a wreath on the monument of Lafayette.

Mr. Roosevelt will leave for Maine at 4 o'clock, going to Eastport for a three days' vacation with his family, which he said was the only vacation he expected to have during the campaign. He will speak again in Maine on Sept. 11 at a place to be decided upon later.

PORTLAND, Maine, Sept. 5.—More than 24,000 women have registered as voters in this State since laws were enacted for that purpose, at the special session of the Legislature Tuesday, according to estimates here tonight.

A campaign that began in earnest on Aug. 23 will be fought without letup to Election Day, Sept. 13.

To what extent, if any, the national drift may be forecast by a victory or an increased or decreased majority here has long been a matter of dispute with politicians, but certain it is that national leaders have taken the tradition seriously and have brought as many of their political big guns into the campaign in this State as possible. Four years ago Charles E. Hughes wound up the campaign for the Republicans. This year both parties have had a big representation of State campaigners and have drawn heavily on the National Committees for speakers of national prominence.

For the Governorship, Frederic H. Parkhurst of Bangor, who defeated Governor Carl E. Milliken and Judge John P. Deering in the Republican primaries, is opposed by Bertrand G. McIntire of Norway, whom Milliken defeated two years ago by 5,545 votes. A typographical error in the Maine Register of 1919-20 makes the vote of McIntire appear as 4,000 less than it was.

Three Republican members of Congress are candidates for re-election. They are Representative White in the Second District, opposed by Wallace N. Price; Representative Peters in the Third District, opposed by Archie C. Towle, and Representative Hersey in the Fourth District, opposed by Leon G. C. Brown. Price, Towle and Brown are Democrats.

In the First District, where Representative Louis B. Goodall has announced his intention to retire at the close of his present term, the Republicans have nominated County Attorney Carroll L. Beedy of Portland, and the Democrats Frank H. Haskell, also of this city.

Both parties and gubernatorial candidates have made the League of Nations a fighting issue. Local questions have received less attention. Even prohibition, which for more than sixty years has figured largely in State campaigns and particularly in contests for County Attorneys and Sheriffs, is virtually ignored. The Republicans in State convention approved the refusal of the United States Senate to ratify the treaty "without reservations designed to protect the safety, sovereignty and independence of the United States." The Democratic State platform declared for prompt ratification "without reservations destructive to the spirit and effective operation of the treaty." Both Mr. Parkhurst and Mr. McIntire indorsed their national and State resolutions on the stump.

MRS. ROBINSON FOR MILLER.

Asks His Election in Name of the Late Theodore Roosevelt.

Mrs. Douglas Robinson, sister of the late Theodore Roosevelt, who leaves this week to speak in Maine, notified the Miller Campaign Committee yesterday that she favored Nathan L. Miller of Syracuse for the Republican nomination for Governor and was willing to help in his campaign after her return.

"I believe we need in New York, as we need in the whole nation, a swift return to Republican policies and Republican methods of administration. I believe the country and every State in the country has come to the parting of the ways with Democratic waste and extravagance.

"As the Empire State goes, so goes the nation as a rule, and it is therefore our duty to elect Judge Miller, a man who stands for the principles for which Theodore Roosevelt stood. Every follower of Theodore Roosevelt, in common loyalty to their lost leader, should firmly unite to bring about a return to prosperity and to the high standards he established. This can only be accomplished in the State by electing Judge Nathan L. Miller to the Governorship of New York."

POLES ATTACKED BY LITHUANIANS

RUSSIAN RALLIES ALL FAIL

By WALTER DURANTY.

PARIS, Sept. 5.—Lithuanians have attacked Polish cavalry outposts in some force and driven them from the towns of Seiny and Lipovo. This action was only to be expected.

All through last Summer, when the Poles, thanks to the support of France and other Allies against the Bolsheviki, had the most powerful army in the neighborhood, they persistently encroached on Lithuanian territory. Before they drove the Reds from Vilna, Lithuania's historic capital, and requisitioned the Lithuanian railroad system, the Poles declared they would restore it afterward to the Lithuanians. But they did not.

They managed to get the consent of the Supreme Council of Paris to their retaining the city on strategic grounds. The demarcation line was fixed just outside of it by Foch in July. The Poles everywhere pushed forward across this line, in some cases thirty kilometers deep, and Lithuanian protests to Paris were in vain. In the Autumn there were grave incidents, accompanied by bloodshed, at Seiny, which Poles violently occupied, maltreating and expelling the Lithuanian inhabitants, teachers and ministers of religion. Again the Lithuanian protest was ineffective.

The latest official dispatch from Warsaw declares that the Lithuanians have orders to march on Suwalki, which is not improbable, as it is a Lithuanian town and the Lithuanian army, though small, has been trained by American and British officers and is prepared to fight in defense of the country. The Polish message concludes:

"The Lithuanian Government of Kovno, which has largely profited by British generosity, is obviously operating under the influence of German suggestion and in agreement with the Bolsheviki."

This is evidently a piece of special pleading, meant to prejudice French opinion. Both the American and British Commissioners in the Baltic were impressed last year by the justice of the Lithuanian protests, as I indicated in a dispatch from Riga on the subject to THE NEW YORK TIMES at the beginning of December.

Poles Call Attack Unprovoked.

WARSAW, Sept. 4 (Associated Press).—An attack on Polish forces by the Lithuanians with machine guns and artillery in the region of Seiny, thirty-five miles northwest of Grodno, is announced in Polish reports from the northern front. The reports declare the attack was unprovoked, and that the Lithuanians had received orders to occupy Augustowo.

Tonight's official communique asserts that the attack was in pursuance of an understanding between the Lithuanians and the Russian Bolsheviki. The statement says the Lithuanians have crossed the Curzon line, the tentative Polish boundary drawn by the Allies, without declaring war.

It is also announced that the negotiations regarding the frontier and the future relations of Poland and Lithuania have been broken off and that the Polish delegates are returning to Warsaw. These delegates comprise a special mission which went to Kovno about a month ago to confer with the Lithuanians. It is said the Supreme Council has been informed that the Lithuanians propose a new line of demarkation running through Marggrabowa, Augustowo and Szuzyn.

It is understood the Lithuanian Government places the responsibility for the hostilities upon the Poles, asserting that the Lithuanians were compelled to defend themselves. The Poles, on the other hand, claim the Lithuanians opened fire first.

Advance Against Reds Continues.

With regard to the finding between the Polish and Russian Soviet forces, the statement announces that between Wlodowa and Dubienka, on the centre of the front, the Russians launched an attack with the intention of forcing a crossing of the Bug, but were repulsed. It is asserted that the Poles have learned that at Berzec the Russians were compelled to fight under the pressure of machine guns from the rear.

In the region of Belets, on the old Galician border southeast of Zamosc, the Poles are advancing and repeatedly breaking the Soviet resistance.

To the east of Lemberg the Poles have occupied the railway junction of Krasne (midway between Lemberg and Brody) after hard fighting.

Another detachment of anti-Bolshevist Russians left Warsaw today to join General Wrangel, the anti-Bolshevist commander in South Russia. The detachment is traveling by way of Rumania and the Danube. Eighteen thousaid men have left Warsaw so far to take up arms with the Wrangel forces.

Wrangel Pressed by Bolsheviki.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 4.—The counter-offensive of General Wrangel, the anti-Bolshevist leader in Taurida Province, Crimea, has succeeded.

The Bolsheviki, however, are attacking with increased forces in the peninsula region, and also are pressing back Wrangel's troops from Ekaterinodar.

A Bolshevist mission has arrived in Angora. It includes the Tartar, Ivasoff, and Nouri Pasha, brother of Enver Pasha, the young Turk leader.

Advices received from Trebizond show that the Bolshevist propaganda is making headway slowly. Assurances have been given that the lives of Americans and their property will be respected. The Nationalists continue to enlist troops and to levy taxes and seize food.

BRITISH AT RIGA PARLEY.

Labor Delegates to Attend Peace Discussion of Reds and Poles.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—In connection with the trades union meeting here tomorrow, the Council of Action met today and decided to send William Adamson and A. A. Purcell as the council's delegates to Riga to attend the Russo-Polish conference.

This determination was reached in view of the appeal of the Socialist Labor Party in Poland that steps be taken by the British labor movement looking to an understanding of the Polish case.

EX-PRISONERS SENT TO FIGHT.

Russians Repatriated by Italy Rushed to Polish Front.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Sept. 5.—The cruel fate of 4,000 Russian prisoners of war captured in Austrian trenches whom Italy lately restored to their native land has come to light.

The Italian crew of the steamship Pietro Calva, which has just returned to Naples after conveying the Russians to Odessa, state that the hapless men were received in port by Bolshevist representatives, who marched them to big barracks and ordered them to prepare forthwith to depart for the Polish front. Many protested, saying they wanted to rejoin their families, from whom they had been separated for nearly five years.

The crew found Odessa in a dreadful condition. All industry was at a standstill and evidences of famine and misery met the eye at every turn. The skeleton forms of the citizens were hung about with rags and the smarter people were garbed in sackcloth.

Munitions Pass Through Danzig.

BERLIN, Sept. 5.—Danzig dispatches to the newspapers announce that the first transport load of munitions destined for Poland crossed the territory of the free city of Danzig yesterday. There was no interference with this passage, the reports state.

MYSTERY IN SOLDIER'S DEATH

COBLENZ, Sept. 4.—The body of Nathaniel F. Davis of Duluth, Minn., formerly a Lieutenant in the American army and recently an American civilian representative with the Rhineland High Commission, was found on the bank of the Rhine near here today. Lieutenant Davis had been missing for a week. Some bruises were found on the body, but his money and jewelry were intact.

Lieutenant Davis had expected to be married soon to an English girl now in France.

GERMAN SOCIALISTS FLAY SOVIET RUSSIA

PROF. BALLOD MAKES REPORT

Convinced by Six Months' Research That Bolshevist Government Is an Economic Failure.

BERLIN, Sept. 3 (Associated Press).—Soviet Russia was unfavorably criticised by speakers addressing the party conference of the Independent Socialists which met here today to discuss the Moscow Internationale.

"Whatever our sentiments toward the Russians may be, the fact remains that they have not given proof that they are able to establish Socialism in their country," said Professor Karl Ballod, who has just returned from Russia, where he spent several months carrying on research work for the Latvian Government. He is a member of the German Socialization Commission and ranks as one of the foremost interpreters of Russian economics.

"I once was of the opinion that Soviet Russia and Germany could support one another economically, but I have now abandoned this opinion," Professor Ballod told the German radicals. He was pessimistic regarding Russia's food resources, which, he said, were greatly influenced by climatic conditions, which had brought about a scarcity in the so-called "black soil" districts. The entire Volga region, he asserted, would yield only enough grain for seed and there were not sufficient supplies in sight for the needs of the population.

The transportation collapse in Russia, declared Professor Ballod, also had been destructive in its effects on the rehabilitation of the country, while the complete depreciation of paper money had resulted in peasants refusing to surrender their products, in so far as they possessed any. He urgently advised against recommending that German workers settle in Russia.

Industrial production in Soviet Russia, the professor continued, had fallen to about one-sixth of its former volume. This was partly due to a lack of raw materials, the peasants refusing to give up flax and other products in exchange for paper currency, and also because of unalterable opposition to the underlying principles of the Soviet Government. The sugar industry had wholly collapsed, while coal production in the Doretz basin was only one-sixth of the former yield. Russia's rich oil lands were not being exploited because of transportation difficulties.

Professor Ballod believed in the ideals of the Soviet leaders but asserted they had proven themselves wholly incapable of effecting an economic restoration of Russia. Bureaucracy was as bad as it was under the Czar and was on the ascendancy because many persons were being forced by poverty to take governmental jobs.

In the discussion a majority of the Independent leaders expressed themselves as opposed to union with Moscow. Frau Louise Zeitz asserted that the German proletariat would refuse Moscow's guardianship, acceptance of which would mean that the party would become wholly submerged by the Moscow Government, which had no understanding of German conditions.

Georg Ledebour was warmly applauded when he charged the Moscow Government with carrying on "dangerous anti-Socialistic policies" in their own country which showed them unqualified to assume international leadership or dictate terms to others.

OKUMA SAYS JAPAN ASKS A FREE HAND

Her Work in China and Korea Compared to America's in Hawaii and Philippines.

NATIVES BENEFIT, HE SAYS

Tells Congressman of Sixty Years' Effort to Unify Civilization of East and West.

TOKIO, Sept. 5.—Marquis Okuma, former Premier and one of Japan's Elder Statesmen, in receiving the party of visiting Congressmen today and addressing his visitors, asked that Japan be permitted to have a free hand in Korea, where her interventions, he said, were directed toward the betterment of conditions.

Sixty years had elapsed without that unification of the civilizations of the East and the West for which he had constantly striven, said the Marquis, but he was convinced that eventually that hope would materialize.

The immigration question now bristled with difficulties, continued Marquis Okuma, but he was hopeful of an amicable solution because he had faith in the intelligence of the American legislators.

Japan, he pointed out, had acquiesced in the American annexation of Hawaii and the occupation of the Philippines, accepting the explanation that it was for the benefit of the people affected.

Similarly, America should recognize Japan's good intentions in Korea and Siberia, the veteran statesman concluded in addressing the Congressmen.

Eiichi Shibusawa, President of the American-Japanese Association, it was made known today, has been promoted in rank to a Viscountcy.

Why We Need Greater Revenue

ON August 1, 1919, the telephone properties in New York City were returned to the private owners by the United States Government. Since then we have been doing our utmost to restore the service to its former high standard and to meet the unprecedented demands for new service.

The Telephone Company has not been immune from the effect of the high cost of all materials and supplies or from the effect of higher salaries and wages. So long as the present economic conditions prevail, costs will not be materially lower.

Following is a comparison of results of operation in New York City for the month of August, 1919, the first month following the return of the property to private management, and July, 1920, the twelfth month after the return of the property. This shows the effect of restoration and extension work upon our revenue and expenses, including wage increases and wages paid to thousands of additional workers.

	August, 1919	July, 1920	Per cent Increase or Decrease (—)
Revenue—
Exchange	$3,233,851.65	$3,579,682.88	10.7

TOTAL	$2,981,312.13	$4,291,211.99	43.9
Total Net Earnings	$807,971.84	$—73,166.96	—109.1

UNDER the law regulating telephone corporations, this company is entitled to charge rates that will yield reasonable compensation for service rendered. This revenue must be sufficient to pay operating costs, provide for necessary reserve and surplus and produce a fair return upon the value of the property used and useful in the public service.

During the past seven months our net revenue has shown a serious decrease and on the lowest conservative estimate of the value of the telephone property in the City of New York, we have earned less than 2% per annum.

During the month of July we failed to earn our bare operating expenses by over $73,000

BACK TO M'KINLEY.

"Just for a few moments," says The Wheeling Intelligencer, "let us "forget about the League of Nations "* * * and consider what is really "a more important matter to the ma-"jority of the American people. That "is the need of a protective tariff." This is only one of many signs that the Republican managers are uneasy about the way in which the campaign is going. They especially don't like the indications that the enfranchised women will vote heavily for the League. And many Republican strategists are seriously thinking of trying to shift the main issue. Some of them evidently believe that the time has come to fire off the anti-Wilson ammunition which they had so carefully accumulated to be discharged at Mr. McADOO. Hence the sudden booming of The Tribune's guns about the "one-man power," and so on. But the favorite Republican "positions prepared in advance," to which to fall back, after the fashion of defeated military commanders, are those guarded by the tariff barbed wire, taxed with a duty of 60 to 75 per cent.

With fighting behind such protection the old Republican campaigners are perfectly familiar, and they long to drop all these new-fangled offensives on the League, and fight it out on a tariff to exclude foreign goods, if it takes all Summer. It is, to be sure, an absurd thing to do. So obvious is the national folly, at the present juncture, of shutting out the products which are the only form in which Europe can pay the huge debts which she owes to the United States, that the framers of the Republican platform did not dare propose any immediate tariff policy at all. But the power of old associations is strong, and in politics, too, first love will assert itself. We may therefore expect the Republican candidate, brought up as he was in the straitest sect of McKinleyites, to repeat his saying that the tariff will be heard of a great deal before this campaign is over. It cannot endure serious discussion, with the eye on the facts, but it would go well enough with the general cry that we must be for America first, last and all the time, and pounce upon every traitor who declares that we owe allegiance to foreign rulers, or seeks, as Senator HARDING said, to "substitute" another flag for the American.

IS LABOR "IMPRESSED WITH A PUBLIC INTEREST"?

Sporadic strikes lend fresh interest to the question whether the public has any rights which workers are bound to respect. The Kansas Industrial Court law embodies a principle which is new regarding labor, although familiar respecting capital. It is thus expounded by Judge HUGGINS:

> The Legislature did two new things. First, we decreed that food, clothing and fuel are identified with the public interest; second, we decided that labor as well as capital engaged in a public interest is subject to supervision.

No one dissents from this idea regarding capital invested in supplying such public necessaries as light, heat, power, water, with telegraph, telephone or transportation services. The profits of such companies are limited, their rates are fixed and their duties are enlarged by order of public authorities. Labor does not agree that wages and other conditions of employment in public service shall be controlled in a similar manner.

Kansas is well pleased with her new policy. But is it so new? The other day there was published the translation of clay tablets, dated 3000 B. C., embodying ancient laws. Some of them were quite like the laws to meet the rent troubles of the present day. Laws for the regulation of labor were customary in the expiring days of feudalism. There were several Statutes of Laborers passed in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, but they failed in proportion to their severity. But while the conditions of employment have improved, the methods of organized labor have deteriorated. Labor is now often as inhumane toward the public as the public ever was toward labor. The question now is not of oppressing labor or enlarging employers' profits, but of protecting citizens toward whom labor sometimes is as ruthless as if they were enemies.

There is perhaps need for a more vigorous repression of disorder by the police power. But the analogy between the regulation of labor and corporations is incomplete. Labor has no franchise, and the regulation of public utilities is based largely on grants by the State. Moreover, the regulation of employment has much likeness to the regulation of prices, and that is almost always a failure. It would not be possible to regulate wages and hours in the public interest without fixing prices. And why stop with the industries named in the Kansas law? As soon as some prices are fixed there is a demand for the fixing of prices for all similar or competitive goods. One union demands another union's wage, unions under different conditions of cost of living demand a uniform wage, and thus injustice is done in the name of equality and equity.

Labor is often aggressive, encroaching, unreasonable, while using the language of benevolence and humanity. But such methods against the public are not an excuse for retaliation in kind. The public must be patient. In clear cases of wrong and outrage it is necessary to use force, whatever force required, and against whomsoever it may be necessary to use it. Capital has been taught that lesson, and labor should learn it. In time labor will appreciate that strikes of a certain sort damage labor even when won. It is as necessary for unions as for individuals to have a character and live up to it.

WEARYING THE COUNTRY.

From Democratic Florida comes an opinion of the shindy about campaign expenses that is probably shared by the majority of the voters of both parties. The Jacksonville Times-Union says:

> We regret very much that the Presidential campaign has degenerated into the worst mud-slinging contest on record. No matter who is responsible for it, nobody will gain by it and the people will be embittered and disgusted.

The Republican Washington Star looks at this interchange of charges and amenities in the same way:

> The fuss about which side has the more money, and whether that side has been perfectly frank about its riches, is wearisome in its present stage, which promises to remain the permanent stage throughout the discussion.

The public knows that both parties need large funds, take all they can get, and that each side is accustomed to charge its opponents with corruption. The whole matter strikes most people as insincere. If violations of the law, if promises of office or political action in consideration of subscriptions are proved presumptively, the offenders should be prosecuted, and if guilty punished. A Senate committee of Democrats and Republicans may be trusted to hunt evidence sedulously. The people know perfectly well that the absolutely necessary expenses of a political campaign in forty-eight States must amount to a big sum, and that a 1920 dollar is not more than half of a dollar in 1916.

Both sides, and particularly the Democrats, whose campaign chest is usually lean compared with the Republican, may find it hard to raise money if the size of campaign funds is to be regarded as the great question of the election. That, of course, it cannot be. The Treaty of Versailles and the League of Nations, the reform and reduction of taxation, national economy, the cost of living, the necessity of increasing production, of efficient labor, of better relations between capital and labor—cardinal policies, national and international—are in the minds of the people. They are capital questions of general and vital import to every citizen. Upon them wise candidates and campaign speakers will insist and enlarge constantly.

POLISH ASPIRATIONS.

Russians in Washington, and some officials of the State Department, hope that the President will ask the Polish Government to make a formal promise to "respect the territorial integrity of Russia"—that is, to deny any hope of annexing territories east of the Peace Conference frontier. It is felt that the Polish armies may quite legitimately go beyond that frontier if the course of the fighting makes it advisable, but that frank relinquishment of any desire to make permanent annexations would have a good effect in preventing the Bolsheviki from appearing any longer as the defenders of Russian unity.

There is a good deal in this view as things stand at present. It would be hard to say that either Poland or Russia had a legitimate claim on the territories between the frontier of 1772 and that assigned in 1919; each nation had a claim which it regarded as legitimate, and determination of the abstract justice of either would be an appalling task. But there is a sounder reason than this, from the point of view of Polish interest. Poland is not strong enough to hold the frontier of 1772. PILSUDSKI's effort of last Spring was inspired by an excellent intention, but Polish resources were not adequate. To prolong a war against a greatly superior enemy in the hope of such acquisitions would be putting entirely too much hope on the consequences of recent victory.

But the latest Polish notes on the subject, while somewhat ambiguous, do not justify the assumption that the Poles still have such hopes. Doubtless they want as much of the disputed territory as they can get, and they do not want to make promises while peace negotiations are going on which might hamper their delegates. But there is a party of moderate men who are unwilling to risk the life of the nation in a new attempt to carry out the grandiose plans which PILSUDSKI apparently still entertains. The Peace Conference, by agreement, is to be removed to the neutral territory of Latvia. The Bolsheviki have shown an appreciation of facts in moderating their demands when the fortune of war turned against them, and it is not impossible that peace may be speedily signed at Riga.

Meanwhile the Poles and Lithuanians are quarreling again over the old question, Which is to have Vilna? There, again, each has a claim which it considers just—the Lithuanian, perhaps, is somewhat better. To outsiders it seems that for both Poland and Lithuania good relations in the face of the common Russian and German dangers are considerably more important than the possession of any town or province.

FRIENDS OF A GERMAN PEACE.

It was inevitable that the persons who steadily sympathized with Germany throughout the war and since the armistice; who prefer her claims and interests to those of the United States; who are really for Germany against the world; and some of whom went near or beyond the point of sedition—it was inevitable that these German Loyalists should now be eager for the election of Mr. HARDING and should be organizing for that purpose in this region and elsewhere.

Mr. HARDING is opposed to the existing League of Nations. He proposes a separate peace with Germany. For other reasons and from other motives than his, the Germanophils approve heartily both these positions. So long as American abstention from the League continues, so long will Germany be powerfully stimulated to persist in her sullen obstruction of the execution of the Treaty of Versailles. Openly and secretly she will seek to postpone, evade, annul its terms and settlements and her engagements under it. She watches with cynical amusement and expectation her old adversaries here as they play her game and that of her partisans. Without the membership of the most powerful nation, the League is maimed, imperfect. France is the one vigilant watchman of the Germans, the special object of their present aversion; and France can't do everything always. Differences and jealousies between France and Great Britain stir German hope. Without American participation will the League be more than a phantom? May not an undiminished, armed and triumphant Germany be possible again?

The talk of some shadowy reinstatement and enlargement of the futile machine of The Hague, that old joke to the Germans—how it must tickle them! They want the League of Nations to break down. Mr. HARDING has no use for it. Of course, the Germanophils here are for the candidate whose policy, however unconsciously, is genuinely German.

Of course, too, they cling rapturously to the candidate who proposes a German peace; for a separate peace with Germany must be made on German terms and foster German interests.

These American friends of Mr. HARDING and Germany are rather fanatical than numerous or important; but their public adhesion to Mr. HARDING must be embarrassing. They should have remained silent and obscure. Instead, they have made painfully plain the corollaries, the implications and the consequences of his international program.

WOMEN AT OXFORD.

An Oxonian writing to The London Times recently remarked that Oxford during the last few months has been occupied in unlocking its degrees, its convocation and its congregation, its boards and its delegacies, in favor of women students and women teachers. It has been doing this despite the fact that it soon will not be able to admit all the male students sent up to it for entrance from the lower schools. Heretofore only certain restricted privileges, and these only in recent years, have been open to the ever-increasing number of women applicants; now the gates are almost literally thrown wide open at Oxford, and probably will soon be at Cambridge also, and then these oldest and most famous English seats of learning, whose privileges, opportunities, distinctions and honors have been exclusively reserved for men, will place them before women also.

But there are many misgivings and mental reservations behind this change at Oxford in times which have seen a woman enter Parliament and in America all distinctions as to sex in suffrage swept away by a new amendment to the Constitution. Times are changing, and changing so rapidly that he is a bold prophet who dares to predict the outcome.

The problem at Oxford is not altogether one of harmonizing its many-centuried traditions with the new order of things, difficult and possibly impractical as that may be. There are the financial and physical problems to be solved in a country where big donations to the cause of education are not the rule, as in America. There has been a great increase in the number of men who desire to enter Oxford or Cambridge, and the number of these is likely to be very greatly increased in the immediate future. Before the great war German universities attracted many students, not only from America, but from England also; but, in consequence of the general disfavor into which all things German have fallen, it is inevitable that the general drift of all such students will now be to the two leading universities of England, and some to Paris, instead of to Berlin, Leipsic, Göttingen and Heidelberg. Again, with the secondary schools in England crowded as they never have been before, a greater number of students than heretofore will wish to go to Oxford or Cambridge. When it is remembered that the number of women students at Oxford, which was below 400 four years ago, has already increased to 600 the last year, with probably 1,000 or more demanding entrance this year, it will be seen that, unless large funds are immediately supplied, new buildings erected and new equipment provided, Oxford will be unable to provide for this growing attendance, which will overcrowd its libraries, its laboratories and its lecture halls.

Perhaps to those most familiar with Oxford traditions and culture the greatest objection to the new order of things will be the impossibility of preserving the old traditions, and that Oxford, by the force of sheer circumstances, will lose much of the distinction that it heretofore has enjoyed. Were the orchis, for example, as common as the dandelion or the daisy or other wayside flower, it would be no higher prized than they.

Joined to all the preceding doubts and misgivings, most of which from time to time find expression in English papers and magazines, there is the still greater doubt as to how coeducation may work out in institutions whose traditions, centuries old, are purely masculine. To all of these misgivings that have recently been expressed time alone can provide the answer. The new era of women has come and man must adapt himself to it as best he may, hoping that eventually it may lead to something higher and better than he now dreams of.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

This Rescue Without a New Feature.

It is a curious, surprising, disappointing and somewhat humiliating fact that in the rescue of the men in submarine S-5 there was brought into action none of the new and wonderful inventions that are supposed to make this age so far ahead of all its predecessors in human history. On the contrary, the men were saved exactly as they would have been in what we are inclined to think the dark and ignorant days of fifty or a hundred years ago—saved, that is, first, by the courage displayed and the discipline maintained by the men on board the disabled craft.

When they found themselves imprisoned in their narrow steel walls and choking because of the chlorine fumes given off by their useless batteries, there was excuse for a wild panic of the kind so often produced by the close approach of death, apparently inevitable and in most terrible form. But of panic or confusion there seems to have been no trace. They all knew the exact nature of the danger they were in, but the fears which, as sensible men, they doubtless felt they kept in perfect control, and set about doing, quietly and calmly, what little they could to prolong their lease of life and to attract possible attention to their plight by raising the simplest and oldest signal of distress known to sailors in a desperate strait.

The fluttering white flag—some of the accounts say it was a shirt—was seen in exactly the old way by the lookout man on the United States Shipping Board steamer Alanthus. Her officers soon had lines fast to the half-submerged wreck, but lack of tools for cutting steel prevented them from doing anything more than stand by until more efficient aid chanced to arrive. It came in the shape of the Panama liner General Goethals, better equipped, and able to send ashore by wireless news of what had happened; but the actual work of releasing the smothering prisoners took hours of hard work, not with some wonderful modern device, but with the old-fashioned hand ratchet and drill.

Old Virtues Show No Decline.

Particularly surprising is the small and wholly unessential part played in the rescue of the submarine's crew by the wireless telegraph. The Alanthus had an instrument of the kind on board, but it could "send" only twenty miles—and there was no operator! The General Goethals had a good wireless equipment and the man to use it, but she lacked what, in the circumstances, would have been far more desirable—the acetylene torch to which steel yields almost as if it were butter. With it the prisoners could have been released in fifteen minutes instead of in six hours, and speed might well have made for them the difference between life and death.

"All's well that ends well" is not always true, nor ever wholly true, but from this episode there is to be drawn the satisfactory conclusion—the highly important and reassuring conclusion—that the men of the sea still live up to the good old traditions of the sea, still forget every other consideration when lives imperiled by the sea are at stake, and are as ready as ever to risk their own lives in attempts at rescue.

Disturbers of Minds Unpopular.

Dr. EINSTEIN, it seems, though Berlin has turned cold to him, will not lack a welcome elsewhere or appreciation and employment worthy of his genius. The Swiss have made to him the formal offer of a professorial position in either Berne or Zurich, and it is reported that many universities in Europe outside of Germany, and in America, would be glad to have the great man's services and to profit from the glory he would confer on any faculty.

The reports are easily credible—as easily as are those as to the several reasons why the Berliners think, or think they think, his room preferable to his company. What Professor ROBINSON calls their "good" reason is that he sought fame for himself instead of Germany—a reason made certainly not the "real" one by the very notable modesty with which the doctor has announced and discussed his remarkable discoveries in physics.

But while in any civilized country a man of Dr. EINSTEIN's character and achievements would be an honored resident, with citizenship for the asking, nowhere will he escape the sort of antagonism that most human beings feel for him who says that what they long and firmly have believed is wrong. This antagonism will be particularly strong in the case of Dr. EINSTEIN, for he has explicitly admitted, or at any rate others, uncontradicted, have proclaimed for him, that his disproof of the old beliefs, and his demonstration of the soundness of the substitutes he offers, are incomprehensible to any except a small and rather haughty minority of Superior Persons.

There is—must be—something irritating in that, and though Dr. EINSTEIN cannot be blamed for it, justly, he cannot hope anywhere wholly to escape the predestined lot of him whose claim to attention is the assertion that everybody else has been mistaken. NEWTON, with whose name that of Dr. EINSTEIN has been so often coupled, was fortunate in that his magnificent generalization overturned nothing and therefore offended nobody.

Municipal Ferries as Highways.

One of THE TIMES correspondents declares that, as it has called the municipal ferries "highways to Manhattan," it should not complain that the fares collected do not pay the cost of operation—that their operation is a losing business. The loss, as business, he admits, but the remedy, he insists, is not the raising of the fares, but the abolition of them altogether, and the counting of the cost of operation as highway maintenance, just as we do that of other highways, and especially that of the more expensive bridges and tunnels.

The contention is not without force, but complaint about the municipal ferries has been based, not so much on the fact that they cost the city money, as that, on account of certain familiar peculiarities of municipal operation, their cost is unnecessarily high.

As for making the ferries free, like bridges and tunnels, the argument for doing that is no better, or at any rate it is not much better, than is the argument in favor of having the city run all its street cars and letting everybody ride for nothing. That, too, has been proposed in seeming seriousness, and fairly plausible defense of the plan can be made, but as yet the preference everywhere seems to be for making those pay who ride—a preference that has not extended to the maintenance of the public schools.

Hylan's Message to Lloyd George.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As an old citizen of New York I write to protest most vehemently against Mayor Hylan's assertion that he is authorized to speak for all New York's citizens, in urging Great Britain's Premier to release from prison the Mayor of Cork, who is voluntarily starving himself to death.

Because our Mayor is of Irish descent, he has no authority to compel all New York's citizens to agree with his point of view in regard to a matter which concerns only Great Britain and Ireland. If the Irish could agree among themselves as to the form of government they want, Great Britain could no doubt have solved the Irish problem long ago. The Mayor of Cork did not represent the opinions of all the people there, but of some of the people only.

I, for one, consider Mayor Hylan's statement that he spoke for all New York citizens an assumption of prerogative entirely unauthorized.

ONE WHO DID NOT VOTE FOR MAYOR HYLAN.

THE MASTER-WORKMAN SPEAKS.

O Earth, Earth, Earth!
The work of My hands and the dream of My soul,
Part of My being and fruit of My will,
Must I plead with you still
For the truth of My vision, the worth of My goal?

Look forth from your heights: let your eyes pierce the murk
Of horror and ghastliest death—all the work
Of restless and selfish desire, of the pride
Which poisons a man and a nation; the tide
Which runs through the land till its fever inflames
Each life with unhallowed and envious aims.

'Tis I who created, and I who endowed
All men with My life! Long ago was I proud
That the faces of men were upturned to My light,
Where Chaos had ruled, and shuddering Night!
Of one blood I created: shall My creatures deride
The substance of being? Not Myself can divide
What once I have formed by unchanging decree.
One blood gives you life, and that life flows from Me!

O Earth, Earth, Earth!
Are My sons and My daughters too many for peace?
Will jealousy, malice and hate never cease
Till I tire of My patience, lift floodgates of Doom,
Swing Earth back to Chaos and primeval gloom?

In love I created—sought love in return;
Gave earth to your keeping that so you might learn
To draw from one source all your common supply—
Together to work and together to dream—
Together to follow that mystical Gleam
Implanted at birth in the lowliest soul,
Implanted by Me that men yearn toward My goal!

O Earth, share My vision! Blot out the red past!
Let races and languages join in their might—
Sink self in the search for the Kingdom of Right,
Where each may be worthy, none need be outcast—
'Tis I Who created—for love, not for hate:
Look up, O My children, and learn to be great!

MARION, Ohio, Sept. 5.—Fully agreeing with Senator Harding as to the wisdom of the statement which he recently made, that: "I desire to deal with all our national problems, not in the twilight of generalities, but in the sunlight of definition and forward marching," but having personally been unable from a perusal of his various speeches to gain this clear insight of definition as to his policies, I submitted to him these questions, the frank answer to which would enable the American people to clearly understand what they might expect from Harding as President:

"With each member of the Council of the League possessing the veto power, how could the Council compel the Government of the United States to take a step in opposition to the judgment of our Government?"

"You say that, if The Hague tribunal is not strong enough, 'very well, then, let's put teeth into it.' If you put teeth into it, would you not be giving to the tribunal the force which you object to in the covenant of the League?"

"Can there be an effective League of Nations, association of the nations, or international court without 'teeth'?"

"You say, 'I believe humanity would welcome the creation of an international association for conference and a world court whose verdicts upon justiciable questions this country, in common with all nations, would be willing and able to uphold.' Is it not agreed by practically all who have studied the subject that the main cause of war is non-justiciable questions?"

"The League purports to provide a way for conference and a verdict on non-justiciable questions. How could this be done by an international court of justice; that is, The Hague tribunal modified along the line you propose?"

Asked About Reservations.

"Are there any reservations or interpretations which would make the present covenant of the League of Nations satisfactory to the Republican Party?"

"What are the present indications that the voters of the United States object to the present covenant with reservations?"

"What is the specific answer to the charge that the Republican candidate, having voted for the Lodge reservations, now favors a different disposition of the treaty question?"

"The treaty, having been returned to the President by the Senate, will be in your hands, if you are elected. What will you do with it?"

"What did you mean by the expression that under your Administration the foreign policy of the United States would be 'reversed'?"

"What will be your attitude toward Mexico? You comment on the charge of your opponents that your election is likely to result in intervention."

"What do you think of the proposal that members of the Cabinet should be announced before election?"

"In what respect does the Republican program as to taxation differ from that of the Democrats?"

"What definite means are proposed by the Republicans for lowering the cost of living?"

"What are the most important Federal Administration reforms contemplated if the Republicans come into power?"

"Will the Republicans, if victorious, continue what has become a habit with both parties—acquiescence to labor union interference in Governmental affairs and legislation?"

Will Negotiate New Covenant.

"My position respecting the League of Nations is naturally different now, as a candidate, from what it was when I was considering it as a member of the Senate. At that time, as a member of the Senate, I could only consider what the President placed before us. We had no choice about the matter, except to deal with the covenant which he brought home from Paris.

"If I am elected to the Presidency I will become the negotiating agent of the United States, and will have the authority to undertake the negotiation of a new covenant, which I would promptly proceed to do, after first advising with the Senate, which has the Constitutional power to make any treaty effective. Instead of either going abroad or sending commissioners abroad to pursue a course in violation of the judgment of the Senate, and presumably the sentiment of the country, I would start with the reasonable assurance that any covenant negotiated would receive the sanction of that body.

"I have tried to make it clear that I want America to play its part in creating some new association of nations which shall be concerned with the promotion and preservation of peace. I do not care specifically about The Hague tribunal, any more than I do about the League promulgated at Paris. Nobody disputes that The Hague tribunal has thus far been ineffectual. As a matter of justice to those who formulated its plans, it ought to be said that Germany rendered it more or less non-operative by its failure to join in making it an international institution entirely worth while. I think that out of The Hague negotiation would have come a court of international justice, which might have been made operative long before this, had it not been rejected by the present Administration when it came into power.

Suggests International Conference.

"I hold the international court to be a creation for one thing, namely, a decision on what we call justiciable questions. It is true, however, that causes which most frequently lead to war do not come under that title. For the consideration of such causes as are not justiciable I would suggest an association, or a society, or a League of Nations—it little matters what we call it—which shall constitute an international conference for the free and open discussion of international questions which may lead to conflict. It is not possible to say that this conference always is going to prove effective in the prevention of conflict, but such an association could bring to the world a complete revelation of the questions which are menacing peace and readily bring to bear the opinion of mankind against an offending nation in case it refused to yield to the recommendations of the conference.

"In other words, this co-operative effort of nations to maintain peace and foster friendly relationships could bring nations into understanding or let the world know the reason why, and no one can doubt the effect of world public opinion when based on such an endeavor to reach understanding.

"I have no mere partisan prejudices relating to the league negotiated by President Wilson. I said in the Senate, and I cling to the opinion now, that the great mistake was in hurrying to Europe (not in the going itself) to create a League of Nations upon which to found the Treaty of Peace, when the practical thing was to work out the Treaty of Peace and speed the world's return to normal conditions, and then immediately apply the consciences of war-worn nations and war-worn peoples to the creation of a league in the fullness of reflection, and have it represent the aspirations of all mankind. Thus might have come a practical effort to establish a new order.

"We know now, what we did not know when the treaty was before the Senate, that the spokesmen for America thrust upon the nations of Europe the provisions of Article X., so frequently described as the 'heart of the league.' I quite agree that there can be no league which approximates the character of super-government without something akin to Article X. It is impossible to have a council directing the decisions of nations and determining upon their relationship unless there is an armed force to back up the decrees of the council.

Believes Super-Government Is Sought.

"I have never been able to escape the impression that super-government was the thing aimed at, and I am sure that such a creation is a thing to which America will never consent.

"One cannot have much patience with the contention that America will never be endangered because each member of the council of the league has the veto power. If one member of the council of the league has the veto power, if one member of the council can forestall action on the part of that body, it is evident it will never be able to exercise any authority. Moreover, if the cause of America itself were concerned, its member would not have any veto power.

"When the President gave us his first information concerning the league he very frankly said that manifestly we must not only hold to the majority judgment of the council but we must be prompt in the acceptance of its orders, lest we put ourselves in opposition to that which the President has pronounced 'the opinion of mankind.' I hold that it is better to be protected by American consciences in determining our obligations to humanity and the world.

"The President said: 'It associates the free Governments of the world in a permanent League in which they are pledged to use their united power to maintain peace by maintaining right and justice.'

"Further, that the member Governments undertake to be responsible to the opinion of mankind in the execution of their task by accepting the direction of the League of Nations.

"In the President's address to the Senate on July 10, speaking of the League of Nations, he said: 'It provided a means of common counsel which all were pledged to accept; a common authority whose decisions would be recognized as decisions which all must respect.'

"In spite of all the fine arguments about it, the simple truth about the League covenant is that either it constitutes world government with power to enforce its decisions or it is going to prove the colossal disappointment of the ages. If it is only an international organization for conference, without power to act unless every member has agreed, then it is only a debating society designed to portray an international situation to all the world.

"If this be true, I think we will be dealing with ourselves and the world more fairly if we understand that fact from the beginning. No one has ever objected to a plan to create an association which is designed to turn the light of worldwide understanding upon threatening relationships and difficult questions and attempt to exhaust the influence of the world's public opinion upon threatening controversies.

Proposes "a Rational Substitute."

"All this, of course, has nothing to do with the international court. I am talking now about the League as an international political body on the one hand and proposing a rational substitute for it, or an amended form of it, which may reasonably undertake all that it is now said the League is intended to do, and have the purpose of the revised covenant understood from the beginning. No nation wants to surrender its rights of nationality, and no strong nation desires to submit its course to a decision of foreign political powers. Especially must this be true when the decision relates to so serious a matter as going to war.

"We have now fully come to understand that the Versailles League is wholly dependent upon the man power back of the influence of America to make it a workable body. It would be a rare nation in Europe, or elsewhere, which would not wish to be on terms of alliance with this republic. It is especially easy to understand why they wish America to back up the League after the President insisted upon placing Article X. therein. It makes no difference as to the intent of power of Article X. to say that America could not be drawn into a European war without the consent of Congress.

"We all understand that a treaty obligation supersedes all other law, and becomes the first obligation of the land. Such ought to be the case. America always means to hold its contracts as solemn obligations. It has always been held that Congress in both branches must, in reality, consent to every treaty involving appropriations of funds. Such appropriations must originate in the House, though it is never consulted either in the making or the ratification of a treaty. The House would violate no compact of its own if, in the case of a treaty involving expenditure, it declined to make the appropriation. As a matter of fact, there is no instance in the history of the republic where the House of Congress has failed to do its part in carrying out a compact made by the President and the Senate, and we would not have it otherwise. We want every American contract faithfully kept.

"If we enter into the League of Nations and consent to the provisions of Article X., and the majority of nations as represented in the Council think it to be the duty of the League to use armed force, we would be morally bound to respond with men and treasure. The President has already said to us officially that a moral obligation is the most binding one that we know.

Wants Same Terms for Other Nations.

"The reservation program of the Senate was designed to do more than interpret the provisions of the reservations. These reservations were designed to limit our contract so that we could feel we were safeguarding American independence of action. That was the best we could do under the circumstances, but I really do not think that America, in good sportsmanship, should insist upon terms upon which America enters the League which did not grant the same terms to other member nations. If there were not any other reason, I should be very anxious to amend the covenant so that in whatever relationship we contracted there would not be more required of other nations than we were content to assume for ourselves. I do not think any one will question the fairness of this proposition, but the practical wisdom of it has been questioned by those who say it is impracticable to revise or amend the covenant.

"The statesmen of Great Britain have frankly said that revision or amendment is not only needed, but is to be commended. It does not seem to me that there will be difficulty in securing the consent of the twenty-eight States which have already signed to any well-thought-out program—the judgment of greater reflection—to which the principal allied and associated powers are ready to commit themselves. Any other suggestion is a conviction that the five great powers have lost their leadership in the world.

"We have been told that some of the South American States entered the League with great misgivings, and did so only on the part of great insistence. I think—indeed, I know—that the nations of the world are going to welcome a revision and are eager to find themselves in a new association, in which we ourselves are chiefly concerned, to promote world understanding rather than world government, and the right of justice rather than force.

Sees World Waiting for New Compact.

"I have already said that in the Senate we were dealing with a problem which we could not dispose of in any other way except under the reservation plan or reject altogether. I think it is practical and easy to negotiate a new or amended compact. The world is waiting for it, and is eager for America to assume leadership.

"Undoubtedly there is much that is good in the Covenant of Versailles. I have no desire to fling that all aside. I said as much in the Senate; that under the reservation program we were still retaining the framework of a position in the international association which might, under deliberation and fuller reflection, serve as a workable agency to further the maintenance of peace. It does not in any way change my estimate of the good in it to recognize that its ratification was prevented by the impracticable and un-American proposals therein. Perhaps the League as negotiated was as good as we could have expected in view of the manner and haste in which it was negotiated. The greatest alteration of all time in international relationship is not to be worked out in a week, or a month, or a year, but ought to command the deliberate attention of the best minds of the greatest men of the time.

"I am not disparaging in any way, by thought or suggestion, the high standard or the capacity of the members of the Paris conference. I only know that the League formation was unduly hurried, with the thought of founding peace upon it, and the whole program would have been more practical if completely reversed. We knew at the time that the negotiation did not represent the sentiment of America. We know now that Article X. was thrust into the covenant contrary to the judgment of the statesmen of Europe.

"There is a more dependable conscience throughout the world today than there was in the period which immediately followed the war. Humanity had not quite recovered itself then. It did not have the poise which graces a great decision, and the League covenant was marred in haste when it should have been strengthened in ample reflection. We have had some of that reflection now, and the reaction is revealed in the change of American sentiment and that of the world.

Favors International Co-operation.

"I am in favor of international co-operation and conference.

"I know America wants to play her full part. I know we have no selfish ends to serve, and, best of all, we have no newly acquired territory to protect or to ask any other nations to help us in protecting it. Ours was the one great unselfish part in the World War, and I want America to be just as unselfish in doing its part to further the world's peace. I am sure we can do it.

"No man can tell today the situation which will confront the United States six or seven months hence. If those who speak for the President and for the Democratic nominee really want the League covenant ratified with reservations—though twice such an opportunity was declined by direction of the President—it is possible that the ratification may be brought about long before the new administration comes into power.

"Personally, I do not think that the President wants ratifications with reservations any more today than he did three or ten months ago; and, since the Democratic nominee has announced his being in perfect accord with the President, it is fair to assume that he does not desire any more than the President does its ratification with reservations. The issue has long since been plainly marked. The President, who has spoken for his party and still speaks for it as far as foreign relations are concerned, insisted from the beginning that we must accept his negotiations without change in any form. I never could consent to that. Here the two parties are in complete and abiding opposition.

"I want those who believe in a new association of nations to feel that the cause is by no means flung aside. I want to approach it with freedom, with eagerness to serve the world, but with a determination that no compact will ever be made to involve this republic in war at the behest of a conference of foreign powers. More than that, I believe in the United States of America rather than in a super-government of the world.

"I have already said publicly what my attitude will be toward Mexico—renewed assurance of hearty readiness in extending a helping hand, but it all must be founded on the absolute assurance that Mexico is going to protect the rights of Americans, the lives and property of Americans lawfully located in that republic.

"I do not think well of announcing a Cabinet prior to election. It is not a practical thing under our political system. When a man enters the Presidency ambitious to create the strongest administration possible, which I certainly hope to do, I want to be free to choose without pre-election embarrassment.

Discusses Tax Problems.

"I cannot satisfactorily discuss the difference between the taxation programs of the two parties. No one can understand the program of the Democratic Party. The nominee has said that he favors the repeal of the excess profits taxes and to substitute therefor a tax on business, but insists it must not be an offending consumers' tax. I do not understand how we can have a general tax on business without it being a consumers' tax. Nothing more or less. I am not ready to make a declaration for a consumers' tax.

"Frequently I have found the excess profits tax unfair. I think it unjust and probably unnecessary from this time on. Moreover, it is not only a discouragement to business, but it is one of the sources of the high cost of living. We shall work out its early repeal. I wish I were prepared to specify the thing to be taken as a substitute. Frankly, I do not know and would not undertake to pass judgment or offer a recommendation until we can be properly informed as to the necessities of the Government and the relation of our tax income to our obligations.

"There is one difference I am sure about, and that is that a Republican administration can and will cut the expenses of Government, and will so do to such an extent that in all probability we can bring about the relief of a great part of the excessive burdens imposed by the war.

"No man can tell what he is going to do to reduce the cost of living. I have suggested some of the things that will help to reduce it.

"One is deliberate deflation. Another is reduced cost of Government. Another is an appeal to the American people to put an end to extravagance. Another is to inspire a higher efficiency of production, so that we may still maintain the highest standards of wages and reduce producing costs. Another is to bring consumer and producer closer together. Another is to make a drive at the profiteering in big operations. Rather than stage spectacular drives against petty offenders who really do not have much influence. To restore the efficiency of transportation is going to prove helpful. Finally, cost of living is affected as much by wasteful distribution as by constricted production; indeed, I consider that distribution presents the greater world problem.

A COURT FOR ADOLESCENTS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In this morning's paper I read with interest a letter written by Judge Wilkin of the Children's Court. As organizer and erstwhile Managing Director of the Jewish Big Brothers' Association, I am deeply interested in the question. Some time ago I conducted an experimental bureau for information and advice to parents, and as a result of my investigation I found that many children, or, rather, adolescents between the ages of 16 and 18, need the attention of a court. I fully agree with Judge Wilkin's view that under the present condition it may be advisable to put an additional burden of caring for them upon the Children's Court. But why invoke the aid of the Legislature when, to my mind, the remedy is at hand?

In this age of specialization we have the Domestic Relations Court, the Traffic Court, the Women's Court, all a part of the Magistrates' Court system. Why not set aside a Magistrates' Court for the hearing of the cases of incorrigible boys and girls over the age of 16?

With a competent staff of probation officers, much may be accomplished along preventive lines, and whatever expense or trouble may be entailed will be more than compensated by the fact that many of the youths when properly taken care of at the beginning of a life of crime may be guided back into channels of useful citizenship.

TO FIGHT SUFFRAGE ON TENNESSEE NOTE

Fairchild Says Constitutional League Attacks Validity of Colby's Proclamation.

DEMANDS RATIFYING TEXT

Tennessee Governor's Message, He Says, Was Not Notice of the Result.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Through its President, Charles S. Fairchild, who was Secretary of the Treasury under Cleveland, the American Constitutional League issued a statement today asserting that the first Tennessee certificate, on which Secretary Colby's proclamation of ratification of the woman suffrage amendment was based, was not an official notice of ratification.

The league, which has brought suit against Secretary Colby, challenging the validity of his action in proclaiming ratification of the amendment, contends that the certificate which Secretary Colby received from Governor Roberts of Tennessee was "merely a certified copy of the proceedings, including those of the quorumless Tennessee House on Aug. 21, which have since been expunged from the House records," and that a "second certificate was sent to Secretary Colby by Governor Roberts on Saturday, when it was published after being given out by the antis at Nashville."

The statement issued by the league tonight charges that the State Department has concealed the text and nature of the first document, on which Secretary Colby's proclamation was based, and that the Department has refused to allow the Constitutional League's lawyers to examine, photograph or make copies of it. It is also asserted that court action will be taken if necessary by the league to obtain certified copies and "lift the veil of secrecy concerning the first certificate."

The league contends that the proclamation itself, as issued by Secretary Colby, has no bearing on the validity of the amendment, as dealt with by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals in the case of Widamann against Colby on May 3, 1920, and that Secretary Colby "has no more to do with the validity of a Federal amendment than any other administration clerk."

Four Ways to Supreme Court.

Announcement was authorized by the league that four methods would be used by the anti-suffragists in an effort to expedite the question of the validity of the suffrage amendment to the United States Supreme Court before the November elections are held.

"The Fairchild-Colby case," said the statement issued by the League tonight, "now in the District Court of Appeals, does not cover the recent Tennessee tangle, and is therefore regarded as the least important.

"The other cases will be brought, first, by appeal of the Tennessee antis to the Tennessee Supreme Court, which meets Sept. 20, from which the case may be appealed or certified at once to the United States Supreme Court.

"Second, by injunction and mandamus proceedings against election officials to keep women from voting, thus stimulating suffragists themselves to help expedite the case to the highest court before election.

"Third, by asking one of the Attorney Generals of the thirteen States which have not ratified to refuse women the vote and bring the case into the United States Supreme Court at once on original jurisdiction in the name of a sovereign State, the only way such a case can be started before the highest court.

"The league lawyers believe that any of these three methods will expedite the case more than the Fairchild-Colby appeal, but the latter will also be pushed as much as possible.

Charge Colby "Conceals" Text.

"The publication Saturday of the second certificate from Governor Roberts of Tennessee to Secretary Colby raises several important questions which throw grave suspicion on the first certificate.

"First, why has it been concealed, and published neither by the State Department nor by the suffragists?

"Second, why was it passed upon in the dead of night (3 A. M.) by Mr. Nielson, and why has it not received the formal approval even of Attorney General Palmer or Solicitor General Frierson in the light of day?

"Third, why is the State Department, which has allowed the proclamation itself to be photographed and published throughout the country, refusing or evading all requests for permission to examine or copy the alleged document on which proclamation was based?"

In a lengthy document, the League goes on to charge "that the so-called first certificate was not an official notice of ratification," that Representative Frank Hall "emphatically denied it again on the floor of the Tennessee House last Wednesday," and that "Speaker Walker warned Colby even before he had received this first certificate that it was not a ratification."

The Tennessee Speaker, it is remarked, called Secretary Colby's attention, both by long distance telephone and by telegraph, to the decision of Judge Lurton in regard to reconsideration and to the Haire vs. Rice case (204 U. S. 291).

Calls It "Scrap of Paper."

The League complains that the State Department has refused to let its constitutional lawyers examine the text of the disputed first document, which it calls a "scrap of paper."

According to the League's statement, it has sought the opinion of lawyers, such as Hannis Taylor, William L. Marbury, Everett P. Wheeler, John J. Vertress, Judge Joseph C. Higgins, Judge R. N. Tillman, Judge John R. Tyson, Judge Oscar Leser.

"The Secretary's proclamation is not worth the paper it is written on," it is asserted, in conclusion.

"We belive the proclamation was issued mostly for political effect on the remaining States, unless it was part of a conspiracy to scramble and confuse the coming election to such an extent that the United States Supreme Court would have to accept the amendment.

"In any case, the Secretary of State has no more to do with the validity of a Federal amendment than any other administration clerk, as decided in Widemann vs. Colby on May 3, 1920, and we will contest it on every possible ground."

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 5.—"That is simply propaganda," said Governor Roberts late tonight, in answer to the statement of the American Constitutional League in Washington, that his certification of the ratification of the Nineteenth Amendment by the Tennessee Legislature was not an official notice, but merely a certified copy of the proceedings of the Legislature. He added: "My only reply to the statement is that the certification by me of the Legislature's action was an official notice of ratification or as much so as the Attorney General of the State and I could make it."

GLAND INJECTIONS FOR CANCER NOT NEW

Experiments Similar to Those Conducted in Paris Made Here Years Ago.

DR. GWYER FIRST IN FIELD

Treatment Described as a New Discovery Also Used at the Crocker Institute.

New York physicians and surgeons, particularly those who specialize in the treatment of cancer, were deeply interested yesterday in the cable message from Paris to THE NEW YORK TIMES telling of the success achieved by Russian scientists at the Pasteur Institute in treating the disease. In the absence of a technical treatise on the results, New York physicians declined to be quoted, but all admitted the existence of large possibilities. It was learned that similar investigations by those who were approached are being conducted in this city and have been for a number of years with varying results.

One of the leading authorities on the treatment of cancer told a TIMES reporter that as long ago as fifteen or twenty years, Dr. Frederick Gwyer conducted extensive investigations along these lines and had very favorable results and that in no case was it absolutely shown that the method of treatment was a failure. Dr. Gwyer, it was said, wrote a number of valuable treatises on the subject, and for a time much interest was shown in his investigations. Dr. Gwyer, who is now Superintendent of the Lincoln Hospital, Concord Avenue and 141st Street, was communicated with by telephone last night. He said that he had seen the Paris message in THE TIMES, but declined to go into a discussion of the subject, saying that he had not been actively connected with cancer research work in the last ten years. He did say, however, that he thought it about time that his proposed method of treating cancer be brought out again. "There is something in it, but it is no cure," Dr. Gwyer said.

It was learned that at the Crocker Institute, 1,145 Amsterdam Avenue, headed by Dr. Francis Carter Wood as director and Dr. George L. Rohdenburg as assistant, extensive experiments have been conducted along the lines carried on at the Pasteur Institute. The results have varied, and it was learned that no definite conclusion has yet been reached. However, progress has been made.

In the cable from Paris it was stated that injections from the thyroid and similar glands into the veins of cancerous animals very greatly retard the growth of tumors, and in some cases check it altogether. It was also stated that it had been found that injections of cancerous tissues, heated and prepared by a method similar to that employed in the making of paratyphoid antitoxin, produce a considerable degree of immunity against cancer. It was said that of the mice so treated 80 per cent., when inoculated with cancer virus, failed to develop the disease at all, while the remaining 20 per cent. had only small and insignificant tumors. Of the mice not so protected 100 per cent. developed cancer after inoculation.

From a specialist not connected with the Crocker Institute, but familiar with the extensive research work being done there, it was learned that the experiments told of in the Paris cable have all been made here and the work is still being carried on in the hope that they will lead to some very definite results. In fact, it was learned that much progress has been made in this direction.

"A technical advance," as one specialist put it last night, "has been made in these investigations. However, the work is being carried on in the belief that it at least gives hope of throwing much light on this mysterious affliction."

Dr. Wood could not be reached last night for a statement relative to the work being carried on at the Crocker Institute.

It was said that in many of the investigations conducted in this country it had been found that certain results obtained in experimenting on mice were not considered probable in human beings. In the case of mice, artificially infected, it has been found that the actual infection differs greatly. In the injections of cancerous tissues, much depends upon the success of the cancer transplant in the animal to which the infection is transplanted, it was said.

The marriage of Miss Edith Dunbar Gilman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Ives Gilman of Boston, and William Adams Brown, Jr., of this city, took place at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the garden at The Elms, the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed by the Very Rev. Edmund S. Rousmaniere, Dean of St. Paul's Cathedral in Boston, assisted by the father of the bridegroom, the Rev. Dr. William Adams Brown of Union Theological Seminary, in this city. Only the immediate families of the couple and a few friends were in attendance. After their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Brown will make their home in New York, Mr. Brown being connected with the banking house of Brown Brothers & Co. in this city.

OBREGON IS ELECTED MEXICO'S PRESIDENT

His Victory Conceded Though Voting Throughout the Republic Was Light.

RIVALS MAKE POOR SHOWING

Workingmen and Farm Hands Poll Majority of the Vote, Few Business Men Going to the Polls.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 5.—The election of General Alvaro Obregon as President of Mexico is generally conceded as a result of the voting throughout the republic today. Complete returns may not be received for several days.

Election Day passed peacefully in Mexico City and nearby towns. Late this afternoon no reports of trouble had been received from any part of the republic.

The vote was light, and Dominguez made a poor showing. Workingmen and farm hands polled a majority of the votes, few business men going to the polls.

Obregon had two nominal opponents, neither of whom was taken seriously, though Alfredo Robles Dominguez, nominated by the National Republican Party, was expected to receive considerable support among the conservative Catholic element.

The other opponent, Nicolas Zuniga Miranda, is known as Mexico's perpetual candidate and is believed to be unbalanced. He has been a Presidential candidate for the last thirty years, having begun during the early days of the Diaz régime, when he was considered as merely a foil for that virtual dictator.

Dominguez's campaign was taken seriously in the present elections, but it was regarded as an attempt to feel out the strength of the Catholic following and prepare the ground for placing a strong united Catholic party in the field for the next Presidential elections to succeed Obregon.

Forecast Changes in Cabinet.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 5 (Associated Press).—Provisional President de la Huerta is leaving Mexico City during the coming week for a two weeks' visit to Cuernavaca, Puebla and Guadalajara, owing to ill-health, according to announcement published in today's newspapers. In conjunction with reports of his projected trip, the newspapers predict that several changes will be made in his Cabinet before President de la Huerta departs.

While the 30,000 strikers in the Federal District have returned to work, following a promise by President de la Huerta to use his personal influence in their behalf, Mexico City newspapers quote strike leaders as saying that unless an agreement has been reached before Sept. 10 a general strike throughout the republic will be called on the 11th.

MOSES FACES BITTER FIGHT.

Foe of League and Suffrage May Lose in New Hampshire.

CONCORD, N. H., Stpt. 5.—New Hampshire men and women, the latter for the first time, will vote at the primaries Tuesday for Republican and Democratic candidates for United States Senator, Congress and Governor. Although a spirited campaign has been waged by the three candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor, the chief interest has been aroused by the effort of Huntley N. Spaulding, former State Food Administrator, to defeat Senator Moses for renomination.

The contest between Senator Moses and Spaulding has been waged with much bitterness. The Spaulding forces have made much of Moses's consistent opposition to woman suffrage, in an effort to swing the women's vote to their candidate, while the State Anti-Suffrage Association has published appeals to women who have opposed suffrage to register for the primaries and vote for Moses.

Friends of the League of Nations in the Republican Party have rallied to the support of Spaulding, who has announced that he favors the League with the Lodge reservations. Those opposed to the League of Nations in any form have voiced their preference for Moses, who was one of the "irreconcilables." Senator Moses has personally waged his campaign largely on advocacy of a protective tariff.

IRISH WOMEN PICKET PIERS.

Two Plead with Hoboken Longshoremen to Refuse British Goods.

Two Irish women pickets who attempted to start an anti-British strike by longshoremen in Hoboken on Saturday night appeared there again yesterday and harangued 1,000 or more workers at the Lamport & Holt Line piers. Miss May Keenan, one of the pickets, declared that if American workmen would refuse to handle any sort of British goods or work on British ships "the power of Britain in Ireland would be broken."

Another meeting, she announced, would be held at the same piers today and at the Cunard Line piers in Weehawken. She said she had been assured by many of the workers that if the case were presented to them before they started work in the morning or the late shift of the day they would be so stirred that they would quit their jobs.

Westcott to Coach Tufts Cubs.

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—Dr. Oliver C. Westcott, Tufts Dental, '17, one of the best halfbacks that ever represented the Brown and Blue, has been appointed director of freshman athletics at Tufts. The appointment is announced by Graduate Manager C. P. Houston. Dr. Westcott will assume his duties when the freshman football candidates report at the opening of college, Sept. 23. Now a practicing dentist in Boston, he will be remembered chiefly as the captain of the great 1916 Tufts football eleven which defeated Harvard 7 to 3 and which was defeated by Princeton only by a field goal the following week. Adoption of the freshman rule at Tufts this Fall makes the task of directing yearling sport one of far-reaching possibility and responsibility.

GIANTS HAVE EASY TIME WITH PHILS

Take Lead in First Inning and Romp Ahead to Comfortable Victory, 8 to 1.

BENTON'S HAND IS SPLIT

Fast Grounder Tears Gash Between Southpaw's Fingers—King Hits Homer in the Third.

The Phillies appeared dangerous for a few minutes at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon. That was in the first inning, when three of the first four batsmen to face Rube Benton landed on the southpaw for singles. One run was in, two runners were on the bases, and only one had been retired when the Rube pulled himself together and thereafter the Phils' attack folded up like an accordion. The McGrawmen went to the front in their half of the first frame, prospered in runs as the game wore on, and finished on the healthy end of an 8 to 1 score.

Benton wasn't among those present at the finish, and it is possible that he will do no more pitching for a week or ten days at least. He had held the Phillies well in check from the first inning until the seventh, and then an accident forced him out of the game. With one out in the Phils' half of the inning, Withrow hit hard, and Benton grabbed for the ball with his left hand. The ball tore a gash between two of his fingers, and he ran to the bench with blood streaming from the wound. After some first aid treatment in the dugout Rube retired to the clubhouse and Pol Perritt finished the game on the mound. The Phils did no more business with Perritt's floaters than they had done with Benton's assortment, and did not threaten seriously in the last two innings.

Close to 30,000 fans were out to see the Giants step along in their pennant dash. The McGrawmen gave them plenty to enthuse about by slapping runs over the plate in four groups of two-per-inning, but the game, on the whole, was lacking in thrills. After the Giants went to the front in the opening frame the Phils were not able to make it a real contest. The high note in the slugging of the McGrawmen developed in the third inning, when Lee King wafted a long fly into the left field bleachers with Kelly on first base. This was the signal for the usual straw hat shower, though the Giants held a safe lead when King hit for the circuit. With the felt hat season close at hand it takes little these days to bring out a flock of straw bonnets from the stands.

King Drives Out a Homer.

King's homer sounded the requiem for Eppa Jephtha Rixey, though the tall southpaw was allowed to linger in the box until the Giants finished up the inning. A collision between Withrow and Paulette in the first frame had paved the way to some scoring by the Giants, and Eppa's wildness was responsible for two of the runs which developed in the next two innings. Manager Cravath gave Eppa full privileges to the clubhouse after three innings, and Johnny Enzmann, former Brooklynite, took up the hurling burden. He had little difficulty for four innings, but the Giants bunched three hits in the eighth and collected their last two runs at the expense of the little right hander.

The hitting of Bancroft and Meusel and stops by Bancroft and Ralph Miller were the features. Both of the fielding gems were made without any outs resulting, as the fielders were in no position to throw after making the spectacular stops. Bancroft made his great play in deep short in the first inning, and Miller contributed a one-hand grab of Kelly's hard smash in the eighth that was a classic. Both Meusel and Bancroft collected safe hits on their first three chances and each fell down on the fourth.

Paulette greeted Benton in the opening inning with a single to centre and moved along to second when Rawlings sacrificed. Cy Williams singled to right, the ball bounding over Kelly's head, and Paulette scored. Meusel followed with the hit on which Bancroft made his fancy play in deep short, Williams stopping at second. It appeared that Benton would not be able to stand up under the bombardment and McGraw wigwagged to the bull pen for a relief boxman to get busy. Then Rube settled down and retired the side quickly, Fletcher going out on a fly to Young and Le Bourveau by the strike-out route.

Frisch Scores Two.

The Giants lost no time in going to the front. After Burns had been thrown out by Miller, Bancroft singled to centre and Young followed with a pop fly close to the first-base line. Both Whitrow and Paulette went for the ball, each announcing that he had it. They came together just inside the line and the ball got away, Young being safe at first and Bancroft at second. Frisch's drive followed the first-base line, hit the bag and bounded into right field for a double which sent both Bancroft and Young over the plate. Kelly and King were easy outs.

In the second inning the Giants collected two more runs. Grimes, who is playing second base in the absence of Larry Doyle, opened with a pass and finished the journey when Snyder hit along the left field line for two bases. Benton sacrificed his battery partner to third and he crossed the plate on Burns's sacrifice hoist to Meusel.

Another brace of runs drifted over in New York's half of the third. After Frisch had been called out on strikes Kelly drew a pass and jogged around the bases ahead of King on the latter's smash into the left field bleachers. Grimes and Snyder were retired in order and then Rixey retired by request.

The Phils got only one runner past first base after the opening inning. That was in the third, when Rawlings and Meusel got singles and a throw by King hopped away from Grimes. Cy Williams, who had forced Rawlings at second, raced to third on the misplay but was left when Fletcher flied to Young. In the next six innings only four Phils got on the bases. Two of them reached second but were left there.

Another Double by Snyder.

Enzmann gave the McGrawmen a lot of trouble in his four innings on the rubber. Bancroft singled in the fourth with two out and was left on first. He was the only home player to reach first base from the third to the eighth inning.

Frisch opened the eighth with a single to centre and Kelly hit hard toward left field. Miller made a phenomenal stop, but could not make a throw, and both runners were safe. King's strike-out and Grimes's fly to Williams furnished no aid, but Snyder had a real contribution. He spanked a double off the left field fence, missing a home run by inches, and two runners dashed across the plate. Snyder was stranded on second when Perritt went out on strikes.

Curves and Bingles

That one run scored by Boston at Ebbets Field drew a big cheer at the Polo Grounds, as it tied up the game with the Robins. The fans were pulling for a defeat of Brooklyn.

As both Robins and Reds were winners, the victory of the Giants did not cause any change in the standing of the leaders. McGraw's men remain two games behind the Robins and a game and a half behind the Reds.

Kelly's run in the third inning was scored on the minimum of energy. The big first baseman drew a pass, and jogged home on King's home run drive into the bleachers. Kelly didn't have to hurry for any of the four stations along the route.

The Giants departed at midnight for Boston, where they will play on a two-a-day schedule for three consecutive days. They will be back at the Polo Grounds Thursday for a game with the Cubs.

Art Fletcher got his usual welcome when he toed the plate for the first time. New York fans are strong for Fletch, regardless of the uniform that he may be wearing.

Frisch got a double and a single, which was not a bit unusual for him, but he was called out twice on strikes. That is something which seldom happens in the life of the former Fordhamite.

Poll Perritt is becoming very adept in the rôle of finishing games. He has appeared in about half of the games played by the McGrawmen since he reported recently at St. Louis.

The Phillies will make one more visit at the Polo Grounds this year. They are due here on Oct. 3, to ring down the curtain or warm up the Giants for the big series.

It was an off day for the Yankees, so they ran true to form by going to the ball game. They followed the work of the Giants closely, with the idea that they may engage in some games with the McGrawmen next month in a world's, or city, series.

Emil Meusel, like his brother Bob of the Yankees, finds the scenery at the Polo Grounds conducive to hitting. He has batted well here in his games against the Giants this year.

ROBINS HOLD PLACE AS LEAGUE LEADERS

Some 20,000 Brooklyn fans, defying a transit strike to see the Braves slaughtered again by the league-leading Robins, found a pleasant surprise in store for them yesterday when they finally got to Ebbets Field. Instead of being made the object of a Roman holiday for Robinson's men, the Braves flared right up and furnished the Dodgers with as stiff opposition as the Flatbush clan will ever want. The final score, after nine innings of fast and clean play, was 2 to 1, with Brooklyn on the long end of the tally.

Hugh McQuillan, Stallings's kid pitcher but one of the best on the Boston staff, was the gentleman who threatened to block the path of the leaders. He allowed the Robins exactly five hits in the course of the engagement and except in two frames turned the Robin batters back with regularity. An error in the first inning paved the path for the first Brooklyn tally and a passed ball performed similar service in the fourth. McQuillan deserved a better fate and would have registered a shutout under more favorable circumstances.

Right on the young Boston twirler's heels was the well-known Richard Marquard, who has turned in not a few good games for Wilbert Robinson. The Rube was touched for only four hits yesterday and he struck out five of the Beaneaters. In seven chapters the Braves went out in one-two-three order, the biggest interruption coming in the second, when a double, a sacrifice bunt and a long fly were combined to produce a run, also tying the score temporarily. The Braves wasted two more hits in this same inning, and for the remainder of the game garnered only one bingle off the offerings of the wry-necked southpaw. This was a single by Ford in the eighth, the second hit, incidentally, for the recruit second baseman. In all the other innings the Braves expired without fuss.

Capacity Crowd Looks On.

One of the largest Sunday crowds of the season squeezed and jammed itself into Squire Ebbets's stadium. Every seat was filed and a fringe of spectators stood in the rear of both lower and upper stands. A few more persons might have been inserted into the premises, but it was tight enough as it was. The fans arrived by all sorts of vehicles—passenger machines, buses, trucks, drays and, in rare cases, street cars. Jitney proprietors did a rushing business before and after the game, and succeeded in getting the big crowd away in good time.

The Boston outfield furnished the feature of the game from a fielding standpoint. Powell, Sullivan and Mann each made glittering grabs of long flies. Powell in centre was especially annoying to the fans. He ran out twice to spear balls that seemed booked for three bases or more. Sullivan robbed Marquard of a triple in the third by taking the Rube's mighty drive after a long backward run.

With all of Powell's gaudy work in centre field, he dealt a blow to the Boston cause in the first inning that proved later to be the undoing of McQuillan. After Olson had been tossed out by Boeckel, Johnston singled to centre and Powell fumbled the sphere long enough to allow the batter to race safely to second. McQuillan then made matters worse by sending a wild pitch past Sergeant Hank Gowdy, Johnston advancing to third. After that it was an easy matter for him to score on Griffith's long fly, which was snared by Powell after a young marathon in the middle garden. Wheat's lofty fly settled into Mann's glove.

Sullivan began the Boston half of the second frame by slamming a hot double into the far corner of right field. Holke laid down a sacrifice bunt that advanced the runner to third, and he completed the circuit on Rabbit Maranville's fly to Griffith. Gowdy singled out of Olson's reach and Ford dropped a frail fly into right field, Gowdy romping to third. Both runners expired on the sacks when McQuillan fouled to Miller.

Wheat's Hit Settles Game.

Olson walked in the third for Brooklyn after two were out, but Johnston hit to Holke and was out by several yards at first. After the Braves had gone out in order in the fourth, the Robins manufactured their second and last run. Griffith started by banging a hot single off Ford's mit. With Zack Wheat at bat Sergeant Gowdy made a rank muff of a perfect strike, after Wheat had taken a full swing, and the ball rolled far enough from the plate to allow Griffith to amble to second. He didn't linger long at the midway station, for Wheat promptly came through with a zipping bounder to centre that was good for a base. Griffith came all the way home on the blast. Myers sacrificed Wheat to second, but McQuillan settled down. Koney flied to Sullivan and Kilduff lined into Boeckel's hands.

The Robins got two more runners on during the remainder of the game, but McQuillan was too great a riddle for the Robinson troupe. To start the sixth Johnston smacked his second single to left. He was forced at second, however, when Maranville made a pretty play on Griffith's deep grounder. The throw beat Johnston to second by the margin of a flea's ankle. Griffith was then doubled up when Wheat, on the hit and run, lifted to Ford, who tossed to Holke for a two-ply killing.

In the eighth Marquard perpetrated a single to centre, but Olson skied to Ford and Johnston's fly was easy for Powell. Ford got his second hit in the eighth, with one down, but McQuillan soared out to Olson and Powell took three vicious swings at the empty atmosphere.

INDIANS WIN FAST GAME FROM TIGERS

Complete Detroit Series with Victory by 4 to 3, Bagby Pitching Effective Ball.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 5.—Cleveland won the odd game of the series with Detroit today by a score of 4 to 3, scoring the winning runs in the eighth on a pass to Speaker, a double by Smith, Gardner's sacrifice fly and Johnston's double. Bagby was effective, but Detroit made use of every one of its five hits. The game was played in one hour and eleven minutes.

ORIOLES BLANK SKEETERS.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 5.—Helpless before the superb twirling of Jack Bentley, the Jerseyites were blanked by the Orioles today, 6 to 0. Swede Carlson for the visitors was unable to stem the tide of timely Oriole hits. Bill Holden's bat played a particularly conspicuous part in the fray, his count being three safeties in four trips. His first hit was responsible for the initial marker scored by the Orioles, while on the other two occasions he opened the fireworks, tallying each time.

The eighth inning marked the final score of the game. Bentley was thrown out, second to first, after which Boley watched four wide ones drift by. Bishop whiffed, but Styles and Lefler singled in turn and Boley crossed the plate.

While Bentley's hurling was the feature of the game, there were many other bright spots. The big portsider allowed only a quartet of safeties and only one striped-leg batsman reached third.

BASEBALL WRITERS TO PROBE CHARGES

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—The Chicago chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association tonight prepared to investigate charges that players had been "fixed" so that the Philadelphia Nationals would win last Tuesday's game with the Chicago club and that gamblers won thousands of dollars as a result of Philadelphia's victory.

The entire membership of the chapter was appointed a committee of the whole by J. E. Sanborn, President, after he had received a letter from William Veeck, President of the Chicago club, specifically asking that the baseball writers take up the investigation. Sam Hall was appointed chairman of the committee.

Mr. Veeck, in his statement yesterday announcing he had received several telegrams and telephone calls just before the game warning him of the betting being done in Detroit, Cincinnati and other cities, suggested that the writers take up the investigation, and tonight in his letter to Mr. Sanborn he said that the entire resources of the club were at the association's disposal. All the financial assistance needed will also be given, he said. The club will go ahead with an independent investigation.

"Were the reflection on the Chicago National League club the only matter entering into this affair, I would not call for the assistance of the Baseball Writers," said Mr. Veeck's letter, "but it is more serious than that. Baseball is much greater than the mere standing of the Chicago club and there must be no question as to its honesty.

"If your investigation develops that there is one man on the team who has done a single dishonest act, you will have rendered to the public and to the club a service so great its value cannot be estimated. If your investigation develops there has been no dishonesty among the players, you will have done as great a service and in that case I want the men publicly given a clean bill of health."

KRAMER IS TWICE VICTOR.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 5.—Frank Kramer, the "old war horse," had a big day at the Velodrome this afternoon. Kramer defeated Pete Moeskops, the champion of Holland, in two straight heats of a one-mile match race, winning each heat by a length. He followed this by taking the two-mile tandem race, with Oscar Egg as his partner. Kramer likes the cool weather and, with the hot months of July and August gone, will probably show a world of speed from now on. Kramer rode Moeskops in the same manner in both heats.

In the first heat Moeskops raced Kramer neck and neck down the backstretch of the last lap, but Kramer forged ahead on the last turn and finished a length to the good. Moeskops also gave Kramer a battle in the second heat. At one time he was inches ahead of the American rider, but could not get far enough in front to hold the lead. Kramer outraced him in the homestretch and won by a length. In beating Moeskops Kramer atoned for his defeat a couple of weeks ago by the Hollander.

Egg was riding finely yesterday, for, besides his work on the tandem with Kramer, he won an Australian pursuit race from Alfred Grenda which went 6 miles 4½ laps. In the tandem race Kramer and Egg were fourth a half mile from home, but a lap from the finish they had run into the lead and won by inches from Willie Hanley and Jake Magin. Eddie Madden and Harry Kaiser won a mile team match from Alex McBeath and Reggie McNamara. Kaiser won all three heats, but he and Madden were disqualified in the first heat for foul riding.

Anthony Young, a member of the American Olympic bike team, who arrived home yesterday, rode today. He was suspended for teaming in his heat of the two-thirds mile handicap with Andy Watts. Benny Clark won the race.

Kramer, Goullet and Egg will meet in a ten-mile paced race in Newark tomorrow.

The summaries:

Earth Trembles When Knowles Misses Drive

Jack Davison said yesterday—and he ought to know—that the longest driver among American golfers is Ellis Knowles of Pensacola, Fla., who when a Yale student back in 1907 won the intercollegiate championship at the Nassau Country Club. Knowles's massive driver, which was on private exhibition yesterday at the Engineers' Country Club, weighs exactly 17¾ ounces. His caddy ought to get extra fees for carrying it around. As if to demonstrate that he can play his other clubs as well, Knowles displayed a few feats yesterday in practice for the tournament. He got two 2s during his round—a really brilliant 2 on the eighth hole and one somewhat easier on the fourteenth.

KAHANAMOKU SETS NEW WORLD'S MARK

PARIS, Sept. 5.—The American athletes made a clean sweep in the water contests of the "Paris Olympic" today, and Duke Kahanamoku broke the world's record for the 100-meter swim, covering the distance in one minute flat. The old record was 1:01 3-5, made by Kahanamoku.

Norman Ross, Chicago, won the 400 meters in 5 minutes 57 3-5 seconds. P. Keolaha of Honolulu was second.

Miss Bleibtrey swam away with the 300-meter match with Mlle. Wurtz, the French woman being more than 50 yards behind at the end.

Kahanamoku's match against Rouilley, the French champion, was a one-sided affair, the Hawaiian winning in record time and the Frenchman finishing eight seconds behind.

AQUILLA IS FIRST HOME.

Leads Star Yachts, but Season's Title Goes to Taurus.

PORT WASHINGTON, L. I., Sept. 5.—Gordon Curry, a youthful skipper of the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club, won the last of a series of ten interclub races for the championship of the Star class over the course of his organization today in the Aquilla. The victory of young Curry, which was won by a margin of 1 minute and 20 seconds over F. W. Teves's Milky Way, carrying the burgee of the Bayside Yacht Club, availed him nothing, however, as prior to the race William L. Inslee had the championship tucked away and did not even said his boat, the Taurus, today from the anchorage of the Bayside Yacht Club in the Little Neck Bay.

Mr. Inslee was a consistent winner throughout the season and not only won the championship of the Manhasset Bay, Port Washington and Bayside Yacht Clubs with his fast little yacht, but he also accumulated several trophies in other club regattas in the metropolitan district.

A light southwest breeze greeted six skippers of Class A and the same number of Class B in the final race of the series. Turning the last mark, the Aquilla was in the lead and never relinquished it. George W. Elder, Jr., sailing the Saturn, was third.

C. F. Searing won in Class B with the Neptune. He scored an easy victory, leading William R. Teller's Nereid across the line by 3 minutes and 28 seconds. R. D'Oench's Vega finished third.

BANKS IN TENNIS FINAL.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Sept. 5.—On the courts of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club today, before an enthusiastic tennis gallery, Ted Banks, former Yale 'Varsity racquet wielder, won his way to the final of the club's singles by defeating S. A. Young, formerly of Princeton, 8—6, 6—0. Banks played well from back court and his service was exceptionally well executed.

Young led in the first set with games at 5—1, at which point Banks started a fine rally and evened the games at 5—all. Here Young's clever service accounted for another game, but the Yale man evened matters again on his own service. He then broke through his opponent's delivery by pretty placements and finally won the set on his own service.

In the final, which will probably be played the middle of the week, Hooker Tall cott, formerly of Harvard, will engage Banks. The winner will play the title-holder, Holcombe Ward, for the singles championship of the club.

Following the singles, a well-played mixed doubles match ended the day's activities. Miss S. Atha, paired with George Churchill, defeated Mrs. Joseph Hoagland and Charles Ceaser, 7—5, 3—6, 6—4.

RACING AT CHARTER OAK.

Annual Meeting at Hartford's Historic Track Opens Today.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 5.—With twenty events on the week's card, the Grand Circuit meeting will open here tomorrow at Charter Oak Park. Nearly 250 trotters and pacers are entered in the race that will be fought out on the historic track. The Charter Oak Purse, for $10,000, the largest purse of the circuit, is on the card for Thursday. This is for 2:12 trotters and has attracted twenty-six entries. On Thursday's list also is a $3,000 stake, the Whirlwind Purse for 2:10 pacers.

THREE TEAMS TIED FOR GOLFER TROPHY

Two American Pairs and Canadians Lead in Curtain-Raiser to Amateur Tourney.

These Canadian golfers are up to some mischief. If they hang around Roslyn long enough they're going to run off with some kind of prize. Although outplayed Saturday in the international team matches, a pair of them, W. J. and Frank Thompson of Mississauga, tore right back with a furious rush yesterday and came hopefully near winning the American Golfer Trophy. In fact, they may win it yet, for at the end of the day they found themselves tied with two American pairs, one from the West and one from the East, all with a best-ball total of 71. A play-off will be necessary. The others who still have a chance are the great Jerry Travers and William M. Reekie, New Jersey champion, of Upper Montclair, and Rudolph B. and F. T. Knepper of Sioux City, Iowa, the former the Iowa State title-holder.

More than thirty club pairs competed yesterday in this fixture, which is the annual curtain-raiser to the national amateur championship, and twenty-six teams turned in scores. That brings up a disagreeable subject. These scores were nothing to brag about under any circumstances, despite the fact that several teams have played together often. Take last year's winners, for instance. S. Davidson Herron and Grant A. Peacock, who gave the treasured silver golf club and balls to Oakmont for a year, could do no better than 74 yesterday. Herron ought to be able to beat that himself without help.

Dean and Haight Take 79.

Then there were J. Simpson Dean and Richard A. Haight of Princeton, who tied last year with Herron and Peacock and lost the play-off. These young collegians needed 79 between them for a best-ball score. They ought to be ashamed of themselves, for Haight's father, Dr. A. T. Haight, the Massapequa story-teller, went them one stroke better when paired with A. C. Gregson. It shouldn't be forgotten, in this respect, that Gregson was the gentleman who lost the final match of a Belleclaire tourney last Spring to a member of the fair sex, Mrs. W. A. Gavin. He wasn't interviewed yesterday, but probably he was happy to learn that Mrs. Gavin's name didn't appear on the entry list for this week's championships.

But there were some brilliant feats yesterday despite the fact that the majority were stumped, baffled and tricked by the ultra-difficult Engineers' Country Club links. Of chief cause for astonishment was Jerry Travers's achievement. Jerry, the only man who ever won the national amateur title four times, showed symptoms of rapid recuperation. The critics hanging around Roslyn last night awaiting the official start of the tourney this morning, scratched their heads, stroked their chins and just looked wise, refusing to predict what Jerry might do this week.

The bestball of Travers and Reekie was 38-33-71, and this total of 33 for the last nine holes was also Travers's individual score. Their card compared to the Engineers' par follows:

Out—
Par ....4 4 4 4 4 4 4 3 5—36
Travers-Reekie .....5 5 4 5 4 3 4 3 5—38
In—
Par ....3 4 4 4 3 4 4 4 4—34—70
Travers-Reekie .....3 4 4 4 2 4 4 4 4—33—71

Incidentally all three of the pairs which tied for first registered birdie 2's on the treacherous "two-or-twenty" fourteenth hole. Perhaps this wasn't so fortunate as it might be, for there is a sneaking suspicion that 2's during today's qualifying will be as rare as hen's teeth. They should have saved them instead of expanding them yesterday.

Eagle 2 Made by Hubbard.

J. T. L. Hubbard of the Brooklawn Country Club, Bridgeport, acquired fame forever when he got an eagle 2 on the fourth hole. It was no ordinary eagle, as eagles go, but something that may never be equalled. He sliced his drive and the ball rolled down the hollow at the right and into deep rough. He chose to use a mashie and with a tremendous slam the ball sailed out of the long grass, flew nearly 200 yards to the green, and then rolled down the cup.

On account of the absence of any members of the American Golfer staff yesterday, no plans were made for the play-off. It will unquestionably be held, however, during the week.

GOLFERS TO START TITLE PLAY TODAY

Qualifying Rounds Will Be Contested Over Two Courses, Beginning Early This Morning.

TRAIN SERVICE FOR GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP.

Both courses on which will be held today's qualifying test are reached by the Oyster Bay division trains of the Long Island Railroad. The station for the Engineers' Country Club is Roslyn and for the North Shore Country Club it is Glen Head.

5:40	6:36	6:45
9:00	9:55	10:02
11:00	11:49	11:58
3:18	4:07	4:15

Out of an entering field of more than 225 amateurs of the United States, Great Britain and Canada, including the champions of this country, Britain, France and the Dominion, only a mere handful of thirty-two will have qualified by nightfall for the right to continue in the match play of the national amateur championship. Golfers have to be rugged, hardy folk. Who else, what other breed of athlete, would be required to rise before daylight, bolt down their ham and eggs and get out to Long Island by 7 o'clock this morning? That's precisely the requirements, for promptly at 7 the first pairs will leave the first tees of the Engineers' Country Club at Roslyn and the North Shore Country Club at Glen Head. And at four-minute intervals all day long the mad scramble will continue for places within the elite group in the greatest amateur championship ever played in any country, barring none. There's no question of its greatness.

Most of the headliners have been assigned to North Shore for their morning circuit and will do their second round in the afternoon at Engineers. Those who have been assigned to Engineers for the morning will finish their test at North Shore after lunch. Unlike the qualifying at the national open at Inverness, when local club members took the earliest times on the schedule, there is no such concession made to the stars, and before 8 o'clock such bright lights as Jess Guilford, Max H. Behr, Harold Weber, J. Simpson Dean, Frank W. Dyer and J. Wood Platt will have been sent on their way.

Stars Among Early Starters.

Among the morning pairs at North Shore are S. D. Herron and Lord Charles Hope at 8:12, R. H. Wethered and C. L. Maxwell at 8:16, Thomas Armour and Gardiner W. White at 8:20, Chick Evans and B. Warren Corkran at 8:50, Cyril J. H. Tolley and James Hyde at 9:36, Paul Moore and C. B. Grier at 9:44, R. A. Gardner and Reuben B. Bush at 10, F. H. Augustus and Oswald Kirkby at 10:08. All these will start their second round at Engineers exactly four hours later.

Among the morning pairings for Engineers' are Findlay S. Douglas and E. M. Byers at 8:40, Jerome D. Travers and H. E. Kenworthy at 8:56, Sherrill Sherman and A. L. Walker, Jr., at 9:28, Bobby Jones and Edward P. Allis at 10, J. D. Standish, Jr., and Francis Ouimet at 10:04.

Until a late hour last night there had been fifteen withdrawals, but thirteen added starters, making a total entry of 226. Among those who are prevented by business and other reasons from competing are F. M. Hancock of Metacomet, Rhode Island State champion, and C. G. Waldo, Jr., of Detroit, who won everlasting fame when in 1912 he eliminated Harold Hilton, the Englishman, who had won the American title the year before.

Those who have been added follow: Richard Hickey, Atlanta; G. A. Ormiston, Oakmont; H. M. Weaver, Galveston; R. Woolworth, Scranton; C. P. Gregg, Oakmont; Guy M. Stadifer, California; W. C. Fownes, Jr., Oakmont; R. G. Morrison, Oakmont; J. A. Gammon, Metacomet; J. G. McMahon, Sleepy Hollow; A. R. Maxwell, Oakmont; R. Wilhelm, Portland, Ore., and J. H. Gay, Jr., Philadelphia Cricket.

List of Withdrawals.

The complete list of withdrawals follows: Malcolm McBurney, Westbrook; Alfred S. Bourne, Westbrook; R. C. Smith, Beaconsfield; J. H. Van Buren, Buffalo; A. W. Brand, Lake Geneva; Chick Ridley, Atlanta Athletic Club; George Collett, Metacomet; Joseph A. Farrand, Albemarle; L. J. Hukill, Oakmont; L. E. Wood, Buffalo; D. C. Bakewald, Alleghany; Courtlandt Van Clief, Buffalo; F. M. Hancock, Metacomet; C. G. Waldo, Jr., Detroit, and E. J. Dayton, Detroit.

One of the startling disclosures yesterday was that Tolley, British amateur champion, had been suffering for two days from ptomaine poisoning. Even yesterday the chubby young Oxonian said he was feeling the effects and that he was by no means sure his game today would be his usual one. He was particularly ill Saturday and made very little attempt to do any practicing.

Those who were not paired for yesterday's competition for the American Golfer trophy finished their practicing for the championship. Some who decided they had seen enough of the difficult course contented themselves with driving a couple of dozen balls off the practice tee. Lord Charles Hope devoted an hour to this. S. M. Newton, former champion of Virginia, returned from Newport News yesterday, where he had been competing in an effort to regain his title. He was unsuccessful, however.

Because of the insufficient number of trains on the Oyster Bay division, an announcement was posted yesterday that an extra train would be run from Manhattan and Brooklyn to Roslyn on next Saturday, the day of the final match. This will leave Pennsylvania Station at 8:36, Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn at 8:34, Jamaica at 8:59 and will arrive at Roslyn at 9:25.

HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE HANGS IN BALANCE

NO DECISION PERMITTED

FACTS ABOUT TITLE FIGHT.

Purse—Dempsey guaranteed $50,000, with privilege of 50 per cent. of receipts; Miske guaranteed $25,000, with a sliding scale percentage.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Sept. 5.—The heavyweight boxing championship of the world will hang in the balance here this afternoon, when Jack Dempsey, champion, and Billy Miske, challenger, climb into the ring to clash in a ten-round bout. The fact that the Michigan State law will not permit Referee Jimmy Dougherty to give a decision, should the battle go the limit, means that the only way Miske can win the title is by knocking the champion out. But remote as this possibility may seem to many, it apparently has not lessened the interest in the bout, and boxing fans from all over the country—even from as far away as Maine and California—have assembled to see Dempsey undergo the first test he has been subjected to since he stripped Jess Willard of the purple mantle in Toledo a year ago last July 4.

For fourteen months almost to the day Dempsey has remained out of the ring. Motion pictures, circuses and court actions have claimed most of his time. But today he is to return to his chosen profession, and in selecting Miske it is conceded that he has agreed to meet one of the foremost of the contenders for the title. Twice before they have met and twice before the bouts went the limit, with opinion divided as to the winner after at least one of the sessions. What today holds in store only time can tell.

Dempsey Looks Fit.

Naturally the champion is favored to win. Champions invariably are. He has trained hard and seems to have regained the same fine condition that enabled him to dethrone Willard. Outwardly his long layoff does not appear to have affected him seriously. And, as far as the expert eye can detect, Dempsey is fit. Such being the case there are few—very few—who believe that Miske has more than an outside chance to drape his powerful shoulders with the championship; in fact, there are few who believe that Miske can outpoint the champion should the bout last ten rounds.

On the other hand, the majority of the experts who have assembled here for the fight openly express the opinion that Dempsey will win decisively inside the limit; that he will stop Miske before the bout has progressed as far as the tenth round. Miske's staunchest supporters are willing only to go so far as to predict that the St. Paul boxer will stay the limit.

With both men in the best of physical condition, the bout should be a true test. It should be decided entirely on its merits. There seems no reason to believe that a fluke of any kind will enter into the affair. After about six weeks of preparation, Dempsey and Miske tonight declared themselves to be perfectly satisfied with their condition.

Expects a Hard Battle.

"I am as fit as a man can be," said Dempsey. "I have done everything in my power to get into the best possible condition for this scrap, for I realize that Miske is a tough man to beat. He can assimilate punishment and he can administer it. He is a hard hitter and pretty shifty. A hard hitter is always dangerous. He is a good ring general and I candidly anticipate that he will give me a harder battle than did Willard.

"For this reason I have taken no chances and I am sure that all those who have watched me during my training will agree that I have worked just as hard to prepare myself to defend my title as I did to prepare myself to win it. I expect it to be a good fight. I hope that Miske cuts loose. Of course, I expect to win. I feel sure that I will be able to stop Billy. At any rate I am going to do my best to score a knockout."

"I am ready to put up the fight of my life," said Miske. "I have never been in such super condition. I have worked like a trojan to get into shape for this opportunity. I have been dreaming about being champion of the world some day and now that the chance is at hand I am going to do all that I can to realize it. Dempsey is a great fighter. I know how hard he can hit. He hit me several times in our previous bouts but he wasn't able to stop me and I don't believe he can now. On the other hand, I am heavier and stronger than I was at the time of those bouts and I confidently think I shall be able to put over the blow that will carry me to the championship. If I don't, it won't be because I didn't try. I am glad there are only a few more hours to wait."

Have Trained Conscientiously.

They both look as fit as they say they are. Seldom have two fighters trained as conscientiously and diligently as Dempsey and Miske have. For six weeks they have scarcely had an idle moment. Their legs, arms, hands and bodies are in great shape. They should be able to go through the ten rounds at top speed.

It has been more difficult to get a real line on Miske because of the lack of capable sparring partners at the challenger's camp. He has been severely handicapped in this respect. His workouts have served to convince observers that he can step around the ring at a lively clip, that he can punish and that he is fast with his hands, but his defense is shrouded in doubt. None of his sparring partners has been good enough to stand up in front of him and throw punches at him. For this reason it has been impossible to ascertain his ability to avoid punishment, and avoiding punishment when a hitter like Dempsey is a part of the problem is a very important consideration.

Dempsey has proved that he can knock out any one he meets if he can hit him in a vital spot. Can Miske protect these spots? That seems to be the main issue. If he can he has a chance against the champion, for Jack is not invulnerable. He can be hit.

Left Hook May Decide It.

Both are adept at ducking right swings. Many a right-hand swing will be missed, in the opinion of the qualified experts. Also, for this reason one of the best judges of boxing and boxers tonight stated that he was convinced that the fighter who produced the best left hook, the hook with the greatest power behind it, would emerge the winner of the afternoon's battle.

And so the matter stands at this writing. Both are ready and both can hit. Therefore, the promise is that it will be a real honest-to-goodness fight as long as it lasts.

Work on the arena was completed late this afternoon. The seats have all been installed. The wire fence outside the wooden structure is all in place and the big canvas that will cover the ring and many of the ringside seats as well was ready to be put in place. In short, every detail seems to have been perfected and the opening gong is all that is awaited.

The arena will seat upward of 15,000 persons and the advance sale indicates that it will be filled nearly to capacity if not to capacity. Promoter Floyd Fitzsimmons announced tonight that the sale was somewhere between $80,000 and $90,000, with hundreds of people still standing in line at the box offices at fight headquarters in the heart of the city. The $5-dollars seats, of which there are nearly 4,000, will not be placed on sale until tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

$150,000 Gate Anticipated.

"I am convinced that we shall realize our dream and that there will be a gate totaling $150,000," said Fitzsimmons. "I do not see how we can fall short of that figure. The latest returns of the ticket sale in Chicago convince me that hundreds of people from there will arrive here tomorrow morning. Then we still have those who are motoring in from nearby points. I have had telephone calls all day from out of town asking me to reserve seats. Naturally, I could not agree to do this. We have reached that stage where those who come to the window with their money in their hands must be supplied. If the gate doesn't run $150,000 I miss my guess."

Arrangements were made to keep the box office open all night tonight and long before midnight a line began forming in front of the windows where the $5 seats will be dispensed. By midnight it had reached impressive proportions and the Police Department assigned several uniformed men to maintain order. These were assisted by several plain clothes men from Chicago. The line stretched out of the office into Main Street and around the corner for some distance along Water Street. Around the ticket booths at the arena the crowd gathered, too, although these windows were not to be opened until 9 in the morning.

Little work was done at either camp today. Dempsey did not perform in public at all. He took a long automobile ride in the rain that poured down during the morning. He seemed fretful about the misunderstanding over the referee and wanted to get the air. Later he limbered up a bit in private on the pulleys. But that was all.

Miske having advertised that he would perform in public went through the motions. He didn't attempt to box. But he pulled the weights while the crowd looked on and did a little shadow boxing.

DOUGHERTY IS NAMED THIRD MAN IN RING

Selected as Referee After Dispute That Threatens to Cancel Bout.

Special to The New York Times.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Sept. 5.—James Dougherty of Philadelphia has officially been named referee of the Dempsey-Miske bout. The formal announcement was made by Promoter Floyd Fitzsimmons shortly after 3 o'clock this morning. It followed a night of wrangling and conferences that for a time threatened to culminate in the champion's breaking camp and refusing to fight. Nothing but the determined stand taken by Fitzsimmons and the realization by Chairman Thomas Bigger of the Michigan State Athletic Commission of the fact that thousands of dollars were being placed in jeopardy and that thousands of persons had already arrived here for the bout and thousands more were reported to be on the way averted the fiasco.

Kearns and Dempsey were determined in their decision not to go through with the bout unless Dougherty wat the third man in the ring. When it seemed that Chairman Bigger was equally determined that no new referee's license would be granted, Benton Harbor prepared for the worst and for some time hope dropped many points below par.

The mix-up was precipitated just before midnight when Chairman Bigger notified the principals and promoter that he had selected Al A. Day of Detroit to referee the bout. He had waited until that time for Jack Kearns, manager of the champion, and Jack Reddy, business representative of Billy Miske, to agree upon one of the men already holding licenses to referee in this State.

When it became apparent that it was impossible for them to reach an understanding, because Kearns was holding out for Dougherty, Chairman Bigger made his selection. Earlier in the evening he had told the representative of THE NEW YORK TIMES that he would probably wait until Monday morning before making a selection. He explained that he did not care to exercise his authority in this respect until it was apparent that the principals could not agree upon a map and he was left no other alternative.

Just as soon as Kearns was notified of the Commissioner's action, the champion's manager emphatically declared that Dougherty would referee or there would be no fight, and that he would wait until this afternoon for the Commissioner to acquiesce. If Dougherty was not accepted by that time, Kearns said he would break camp and leave Benton Harbor.

This unexpected turn of affairs threw Benton Harbor into an uproar. The news spread rapidly that the fight was off and before long fight headquarters was besieged by crowds of anxious fans demanding to know the latest developments and anxiously inquiring about the return of their money.

Floyd Fitzsimmons was in the position of one who had invested thousands of dollars and was suddenly threatened with having it all wiped out without getting even a run for it. He held a hurried conference with Kearns. Once convinced that the champion's manager was sincere in his stand, and that he was determined not to reconsider, Fitzsimmons sough out Chairman Bigger and Jack Reddy. Reddy readily agreed to Dougherty. "He is perfectly acceptable to me," Reddy told the newspaper men. "If they want to they can have Kearns for referee. I don't care whom they put in the ring. We want to fight the champion, that's all."

But for a long time Bigger would not entertain the proposal to issue a license for Dougherty. "There is no law against our doing so," said Bigger, "but we have always demanded time to investigate all applicants for licenses."

When the discussion was at its height Al Day, whom Bigger had named as referee, declared that he would withdraw. "I do not want to referee unless I am acceptable to all parties concerned," said Day. This seemed to relieve the situation to a degree, and rapidly dwindling hopes were revived. Then it was explained to Bigger that thousands of dollars' worth of tickets had already been sold; that thousands of persons had already arrived in Benton Harbor, and that hundreds more were reported to be on their way. It was also explained to him that Fitzsimmons had spent many thousands of dollars in expenses.

"In view of the fact that there had been a previous understanding with Kearns that Dougherty would be the referee, I think it is no more than fair that Dougherty should be granted a license and permitted to officiate," Fitzsimmons told Bigger. "If you do not want to agree to this arrangement I am ready to pay Dempsey the $50,000 I guaranteed him and let him return to New York without fighting."

The fact that there had been a previous understanding between the promoter and the champion regarding the referee, and the fact that the public's interest was at stake finally persuaded Chairman Bigger to reconsider his stand, and he agreed to issue a license to Dougherty.

TENNIS

The great problem of modern lawn tennis is to be settled out at Forest Hills this afternoon. On the turf of the West Side Club, at 3:30, William M. Johnston and William T. Tilden 2d meet for the second time in two years to decide not only the individual championship of the United States, but the question of supremacy in the entire tennis world. Tilden technically won that honor at Wimbledon this Summer when he defeated Gerald L. Patterson in the challenge round for the British title. But as America has not yet joined the International Federation and as Johnston still holds our own championship, through his decisive victory over Tilden in the final round of last year's tournament, there are many tennis followers on this side of the water who demand a further proof of the exact standing of the two men who admittedly rise above all the other stars of the courts, both here and abroad. That proof will be furnished by today's titanic struggle.

Johnston defeated Tilden in the final round of the London championship in June, but this was a three-set, not a five-set, match, and the loser had a winning lead at a late stage of the rubber. It has been argued that his straight-set defeat last September at Forest Hills was partly due to the let-down resulting from two days of inactivity because of rain, whereas the welcome rest put Johnston at the very top of his game. This year no such excuse can be made for Tilden if he loses. He has come through the easy half of the draw, with Vincent Richards, Samuel Hardy and Wallace Johnson as his strongest opponents, while Johnston has had to eliminate such contenders as R. N. Williams 2d, W. M. Washburn, N. W. Niles and J. C. Caner. Tilden has gone through most of his matches in a nonchalant spirit, apparently working just hard enough to win, whereas the champion has played like a finalist in every one of his last four encounters. It may be that this stern test will have the effect of putting Johnston right on edge, while Tilden may be unprepared for the terrific hitting that he is sure to meet today. Last year he crumpled under the cannonading he received and was completely baffled by his rival's absolute refusal to make errors. Since then, however, Tilden has definitely improved his ground strokes, driving both forehand and backhand with more severity and dependability than in the past. A year ago his chief reliance was a chop, but now he seldom uses that comparatively soft shot. His service and volley are also more impressive than a year ago. Lobbing and overhead hitting are still his weakest points, but even here he has improved. In fact, Johnston will probably find a very different Tilden on the opposite side of the net this afternoon from the man he downed so handily in the last all-comers' final. Johnston is known as the greatest "money player" in the world. He always does his best when the stakes are highest, whereas Tilden, up to the time of his Wimbledon triumph, had had the reputation of falling below form on crucial occasions. This psychological factor may also have altered during the developments of the Summer abroad. If Tilden plays the tennis of which he is capable he should win today. If he does not the inevitable conclusion will be that he is temperamentally not the champion that his physical and technical equipment should make him.

TURF

Man o' War seems finally to have reached that position once complained of by Alexander when he found he had no more worlds to conquer. In the activity of the turf Man o' War finds that there is little left for him to accomplish as a three-year-old. His very greatness has practically removed him from competition, at least so far as the horses of his age are concerned, and he has made new world's records until the achievement has become rather common with him. He has done about all that it is possible to accomplish as a three-year-old.

There is just one point in which Man o' War has not taken the lead and that is in the total of earnings. There are three American horses and two or three foreign horses which have earned more money in their careers, but the champion is so near to the American mark that should he be raced as a four-year-old he can undoubtedly pass it. That, however, is more a matter of management than racing. Had Man o' War been started in the Kentucky Derby, which everyone admits he could have won, and his season closed with a victory in the Latonia Championship, which would also fall easy prey to him, his earnings would this season go over the $200,000 mark. As it is, it is doubtful if he will advance beyond his present position this year.

The public is probably but little concerned about his earnings but it will be intensely interested in his races if he comes back as a four-year-old. Man o' War will then be in the hands of the official handicaper and will undoubtedly be assigned top weight in all races in which he starts. He will have to give away much weight to such horses as Sir Barton, Exterminator, Naturalist and others of that class at various distances. Under such circumstances it is entirely possible that he will some day be defeated, for weight is the medium by which horses are brought together. Should he go through next season undefeated he will have met the supreme test.

Man o' War will have a long rest in preparation for next year. It is not generally realized that this horse has scarcely been out of training since he was a yearling. He was never permitted to fill out during last Winter and when Spring came he was as fit as any horse in the country. He has withstood an unusually long siege of training and the manner in which he has come through it is only another testimonial to his greatness. He does everything like a true champion and seems to have no flaw of any nature.

ROWING

By establishing its right to the American intercollegiate championship, taking the national championship and finally winning the world's championship at the Olympic Games, the United States Naval Academy's crew not only set the high mark and did what has never been done before, but it stamped itself as one of the greatest eights of all time.

The result of the final heat abroad was a sad blow to the prestige of the orthodox English stroke, which the conservative Britons steadfastly refuse to change in the least. But they have had several other jolts, one of the severest being when, a few years back, the plucky little Belgians went right to Henley and took their measure a couple of times on their own home waters. Then in 1914 Harvard sent its second eight across (the first crew staying at home to row Yale) and won the "Grand Challenge" quite handily. Furthermore, the experiments in teaching the English stroke to American college crews have been flat failures, as has been the British antiquated system of rigging and boat fixtures when applied to our shells.

Aside from the style of rowing, there were three factors that bulked large in shaping the outcome: generalship, physical condition and that superb "sand" of which they are so justifiably proud at Annapolis.

The British oarsmen tried the old trick of starting off with an extraordinary burst of speed designed to carry the midshipmen off their feet, but Dick Glendon's boys had had too much racing experience to be led into any such trap. It gave Leander a lead, but it gave the Navy the added glory of coming from behind and winning sitting up, with the Englishmen crumpled.

The beautifully proportioned and muscled Jack Kelly tasted sweet revenge for his rejected entry in the diamond sculls when he outrowed Beresford, England's best, in similar manner to the Navy's victory. The Briton is noted for his strong finishes, but so is Kelly and the latter outlasted him. In the matter of polished, scientific sculling there are few who have been the Philadelphian's equal.

Kelly showed his stamina and condition when he went out soon after the singles final and, with his cousin Paul Costello, took the final in the double sculls hands down.

The Americans won three out of four of the events in which they started and three out of five of the total number of events.

In the four-oared race the United States had a crew which undoubtedly was below the nation's standard of efficiency. The Duluth Boat Club could easily have produced a much faster combination than the four from the Quaker City, but Young Jim Ten Eyck, the Duluth coach, was too intent on developing an eight which he hoped would beat the Navy and his father's Syracuse boatload, and thus the four was not forthcoming.

The fifth event was for pair-oared shells (two men in a boat each rowing a sweep), with coxswains. This branch of boating has long been out of vogue here, the event having been dropped from the program of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen in 1909. It never was rowed with coxswains. If the Olympic list of events is to remain uniform it would be well for American rowing authorities to bring the pairs back again.

With the end of the major league pennant races now less than four weeks away, prospects are bright for two of the most sensational finishes of many years. Three weeks from next Sunday the final games will be played in each organization, and it is possible that both decisions may go down to the closing games of the year. Such a condition would not be surprising in view of the inability of any one team in either organization to shake off the others during recent weeks.

In the National League two Eastern clubs and one Western aggregation remain in the race, while the American League shows two clubs from the West with a single representative from the East. The Giants and Robins will do most of their fighting on their home grounds, and the fact that the last few days of the season will bring these rivals together adds to the uncertainty of the race. A winning spurt by either the McGrawmen or the clan of Robinson might prove sufficient to carry the fortunate team over the wire a winner, and there is the other possibility that they may be hacking away at each other and breaking even while the world's champion Reds are making the necessary spurt to win.

In the American League the Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox will make their fight at home during the greater part of the remaining period, while the Yankees will play fifteen of their twenty-two games away from the Polo Grounds. Ordinarily there is an advantage in playing at home, but it is nothing that can be counted on as a certainty. One frequently sees a team slump badly before daily crowds of encouraging fans, and winning streaks on alien fields are not entirely new in baseball. Good pitching is worth far more to a team than the friendly spirit that is supposed to urge players on to victory. Give a team good pitching on the road and it will win. Let the same pitchers slump at home and the fans cannot change the result.

Both the Giants and Robins, the representatives of the Greater City in the National League race, can be relied upon to win a majority of their games, but that is not the whole story. The Reds have some games to play with Western clubs, and also have to meet the Braves and Phillies, as well as the two Eastern contenders. Much will depend on what other teams do against the Reds. The Giants—or Robins—will not become secure by upsetting the champions unless other teams keep up the good work.

The same may be said of the American League race. The Yankees to date have taken the measure of every team in the league at the Polo Grounds. On the road they have won a majority of games in Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit and Cleveland, and have broken even in Chicago and St. Louis. They have failed only in Washington, where a second division team holds forth. Good as this record is, they must keep on winning, and must get help from other Eastern clubs if they are to win. Recent work by the Mackmen and Red Sox offers some encouragement, and Washington is strong enough to do damage in the West. With three of its teams among the six still remaining in the fight, New York surely may expect to be the battleground for at least half of the world's series.

This generation of golfers is living through a momentous season. It isn't every one of the golfing phalanx of recent years who can tell stories about great English players in action or of have witnessed the leading shot-makers of Canada or of France. Year in and year out the American championship tournaments, although exciting, have been closed affairs, wherein the best of the nation have fought it out for the topmost rung of the ladder. Occasionally a stranger or two has wandered in for a try. But this glorious links season of 1920 has been crowded with international events, and with especial interest centred upon the duel between Britain and the United States.

The British ladies' championship at Newcastle was considered extraordinary, with four young American matrons and misses entered. Then followed the British amateur at Muirfield, where Bob Gardner came within a long putt on the thirty-seventh green of bringing back the crown. A week later followed the British open at deal, when Jim Barnes finished sixth, and a week after that the French open at Versailles, where Walter Hagen won. Then the battleground was transplanted to this side, and at Inverness Ted Ray snatched the national open and sent it overseas. At Ottawa two weeks ago Douglas Edgar won the Canadian open.

Is it any wonder, therefore, that several thousands of linksmen and linkswomen will drop business and other cares to journey out to Roslyn this week for the national—really the international—amateur championship? America is attacked on the front and two flanks. Champions of Britain, France and Canada have covetous eyes upon Davie Herron's title. They want it, and want it badly—so badly that four brilliant stars from the British Isles and a dozen from the Dominion across the northern border will undertake the assault.

There has never been such an international tournament in golf's history. A few Americans competed abroad in 1913 and 1914. In 1911 Harold H. Hilton came here and was the sole foreigner to win an American amateur championship. But none of those events approached in interest or importance this week's fixture, when more than 225, a record number by several score, will compete.

Interest isn't going to centre on Herron's attempts to retain the title, but on the efforts of Americans to withstand the foreign invasion. If Herron can batter down Tolley, Armour and Grier, in addition to others, well and good. But if he can't do it, then it's up to Gardner, Ouimet, Jones, Evans, Travers, Sweetser or whoever else is able. And when Saturday rolls around and the thirty-six-hole final match is over, the holder of the U. S. G. A. medal and cup will be in fact, if not officially, the amateur golf champion of the world.

FANS BEGIN MARCH TOWARD THE ARENA

Special to The New York Times.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Sept. 5.—Shortly before midnight tonight the crowd began to move toward the arena. By trolley car, automobiles, carriages, afoot and even behind mule teams the advance on the scene of tomorrow's fistic battle was begun. By groups at first and and then in an almost continuous stream the nondescript cavalcade crept over the broad dirt road leading from the heart of the city. Outside the portals of the big wooden amphitheatre the people dispensed themselves as best they could. Little bonfires flickered here and there and lent to the scene the appearance of an ever-growing army encamped before a beleaguered fortress, awaiting only the first filmy streaks of dawn before beginning the bombardment of dollars by which the place was to be taken by storm.

Throughout the evening peals of laughter, the shrill notes of a harmonica and the bursts of "close harmony" could be heard. For almost the first time in its history Benton Harbor was staying up all night. Sleep was out of the question. There were many who could find no place to sleep; there were others who didn't want to sleep, and with it all a spirit of good fellowship prevailed. There was little grumbling about inconvenience. It was apparent that every one did come with the idea of having a good time and of making a good time if there was not a ready-made one to be had. As a result, the sorely taxed police force didn't experience a great deal of trouble in preserving order.

Here and there a crap game or three-card monte or the shell game broke out like a rash and died the same way. Benton Harbor doesn't boast very many policemen as policemen are counted in a big city, but those it has were all-fired alert tonight. The call of "Come on, you big Dick," or "Let's see the color of your eyes, little Joe," was invariably accompanied by the appearance of a blue uniform in the circle of light, and it was all off.

For a mile in all directions stretching away from the arena far-sighted venders of edibles and drinkables had pitched booths. And they did a land-office business. Money meant nothing to the hungry and thirsty ones. The lunch baskets that the majority had so carefully prepared and so carefully guarded were found inadequate to meet the demands of appetites roused by nature's cocktail of open air. When they were emptied the booths became the meccas of the populace.

Within the city itself all was activity. During the evening the street carnival with its carousal, its cane ringing, its ferris wheel and its freaks got a great play. Those who had time to kill were out to kill it in any way that offered. And they succeeded much better than a glance at the Benton Harbor of a week ago promised.

Hotels and boarding houses were jammed to the gunwales, and there was many a late arrival who stood wistfully in front of the show window of the furniture store on Main Street and gazed with longing eyes at the unoccupied beds that invitingly beckoned from beyond the barrier of plate glass. Cots under tents not much larger than pup tents were eagerly bid for. Price meant nothing. The people had money and they were willing to spend it.

Incidentally there was many a bank roll that disappeared without being spent. The "boys" from many places who don't like to work for their small change had flocked into Benton Harbor all day, and in spite of the energetic activities of the officers of the law they succeeded in reaping a fairly good income on some one's else expense account.

Those who did not start to the arena tonight made extensive preparations for an early getaway in the morning. The restaurants were kept busy making up lunch boxes.

It seemed that of all the people in Benton Harbor and its vicinity but two got any sleep. Dempsey and Miske turned in early.

ASHLEY WINS TENNIS CUP.

Eugene Ashley won the President's Cup in the men's singles tournament which was concluded yesterday on the lawn tennis courts of the Malba Field Club. Ashley, who was opposed to Shaw Lovett in the final, won by 6—3, 5—7, 6—0, 6—4. In the semi-finals Ashley beat Chester Palmer, 6—2, 6—2, 6—0, and Lovett beat Malcolm Stevenson, 6—2, 6—2, 6—4.

In the women's singles Mrs. Carter beat Miss Dorothy Merritt, 6—4, 7—5, 6—4.

HELSINGBORG, Sweden, Sept. 5.—The All St. Louis football team today defeated the Skane team by a score of 8 to 1. Marre, McHenry and Carrigan were the Americans to score points. Andersen obtained the point for Sweden.

DEMPSEY IS 2 TO 1 BETTING FAVORITE

Special to The New York Times.

BENTON HARBOR Mich., Sept. 5.—The appearance of a little Miske money here today forced the odds from 3 to 1, with Dempsey the favorite, to 2 to 1. For a short time it seemed as if there might be some real wagering on the outcome, but it was only a flurry, as it had been on other days and it soon subsided. Then those who were handling the larger commissions expressed the opinion that in order to coax forth any big Miske money it would be necessary to boost the odds, not only to 3 to 1 but to as high as 4 to 1. This they refused to do, claiming that such odds were not warranted.

One bet of $300 against $1,500 was made that Dempsey would knock Miske out in the third round. Another at odds of 7 to 10 was covered that Dempsey would win inside of seven rounds. The Miske supporters are seeking odds of 5 to 1 that Billy wins, but are willing to take 10 to 9 that their favorite lasts ten rounds. Odds of 15 to 1 that Miske does not score a knockout are going begging. A wager of $50 to $750 that Dempsey would win in the first round was recorded.

The arrival of about 200 of the State Constabulary has no doubt had some effect on the betting. Several betting emporiums had made elaborate arrangements to open up for business. They had installed blackboards on which the odds were quoted, and secretly advertised that they had bank rolls as deep as the lake, and that the sky was the limit, but all of them were promptly closed up by the State police.

Freak bets are being made among friends, and during the heavy rain of this morning one of the more ambitious of the betting fraternity offered to wager a thousand dollars or any part of it at even money that it would be clear tomorrow. There were no takers.

Vardon and Ray Win.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 5.—Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, star English golfers, defeated Walter Hagen of Detroit, open champion last year, and James Barnes, local professional, four up and three to go, in a thirty-six hole exhibition match today. The British players led throughout the match.

CONLIN TO UMPIRE BIG TENNIS MATCH

Today's Tennis Finals on Forest Hills Courts

Veterans—R. N. Dana vs. W. S. Campbell.

Juniors—Vincent Richards vs. W. W. Ingraham.

At 3:30 P. M.

Train Service.

Trains leave Long Island station for Forest Hills at 12:30, 12:51, 1:12, 1:30, 2:06, 2:30 and 3 P. M., daylight saving time.

When National Champion William M. Johnston of San Francisco and William T. Tilden, 2d, of Philadelphia, holder of the British title, start play at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon for the national singles title of 1920 on the championship court of the West Side Tennis Club, at Forest Hills, L. I., they will undoubtedly face the biggest tennis gallery ever assembled in the history of the game in this country. The West Side stands will accommodate more than 10,000 persons, and the indications are that even that generous allowance of seats will be insufficient to take care of all those who wish to witness the greatest tennis battle of the year.

Details governing the playing of the match were perfected last night with the announcement by Edward C. Conlin of the officials for the contest. Mr. Conlin will sit in the umpire's chair, as he has so often of late years in the most important matches of the season. The footfault judge will be Benjamin M. Phillips, and A. J. Gibney will be the net umpire. There are ten linesmen, numbered as follows: 1, Leo J. Lunn; 2, Miles S. Charlock; 3, O. M. Bostwick; 4 Harold Swain; 5, T. E. Tomlinson; 6, Franklin P. Adams; 7, R. E. Sears; 8, Clark Pool; 9, W. L. Tate, and 10, S. W. Merrihew.

The meeting of the two highest ranking players of the country will be their second of this season. In their previous encounter, in the final for the London championship at the Queen's Club in July Johnston was the winner. At Wimbledon, for the British championship, Johnston was deefated by J. C. Barke, who in turn lost to Tilden. Since his return to this country, Johnston has become the permanent possessor of the Longwood Bowl, defeating Nathaniel W. Niles in the challenge round. Tilden has gone through the season without a defeat save only the one administered by Johnston in the London final. The two also met last year at Forest Hills in the final round for the title, and Johnston came through with the victory, upsetting his greatest rival after the latter had gone through the season with a marvelous record of successes.

Prizes awarded tennis officials for general efficiency in this year's matches were announced last night by Mr. Conlin. The first prize for umpires was won by Clark Pool of the Binghamton Tennis Club, Binghamton, N. Y. Second honors went to R. P. Clarkson of Boston, and third to Captain A. P. Simmonds of the Country Club of Westchester. For linesmen, first prize went to Leo J. Lunn of the South Side Tennis Club, Chicago; second to Winfield L. Rice of the Flatbush-Terrace Club, Brooklyn, and third to Harry C. Farrand of the Bloomfield Tennis Club, Bloomfield, N. J. Among the footfault judges, Thomas C. Trask of the West Side Tennis Club won premier honors, with K. O. Klaren of the New Bedford Country Club, New Bedford, Mass., second, and Harold Swain of the West Side Club third.

Today's principal match in the grandstand enclosure at Forest Hills will be preceded by the finals in the veterans' singles at 1 o'clock between W. S. Campbell of New York and A. S. Dana of Providence, and in the junior national singles between Vincent Richards, the present junior champion, and W. W. Ingraham. Captain A. P. Simmonds will referee the veterans' match and Paul W. Gibbons of Philadelphia will officiate for the juniors.

CARPENTIER ON WAY HERE.

French Boxer Is Given Rousing Sendoff as He Boards Ship.

Georges Carpentier, European heavyweight champion, is now on the high seas, bound for this country and his bout against Battling Levinsky, scheduled to be held at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, under the auspices of the International Sporting Club, Oct. 12. The popular French boxer sailed Saturday on La Lorraine, according to a cablegram received by the I. S. C. from M. Vienne, well-known French promoter. A rousing send-off was accorded Carpentier and his manager, Francois Descamps, by hundreds of enthusiastic French admirers, according to details of the departure cabled by Promoter Vienne. The message stated that gendarmes had to force a lane through which the popular boxer and his manager could walk to the ship.

Carpentier's wife was conspicuous among those who wished the departing gladiator bon voyage. Mrs. Carpentier is not accompanying her husband. Flowers sent by admirers of the French idol decorated a large portion of the deck as the ship pulled out, Vienne's message said. Carpentier's luggage included sixteen trunks. Just before starting his second journey to this country Carpentier delivered the following address, as cabled by Promoter Vienne:

"This time I go to America to fight. Before I return I shall either have proved myself the best fighter or I shall have been beaten by the best fighter in the world."

KEARNS ISSUES DEFI.

Says Carpentier Can Name the Date for Bout with Dempsey.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Sept. 5.—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, declared tonight that Georges Carpentier can have a fight with Dempsey "any time he wants it." Carpentier sailed yesterday from France for New York.

"I shall meet Carpentier when he lands in New York next week," Kearns said. "Dempsey is in perfect condition and ready to fight at any time. All Carpentier has to do is name the date—we're ready any time he is."

Boxing Tonight at Armory A. A.

Heavyweights and featherweights will furnish the action this evening in the principal bouts to be held at the Armory A. A. of Jersey City. The stellar twelve-round contest will bring together John Burke of Pittsburgh, former amateur boxer, and Jack Pollock, a Baltimore heavyweight. This contest has been arranged to replace the scheduled bout between Tommy Elm and Jimmy Kane, which was cancelled because of Elm's illness. The other twelve-round contest will be between Sammy Sieger of the east side, another product of the amateur ring, and Johnny Yarns, of Jersey City.

PRESIDENT GREETS RUSSIAN CHILDREN

GIFTS AWAIT THE PILGRIMS

The 780 home-bound Petrograd children, who furnished a subject for attacks upon the United States by radicals at several meetings last week, will receive a message of greeting from President and Mrs. Wilson when they gather for a reception by the Junior Red Cross at Fort Wadsworth this afternoon. Copies of the letter, together with autographed photographs of President and Mrs. Wilson, will be distributed to the children by James N. Rule, National Director of the Junior Red Cross, who came from Washington to attend the reception. The message follows:

> Dr. Axson has shown to Mrs. Wilson and me your letter to him of Aug. 24, and I write to beg that you will convey to the colony of Petrograd children, which has been under the care of the American Red Cross Commission to Siberia during the past year and is now being transported by the commission to their homes, our warmest greetings. I am sure that you may say to them that the hearts of all the people of the United States go out in tenderest sympathy and that they will always hope that their future will be happy enough to make some amends for the past.
> Cordially and sincerely yours,
> EDITH BOLLING WILSON.
> WOODROW WILSON.

Although officially a Junior Red Cross affair, it was announced that the reception would mainly consist of a program prepared and acted by the Russian children themselves. Gifts will be distributed to the young pilgrims.

About 20,000 persons, many of them members of Brownsville's Russian colony turned out to greet fifty of the Petrograd children who were permitted by Red Cross officers to attend celebrations in their honor in Brownsville in the afternoon. In two groups of twenty-five girls and twenty-five boys they first lunched at Christian Institute, where they received a rousing welcome.

Major Riley Allen of the Red Cross, in charge of the colony, said yesterday that he was awaiting word from Washington as to the destination of the children. If they sail for France, he said, they will be landed at Bordeaux.

H. G. WELLS MAY RETURN.

English Novelist Expected to Join Pilgrims' Landing Delegation.

H. G. Wells, the English novelist, may make another visit to this country with the British delegation coming to help celebrate the tercentenary of the Pilgrims' Landing and the establishment of the first American Legislative Assembly at Jamestown, Va., according to an announcement yesterday by the Sulgrave Institution. He was in the United States years ago. Te party will arrive about Sept. 18.

Heading the delegation will be Lord Rathcreedan. The other members are Sir A. E. Shipley, Master of Christ's College and Vice Chancellor of Cambridge University; Professor Foakes Jackson, Admiral Sir Lawther Grant, K. C. B., in command of the American and West Indies stations during the war; Sir John A. Cockburn, K. C. M. G., ex-Premier of South Australia; Sir Arthur Herbert, G. C. V. O., diplomatist; J. B. Macafee, banker and Chairman of the American Luncheon Club in London; Sir John Henry, Colonel Edwards, D. S. O., of the Royal Warwickshire Regiment; Stanley Udale of the Anglo-American Society, and H. S. Perris, Chairman of the British Sulgrave Institution and of the committee which has charge of Washington's ancestral home, Sulgrave Manor.

Catalonia Opens Fight on Typhus.

BARCELONA, Spain, Sept. 4.—The Sanitation Section of the Regional Diet has started a campaign throughout Catalonia to check malaria, typhus and tuberculosis, which are widely prevalent. Numerous experimental stations are being opened and training schools are to be established for visiting nurses. It has been decided to co-operate with the International Commission of Red Cross Societies.

MANHATTAN TRIBUTE TO HAMMERSTEIN

With the musical season a month off and Labor Day taking many out of town over the week-end, a good-sized audience made up largely of operatic and theatrical people gathered last night at the Manhattan Opera House to do honor to its builder, the late Oscar Hammerstein, in a special dedicatory concert on the return of the theatre to the purposes for which he had planned it.

Mrs. Hammerstein, who with guests occupied a box at the left of the house, had arranged a musical program in which was at least one artist whom Mr. Hammerstein had wanted to bring to America ten years ago, the violinist and composer, Joseph Piastro-Borisoff, professor of violin in the conservatories of Moscow and Kiev.

A life size painting of Mr. Hammerstein, made for Mrs. Hammerstein by Baron Arpad Paszthory, which is to hang in the lobby, was shown on the stage, covered at first by an American flag. There were speeches, and the program also had a review of the impresario's career.

The overture from "Tannhaeuser," which Hammerstein had once given in this theatre in French, was played by the orchestra. Another of his Manhattan productions, "La Juive," was recalled when Cantor Meyer Kanewsky sang an air from that opera, followed by the "Eli, Eli," arranged by Schindler.

Others who appeared were Anne Jago, in the mother's air from "The Prophet"; Genia Zielinska, who sang the "Ah fors e lui" from "Traviata," and Lillian Cusumano, the "Visso d'Arte" from "Tosca." Pietro Capodiferro led the orchestra and Daniel Lieberfeld assisted at the piano.

While spoken plays, including "An Enemy of the People" tonight and later on "Ben Hur," will be heard at the Manhattan, the season's forecast in last night's bills was more musical, and most of all operatic.

After the San Carlo Company's month here, Anna Pavlowa has the week of Oct. 18, and next Spring, after the Chicago Opera's visit, there is announced a season of Wagner in English.

TURKISH NATIONALISTS SUFFER NEW DEFEATS

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 4 (Associated Press).—The capture of Urfa, in Asiatic Turkey, seventy-five miles southwest of Diarbekr, by French forces is announced here. A strong French column was recently reported marching on Urfa, which had been held for some time by Turkish Nationalists.

Further progress by the Greeks against the Nationalists was reported today. The Turks, it is stated, have evacuated Kutayah, eighty miles southeast of Brusa, and Afiun-Karahissar, fifty miles southeast of Kutayah, the Greeks entering both places as the Turks left.

The situation in Adana, where conditions were recently reported to have been ameliorated through a French sortie, is graphically described in a letter from Miss Ruth E. Henry of Amherst, Mass., a worker for the American Commission for Relief in the Near East.

"This is not the most delightful watering place in the world just now," she writes, "with twenty-two Americans penned up in a filthy place, living and waiting under a strain night and day. The city is the most hopeless place I can remember and we have not set foot outside it since we came. It is so unclean I get nauseated just walking to the office.

"As for the people—everybody tortures something. Already I have beaten a boy right on the main street for his abuse of a dog. With my own eyes I have seen the most heartrending things. One day I saw ten men hanging.

"It is so hot we drag our beds into the hallway. The roof is impossible. We can hear bullets singing over the roof at almost any time. We live to the tune of machine guns, cannon and hand grenades.

"One column of French has fought its bloody way to Mersina (against the besieging Turkish Nationalist forces) and grain is being brought into the city under French guard."

Palestine Jews to Meet Oct. 7.

JERUSALEM, Sept. 4.—The Jewish Assembly in Palestine will be opened on Oct. 7, it was officially announced today. The main object of this first gathering of Jewish representatives from all parts of Palestine will be the election of an independent executive composed of Palestinian Jews, to replace the present Zionist Commission.

THE SCREEN

This seems to be the open season for heroines of scandalous ancestry. Last week it was Elsie Ferguson as "Lady Rose's Daughter." This week it is Norma Talmadge, at the Strand, who again demonstrates, in "The Branded Woman," that a girl can't be too careful about picking a mother. The picture is hardly as good as Miss Talmadge's talents deserve, and whatever popularity it achieves will be due largely to the good work of the star as Ruth Sawyer, Percy Marmont as Douglas Courtenay and Vincent Serrano as "Velvet" Craft.

The story is hardly epoch-making in its novelty, relating as it does the trials of Ruth Sawyer, a young woman whose mother was not only a chorus beauty but ran a gambling den in the bargain. Shortly after learning of her mother's past our heroine meets the man of her dreams, from whom she conceals her terrible secret. After their marriage her mother's gambling partner turns up, of course, and blackmails Ruth. Follow discovery, grief and rage of husband, flight of Ruth to save her baby's name, pursuit by repentant consort, discomfiture of villain, reconciliation at the hands of a little chee-ild. Grace Studdiford is effective as a sinful mother, and George Fawcett is a pleasingly grumpy but kindly grandfather.

"Civilian Clothes," which is at the Rivoli this week, makes a better film than it did a play, for the inconsistency and artificiality of some of the situations seem somehow more plausible in the film version. Thomas Meighan is delightful as Captain Sam McGinnis, the A. E. F. veteran, whose store clothes horrify the society belle whom he had married in France when she was a Salvation Army worker. She thought Sam had been killed, and so thought it hardly worth while to mention her marriage to her family. But Sam turns up, and when she attempts to explain that, war or no war, a shoemaker's son who wears clothes like that would hardly fit into her set, he decides that she needs a lesson in democracy. So he gets a job as butler in his wife's own home, with mirth-provoking results, not the least important of which is the eventual winning back of his chastened and democratized bride.

Mr. Meighan's performance is a thoroughly expert bit of high comedy, and his engaging twinkle and 100 per cent. masculinity will doubtless cause many a feminine heart to palpitate. Martha Mansfield, beautiful as ever, plays Florence Lanham, the wife, and manages to make her attractive despite her snobbery. The other parts, none of which is very important, are satisfactorily handled.

"Milestones," the Knoblock-Bennett play which set the town more or less agog some half a dozen seasons ago, has reached the motion picture screen at the Capitol Theatre this week, with Lewis Stone and Mary Alden in the leading roles. At the Rialto Theatre, Roscoe Arbuckle is making his first appearance in a semi-serious role, that of the memorable sheriff in Edmund Day's "The Round-Up," a role which Maclyn helped to make celebrated a decade ago. "While New York Sleeps" is the program at the Astor this week; "The Right to Love" continues at the Criterion, and Mr. Griffith's "Way Down East" has settled down for what will probably be a long run at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre.

Paul Brunet Back from Paris.

was suggested by the reporter. "Haven't you any fear that as the months and years elapse, Mrs. Coughlin, it may grow more and more difficult, and perhaps even impossible, for you to identify your own baby? Isn't it true that babies have been swapped in hospitals, that babies change so at an early age that there may be little or nothing to recognize them by?"

Sure She Would Know Child.

"That is a difficult question to answer," was the mother's reply. "But I always feel as if I would know my own son—my own child. He has no marks that I could describe so that a stranger might identify him. But I am his mother. I cared for him constantly with my own hands, night and day, for thirteen months. There are indefinable marks that I am sure I would recognize months or years from now. There is a family resemblance. There must be. I cannot believe I could be mistaken.

"We have seen lots and lots of babies," she continued, smiling. "My husband and I, it seems, have traveled continually from one place to another to look at babies that different persons are sure must be our baby. And the only baby that I hesitated about for an instant was one in New York. My own brother-in-law was fooled. He thought that baby was mine. But it wasn't, I am positive. I couldn't make a mistake about my own flesh and blood."

More discussion followed on the question raised by the Hammonton baby. As has been told, Mrs. Bakley in Hammonton holds strongly to the theory that a mother easily might not recognize her own baby after it had been away from her two or three months. In fact, Mrs. Bakley cites an instance that came under her personal notice of a woman who had difficulty recognizing her baby after only a five weeks' separation.

Parents Firm in Faith.

The Coughlins wouldn't be shaken, however, in their perfect faith in the discernment of mother eyes and the feeling of a mother heart. That is one rock upon which they solidly have lashed their faith. What Mrs. Bakley thinks, or what Chief of Police Mottola thinks, or any one else may think about it, judging from their attitude today, could no more shake them in their profound trust that mother love knows its own than the cool breeze that was sweeping over the Pennsylvania hills could tumble their cozy white cement Summer home about their ears.

After that matter—and one that now is engaging the interest of many sympathizers with the Coughlins—was put aside the conversation veered to Augusto Pasquale, who is held in the Montgomery County Jail here in connection with the kidnapping, and who has confessed that he is the man who got from Mr. Coughlin $12,000 in ransom money for the child.

"He has told of fifty places where the baby might be found. But none of them were right. There appears to be no way to make him talk."

"You see," Mrs. Coughlin struck in, "this is vastly different from a murder case. We have a little life to think about and to save. We must go slowly and cautiously. We must do nothing to jeopardize this life. And the Pennsylvania State Police have been wonderful. None but that wonderful body of men could have helped us as much as we have been helped."

"Have you got back the $12,000 yet?" Mr. Coughlin was asked.

"No," was the reply, "and at present there seems to be no promise that I will get it back. But we are not bothering about the money. It is our son that we want back. We are worrying about him."

A question as to how much money had been spent in the hunt for Blakely caused both Mr. and Mrs. Coughlin to laugh, not as if they were amused, but rather as if they were hurt by the question.

"I do not think the public would be interested," Mr. Coughlin said. "I know it wouldn't. Also I don't know how much."

A Life at Stake.

"We haven't thought about that," said Mrs. Coughlin. "And further, we believe that newspapers have been our worst enemies in our hunt. They go at it as if a murder had been considered. They forget that most important factor of all, that I already have pointed out to you, that there is a life to consider here. They should always remember that."

While Mr. and Mrs. Coughlin were talking they smiled frequently and laughed once or twice. But always there was the sense of strain—the feeling that at any moment somewhere out among the trees and across the turnpike on which automobiles whirled on their way to and from Philadelphia—one of those always hunting and perspiring Boy Scouts might find—something.

Mrs. Coughlin mentioned the Boy Scouts two or three times during the conversation. She said that that was how it chanced that she was at home on this beautiful Sunday afternoon—sitting there waiting, as she has waited since June 2, under the arbor in her doorway. And just overhead was the second-story window from which the kidnapper had descended a ladder in the night and taken her baby.

"And you are sure that, no matter how long may be the time, Mrs. Coughlin cannot make a mistake in identifying your son?"

"We are sure," was the reply, voiced in such a smilingly courageous and withal hopeful way that even one who came to them a doubter might have left convinced. The shouts of laughter of David and McLean, running about the yard, were the last sounds heard.

Thinks Mother Is Mistaken.

Later, in Hammonton, it was learned that Mrs. Bakley insists that when the Coughlins arrived at her home on Friday Mr. Coughlin said nothing, but that Mrs. Coughlin, after looking at the baby there long and carefully, said:

"It seems too large to be my boy. It seems to have more teeth."

Mrs. Bakley and the Chief of Police said that the Hammonton baby closely resembled the photograph of the Coughlin baby. She said that Mrs. Coughlin could not reconcile herself to the fact that the baby in Hammonton is talking a little.

"I feel certain that this is the Coughlin baby," she says. "It isn't at all surprising that his mother cannot recognize him, after three months."

Police Chief Mottola has sent for Mrs. Charles Pontier of Jenkintown, near here, who Mrs. Bakley said, left the baby with her, saying it was her sister's. He said today that if Mrs. Pontier did not come, as she has promised, he would go after her. The Chief is convinced that his theory is correct.

It was impossible to reach the District Attorney here today, or to see Pasquale in his cell. The Warden of the jail said that he was charged with kidnapping, but that no information could be made public.

At Police Headquarters the reporter was told that the case was being handled by the State police, and that the local force had nothing to do with it. But it was said in headquarters that Pasquale was being guarded night and day. A State policemen sits outside his cell all the time.

The Coughlin baby is the chief topic of discussion throughout this part of the country. Officials differ as to Pasquale's exact status in the case. The State police aren't saying anything. They are working in their efficient way to solve this riddle of the missing Coughlin baby. And even officials were heard here today to ask, if much more time elapses, will it be possible for Mrs. Coughlin to identify her own son.

The New York Times:

We have followed with great interest your new departure in combining an illustrated Magazine Section with the Book Review Section. The presence of illustrations certainly increases its interest, and the rotogravure method of printing seems particularly well adapted to portraits.

The increase in the number of pages by which you avoid the swamping of text by advertising matter also adds greatly to the attraction of a section upon which you deserve to be congratulated.

PUT 400-POUND BOX IN AUTO

It Is Found in Queens, Empty, and Gives Police First Clue to Burglary.

Yeggmen picked up a 400-pound safe in East Fourteenth Street early yesterday morning, motored with it out to a secluded spot in Queens, sledged it open and obtained $2,500, Saturday's receipts at the Ligget drugstore at 138 East Fourteenth Street.

Henry Dann, who lives at 543 Tenth Avenue, Long Island City, went out for a stroll through the woods near Flushing Avenue and Old Bowery Bay Road, a point about three-quarters of a mile from North Beach. Rambling through the woods, Dann chanced upon an iron safe surrounded by crowbars, sledges and drills. The safe was empty save for a few papers. Dann notified the Astoria police station and detectives looked the safe and the ground over. They decided that somebody had taken the strongbox from somewhere. So they decided to take it to the station house.

After the safe had reposed there for a spell, Police Headquarters sent out an alarm for a safe missing from the Liggett establishment. A checkup satisfied the police that the Astoria find was the Liggett money repository, fifteen miles from home.

Inquiry at the drug store disclosed that the safe on Saturday night was moved to within eight feet of the front door. To make certain that anybody going by would be certain to see it, two strong electric bulbs were trained on it. At 4 o'clock in the morning when Policeman Thomas Brennan of the Fifth Street Station went by on his beat the safe was there.

It was still there at 4:30 o'clock when Policeman Sullivan, covering Brennan while the latter had breakfast, swung past. But at 5 o'clock, when Brennan, breakfast within, came along, it was not there. Down to the corner of Third Avenue hurried Brennan, and to Sullivan he said:

Half-a-ton or not, one peek of both policemen through the glass door proved that Brennan was correct. It was apparent that the yeggs hadn't got in through the front door, so the policemen went around to the back. On Thirteenth Street they found a cigarette postered signboard. A hole had been cut in the lithographic wall. Sullivan and Brennan climbed through. A steel door leading to the basement boiler room of the drug store had been removed with the aid of acetylene flame. A hole, two feet by three feet, had been dug through a hollow tile wall, opening into the store.

JAPANESE OFFICIAL SHOT.

TOKIO, Sept. 4.—Sectional Chief Saito of the Commercial Bureau of the Foreign Office was shot and seriously wounded in the abdomen today by Saroku Nishiyama, who escaped, threatening with a revolver all who tried to capture him. Saito will recover. He was to go to Washington soon.

Nishiyama surrendered later. It appears that he had a claim against the Chinese Government for damages as a result of being attacked and shot by a Chinese in Fukien Province. He asserted that Saito had delayed settlement of this claim.

RECRUITING SETS RECORD.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Army recruiting again broke all peace-time records during August, according to a statement tonight by Adjt. Gen. Harris, showing enlistments for the month to have reached 19,242. July enlistments, which were slightly larger than the number in June, were 15,821.

Enlistments are expected to go even higher in September, the statement said, because of the opening of the army school terms, which, officials believe, will attract scores of men into the service.

AIR MAIL TO PACIFIC STARTS WEDNESDAY

cago Post Office and all transit for Eastern points, connecting early evening trains and advancing delivery of all one business day. Leaving Chicago, take mail for New York City and New England States, also pouch for Cleveland.

At Cleveland: Put off pouch for Cleveland and take on same weight of mail for New York City and New England States.

At New York: Mail received at Chicago and Cleveland advanced 17 hours; connection made at New York for Boston which advances delivery of practically all New England one business day; train connection from West is via Albany.

There is only one through train connection in 24 hours between New York and San Francisco. This is train 35, leaving New York at 8:40 A. M. The bulk of New York's tremendous mail is deposited in letter boxes in various parts of the city after 4 P. M. It is clear this mail—amounting to carloads—cannot be collected, delivered into the post office and distributed in time to get all of the San Francisco and Pacific coast mail on the 8:40 train. The airplane at 5:30 A. M. Tuesday morning takes 400 pounds, or 16,000 of these leftover letters, and delivers them to train No. 35's connection at Chicago Tuesday afternoon.

Provides Army Landing Fields.

"With the establishment of the Trans-Continental Air Mail," said Postmaster General Burleson today, "there will be at the service of the United States military forces what is probably the greatest system of regularly maintained landing fields and facilities in the world, a system that will enable the movement of air fleets from ocean to ocean, with large landing fields and fueling and repair facilities approximately every 200 miles. There will be the fourteen airmail landing fields with the longest single jump 248 miles, as folows:

CREW OF S-5 GET HOLIDAY.

Commander Cooke Remains on Battleship Ohio for Inquiry.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—The crew of the sunken submarine S-5 were given a holiday today, and the men left the Philadelphia Navy Yard to visit friends in different sections of the city. Before this they offered to do a "crash dive" at the navy yard, to prove, they said, that their commander was not to blame for the accident.

One member of the crew went to New York to see his wife and a new baby that was born while its father was held prisoner under the surface of the ocean. Three of the thirty-seven survivors were still in the naval hospital tonight, but they were reported well on the way to recovery from the effects of chlorine gas.

The S-5, which yesterday again broke away from the battleship Ohio and sank in 150 feet of water off the Delaware Capes, was still at the bottom of the sea tonight and prospects for salvaging the little craft were said unofficially to be slim. It was reported that the Ohio was towing the S-5 to the local navy yard, but afterward the battleship was said to have proceeded to Norfolk.

An investigating board was convened as soon as the Ohio reached the scene of the accident and Lieut. Commander Charles M. Cook, Jr., commander of the ill-fated submarine, was taken aboard the warship. It was said tonight a full inquiry board, which will make a thorough investigation of the accident and attempt to fix responsibility for the failure of the safety valve to work when the craft started a "nose dive," will probably be appointed within a few days.

REINSCH WARNS CHINA.

Copyright, 1920, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PEKING, Sept. 5.—Dr. Paul S. Reinsch of Wisconsin, former Minister to China and a member of the American Congressional party, has presented to the Chinese Government, through its Cabinet, a memorandum implying that American recognition of the Military Government of China is only provisional and may, along with recognition of other liberal nations, be withdrawn. The memorandum makes a plea for a national citizens convention to frame a National Constitution.

Dr. Reinsch's position is supported by members of the Congressional party, and, it is believed, has the unofficial support of the American Legation.

The memorandum states the belief of the former Minister that the Chinese people are firmly committed to a democratic form of government, and cites the failure of Yuan Shi Kai and Chang Hsun's attempts at a restoration of monarchy.

The memorandum points out the great need of 20,000 miles of railroad, 30,000 miles of motor roads, development of the judiciary, coinage reform, and, apparently referring to the loan consortium, says that it is impossible to obtain foreign financial help as long as the present military government exists.

FISH FOR JEWELRY IN WELL.

HAVERSTRAW, N. Y., Sept. 5.—Several volunteers tried in vain today to fish out of a deep well on the William Redner farm, near Highland Falls, a watch and two rings, one a diamond engagement ring, lost by Miss Olive Smith when drawing a bucket of water. The value of the articles is placed at $2,500.

Miss Smith, who lives in Highland Falls, has been camping at Popolo Pond, back of Highland Falls. When on a hike she stopped at the Redner place to get a drink. The well chain slipped, caught her diamond-studded wrist watch and pulled it off, taking also her rings. The jewelry could be seen at the bottom of the well, under several feet of water.

PILGRIMS' CHURCH SERVICES

PLYMOUTH, England, Sept. 5.—The Pilgrims, who are here for the Mayflower celebrations, devoted Sunday to religious ceremonies, the principal one being a special service in the ancient St. Andrew's Church. This was attended by the Lord Mayor in full scarlet regalia, with berobed bearers of the maces and other civil authorities.

The chief note sounded at the series of meetings, which began at 9 o'clock at the Mayflower Stone, where the Pilgrims embarked, and were held in all the churches in Plymouth Borough, was praise for the stalwarts who sought a new land to gain religious freedom.

OUST GEN. MONTALVO AS NOMINEE IN CUBA

HAVANA, Sept. 4.—The ousting of General Montalvo as a presidential nominee and the naming of Dr. Alfredo Zayas in his stead, as the result of the Conservative-Popular coalition compact, eliminates the probability of violence in connection with the coming election, President Menocal declared in a statement issued today. President Menocal also declared the action demonstrated the impartiality with which his Government proposed to conduct the elections. His statement said:

"The coalition has been under consideration several months. But at the same session at which General Montalvo was proclaimed a candidate the final decision virtually remained subject to the result of the efforts of a committee appointed to effect a coalition agreement. In the course of this committee's work a deadlock was reached, when General Montalvo proposed that both he and Dr. Zayas withdraw and agree on a compromise candidate acceptable to both sides.

"This proposal, at first rejected by the Popular Party conferees, later was accepted by them, but General Montalvo was then found unwilling to carry it out. Despite this, negotiations continued, the Populars agreeing that the nominee should be a Conservative. Dr. Enrique José Varona, first President of the Conservative Party and Vice President of the republic during my first term, was chosen. His health, however, would not permit him to accept. The Popular Party then represented Zayas's name, to which the Conservatives believed they should give the same consideration the Populars had shown Dr. Varona.

"The greatest merit of the coalition is that it removes from the electoral contest the uncompromising character which perhaps causes violence and disorders in some localities, due to the efforts of the Miguelista Liberals to limit the struggle to constant recriminations for past events, especially the revolution of February, 1917, disregarding the generosity with which the rebels were treated and piling up most offensive and mortifying insults and accusations against the Government and the Conservative Party.

"The struggle today becomes one between two candidates springing from the Liberal Party, one of whom has the support of his ancient opponents and other independent groups, thus representing a policy of true moral pacification and concord which will erase all past animosities; the other, General Gomez, who incarnates, or appears to incarnate, in spite of his manifestations to the contrary (which the violent activity of his press and partisans does not confirm), a policy of exclusivism and animosity.

"I do not believe it possible to interpret the electoral code so as to obstruct party action, but rather to facilitate and guarantee it, as its author, the illustrious General Crowder, proposed."

TURN LAUGH ON POLICEMAN.

OTISVILLE, Sept. 5.—Autoists arrested by Motorcycle Policeman Polman had the laugh on him today in Monticello when, after arraigning them in court charged with speeding, they made a countercharge and convicted him of operating a machine without a State license.

Polman arrested the driver of a car conveying Mrs. Elizabeth Mellor of Otisville. Sidney Scharlin, a witness for the autoist, discovered that the policeman's motorcycle carried no license register. So he charged the policeman with violating the motor vehicle law. The Judge fined the policeman $5 and suspended sentence.

The body has not been found.

The relaxation of call money rates last week was an accompanying factor and hardly the cause of an improved sentiment in the financial markets over the credit situation. A 6 per cent. quotation for demand loans was something of a surprise on Thursday, especially as the rate had been as high as 10 per cent. on Monday. The Street had become convinced that the steadily prevailing rates for time loans and commercial paper, as well as the Reserve Bank rediscount rates, established 7 per cent. as a moderate cost for loans on call. The recession to what was considered a sub-normal level occurred after and not coincident with the development of security price movements toward higher figures. Railroad bonds and stocks gained ground the week before and the week before that, and inquiries in bank and brokerage offices showed purchases to be impelled, in part, by the intangible though real impression that underlying credit conditions were a trifle stronger than on Aug. 1. The justification of this feeling is still to be proved in bank statements, for nothing has been disclosed yet to show that the peak of the Autumn demands has been passed. The Reserve Bank ratios of cash to liabilities reflect a struggle to hold comparatively steady with the figures of a month and two months ago. Time loans on collateral are extremely hard to get at 8% and 9 per cent. And until there is assurance through hard and fast banking reports that credit is easing, it goes without saying that the stock and bond markets will be subject to irregular swings. In lieu of confirmatory figures the market following points to influences working to bring about what is hoped for. It is pointed out that gradual improvement of railroad service has occurred since the "outlaw" strikes came to an end, assisting in the liquidation of goods long held back from the market. In this connection The Railway Age may be referred to in its estimate that in the first week of August the roads moved 20 per cent. more carloads than in the first week of June. Also, the supporters of belief in credit easement assert that the downward revision of prices, notably that of spot cotton from 40 to 32 cents in slightly more than a month, has lessened the prospective demands which the banks have been preparing for. Hence, it is argued, the process of transferring credit conserved for one purpose to uses in other directions can be done in a fashion to aid business and not entail any fresh inflation.

Before Oct. 15 the country's gold supplies will be materially increased through shipments by France. The flow of metal from London continues from week to week and an offsetting export movement shows no sign of developing. The transfers incident to liquidation of the Anglo-French loan are estimated between $50,000,000 and $80,000,000, and whether the gold comes from France or London or elsewhere, it will find its place in our reserves. The movement is important, not so much, perhaps, in respect to its influence upon the bases for credit at the time of arrival as later on when the Autumn demands upon the banks have been halted and credit returns to its source. It is likely that when these two factors begin to work in conjunction a powerful test will be administered to the policy of Reserve Bank officials and private bankers which has long called for persistent deflation of the credit structure.

The largest individual investment transaction of the year is to be undertaken tomorrow with the offering of a French Government loan of $100,000,000. The amount has been settled upon after the investment market was canvassed by a widespread syndicate, and the terms, not yet made public, represent the judgment of many minds in respect to what the bond-buying public will demand. The results, to a degree, will show the bankers for railroad and industrial companies what they may expect to pay for borrowed funds this year and the extent of the market for paper returning 8 per cent. or thereabout. While in normal periods there would be only a remote comparison between a French Government long-term bond and the average corporate issue, still in times like the present credit costs are leveled out to a rather general basis by credit scarcity.

Those searchers for economic knowledge who have deplored the tendency of wage increases to pursue advancing commodity prices and price increases, in turn to stimulate wage-earners to seek fresh advancement of their daily incomes, were presented with something new to think about last week. The so-called "vicious circle" had a rather abrupt reversal into what might be described as a figure of eight by an outbreak of strikes and "vacations." The general wholesale commodity price list has fallen considerably since June 1 and a part of the recession, especially in clothing and food materials, has reached the consumer. Theoretically, a fall of the cost of living should result in a stabilization of wages. But we have had at home a stubborn strike of workers on a great city transportation system, the declination of thousands of miners to work, the threat of a widespread building strike at New York, while in England coal mine workers have set Sept. 25 as a day for a strike unless their demands are met. The occurrence of these events is at a time when slackened production in textile fields, in the leather trade and the automobile industry, among others, has caused a growth of unemployment. These divers developments stand high among the obstacles before a clear vision of the actual situation of business and industry.

The proposed merger of five prominent chemical companies indicates, among other things, the cementing together of experience and information on the dyestuffs industry gathered during the war period and later. It forecasts the full alignment of American forces to combat encroachments of the German dye trade upon the American market. The German dye industry led the world in the pre-war period and had developed processes for extracting colors from coal-tar products which other nations vainly strove to emulate. Presumably, the companies planning to unite their knowledge and make joint use of patents and formulae are hoping for adequate protection by law against the "dumping" of foreign goods here, but over and above this their chief stockholders have discerned the wisdom of combining in a plan which should reduce costs and work to enhance outputs already substantial. The great German dye works, lacking raw materials and sufficient amounts of fuel, have not returned to their full productive strength. Information from German manufacturing centres shows, however, that they are looking forward to a large expansion of output and exports as soon as conditions are right, and the low position of German exchange in the leading textile manufacturing countries presents a distinct advantage to outside buyers. It will be interesting from both a business and an economic viewpoint to trace the progress of the American dyestuffs industry when world conditions offer freer competition than now is possible.

Rationing Gasoline

The situation in gasoline has reached a condition where the refiners find themselves unable to supply the demand. To meet the situation and prevent a large increase in the price of gasoline, the refiners have proposed to officials of the Government a plan for rationing the article.

It is believed there is sufficient gasoline for business, without the joy riders, but there is a deficit of some 2,000,000 gallons daily between production and consumption. The demand from all uses calls for 13,000,000 a gallons a day, while the production is estimated at 11,000,000 gallons.

Refinery capacity is ample to take care of all needs, but the crude is lacking.

FRANCE IMPROVES HER TRADE POSITION

GROWS MORE FOODSTUFFS

Imports of This Description Decrease—Improvement in Manufacturing Industry.

Improvement in economic conditions in France was outlined yesterday by the French High Commission in the United States in a survey compiled from official sources. The survey says:

"An extraordinary improvement was shown in France's trade balance for the first seven months of 1920, as compared with the balance for the same months in 1919. Last year the adverse trade balance from January to July amounted to 14,245,838,000 francs. The trade balance has been improved in the first seven months of this year by more than four billion francs, or 31.54 per cent. Exports from January to July, 1920, amounted to 12,006,629,000 francs, while the exports during the first seven months of 1919 totaled 4,776,402,000 francs. An increase of 151.38 per cent. is shown here.

Adverse trade balance—	14,245,838,000	9,754,113,000

Adverse trade balance decreased, 31.54 per ct.

"An analysis of each of the foregoing figures shows that the production of foodstuffs in France is increasing appreciably. During the first seven months of 1920 food products valued at 5,395,180,000 francs were imported. During the corresponding period of 1919, the importation of food products amounted to 5,706,455,000 francs. Comparison shows a decrease in imports of food so far this year amounting to 311,265,000 francs, or 5.45 per cent.

"Improvement in manufacturing and material progress in industrial reconstruction is also indicated. In the first seven months of 1919 raw materials amounting to 7,369,082,000 francs were imported. During the corresponding months this year imports of industrial material totaled 10,153,394,000 francs, an increase of 2,784,312,000 francs, or 37.78 per cent. The increase in imports of industrial materials is greater than the total increase in imports. In other words, imports other than those of raw material decreased during the first seven months of 1920.

"It will be noted that exports of food products for the first seven months of 1920 were more than double those for the same period of 1919. Exports of foodstuffs this year amounted to 1,088,720,000 francs. Exports for the corresponding period of last year amounted to 528,315,000 francs."

DRAWS JONES ACT PROTEST.

Norway Declares Its Enforcement Will Hurt Shipping Interests.

CHRISTIANIA, Norway, Sept. 4.—The Norwegian Foreign Minister announces that his Government, co-operating with other nations, is preparing a protest against the Jones Navigation act, adopted last June by the American Congress. The protest will be forwarded soon to the United States Government.

Strict enforcement of the Jones act, it is asserted, will greatly hamper Norwegian navigation, especially ships engaged in the transportation of fruit from the West Indies to New York. The large fleet of vessels, it is stated, are of little use for other purposes. It is declared that freight service between the United States and Norway also would suffer severely by strict enforcement of the act.

WARNS CITY TO SAVE IN HOUSING CRISIS

Real Estate Board Assails "Extravagant Plans" and Cites Debt Limit.

LISTS $179,500,000 SOUGHT

Refers to "Probable Unconstitutionality" of State and Municipal Schemes.

The Real Estate Board of New York yesterday called upon taxpayers and owners of real property to "take a very keen interest in current municipal and State events," urging that particular attention be paid to "extravagant plans" by the city for schools, docks, buses and markets, while the housing shortage is at an acute stage and large appropriations for its relief are being considered. Incidentally is referred to "the probable unconstitutionality of a State or municipal housing scheme."

A statement by the board summed up the various appropriations sought by the city, a total, according to the board's figures, of $179,500,000, and pointed out that especial interest on the part of taxpayers was needed at this time because the city was rapidly approaching the constitutional debt limit. This, the board believes, explains why real estate men have heard rumors that the city is seeking to raise assessed valuations.

"While the Lockwood Joint Legislative Housing Committee seems to be giving consideration to such radical proposals as setting up the City of New York and other cities of the State in the building business, exempting new houses from taxation," says the statement, "and making the rent laws more radical and applying the restrictions of these rent laws to business construction, the city authorities are looking forward to a magnificent program of spending for next year.

"At the special meeting of the Board of Estimate on Aug. 31, the Mayor stated that he expected to ask the board for an appropriation of $10,000,000 in the event of favorable action by the Legislature in his request for authority to run municipal buses.

"Already many appropriations have been asked for and have a favorable tentative approval by the Board of Estimate. In other words, while the amounts and specific purposes have not been formally approved, still a majority of the members of the Board of Estimate pressed their approval, and in some instances appropriations have been made:

Docks	20,000,000
Buses	10,000,000
Court House	10,000,000
Markets	85,000,000
Brooklyn Municipal Building	4,000,000
Various smaller buildings	5,000,000
Street equipment and garbage destruction	2,500,000

"In addition the expenditures for the extension of the Ashokan Dam System and the extension of subways under new contracts or by day's work will be made which will involve at least $20,000,000. This would make a total of $199,500,000. The Real Estate Board of New York was regarded as an alarmist when it estimated the 1921 budget as $312,000,000, yet the Controller has since predicted a budget of $350,000,000. This, with the items above mentioned, would make a total of $549,500,000. Every year there were new building projects for hospital extensions or for the other city activities in the way of social welfare or for correction. And there are always new bridges, new ferry boats, and additional parks and playgrounds. If the yearly average for the last ten years is taken these appropriations will be found to aggregate at least $50,000,000. So that it is possible there may be city expenditures in 1921 of $599,500,000.

"Each year the city is authorized to issue $2,000,000 in special revenue bonds. This year by legislative act the limit was temporarily raised to $7,000,000 and yet the Controller notified the Board of Estimate on Aug. 31 that more than $7,000,000 in bonds had been authorized with still four months of the fiscal year remaining."

LETTER CARRIERS ASK RISE.

Also Plan to Manufacture Uniforms to Combat 125 Per Cent. Advance.

At a meeting of the New York Letter Carriers' Association yesterday a committee was appointed to arrange for the formulation of a corporation to manufacture uniforms for letter carriers, and resolutions were adopted asking a rise in wages and a change of hours.

The corporation will begin work by January, 1921, and will be incorporated for $30,000 with shares at $10 each to be held only by members of the association. The letter carriers have inaugurated this plan to combat an increase of 125 per cent. in the cost of uniforms in the last three years. Peter J. Walters, who was elected Chairman of the Corporation Committee, said the company will undertake to manufacture uniforms for letter carriers outside of New York if the plan proves successful.

Twenty-seven resolutions urging changes in hours and wages were adopted and will be introduced at the Jamaica (L. I.) State Convention which opens today. The carriers maintain that the present $1,800 maximum wage scale is inadequate. They also ask that routes be limited to fifteen miles in eight hours with Saturday holidays the year around, and a minimum wage of 80 cents an hour.

Diet Kitchen Aids 150 Children.

The New York Diet Kitchen Association announced yesterday that it has been paying particular attention this Summer to the physical improvement of children between 3 and 5 years old, so that they would be able to enter the public schools upon a basis of physical equality with normal children. Kindergarten work, medical and in some cases surgical attention, have been given, so that 150 children have been enabled to overcome slight disadvantages.

EASLEY SUGGESTS NATION TAKE STOCK

GLANCES FORTY YEARS BACK

"Corporations Owned the Country Then," He Says—Advocates Reforms Under Present System.

The need for a "stock taking," to find out whether under the present order of things we are going backward or forward or standing still, is emphasized in a statement issued yesterday by Ralph M. Easley, Chairman of the Executive Council of the National Civic Federation. He asserts that this need is all the greater because of the fact that, by means of "insidious propaganda spread through the colleges, the churches, the newspapers and magazines, and all the media for influencing public sentiment, the idea has been emphasized until it is taking hold in many important places that the present order of society is a total failure and ought to be abolished."

Mr. Easley says that the Socialists have almost "put over" their idea that there must be a new order by harping upon it "until now it has become almost an accepted idea in the 'intellectual' groups that we must get a 'new order' right away."

"It is surprising," he asserts, "to find in discussing 'the new order' with its 'intellectual' advocates that they have so little information about actual conditions in our own country today under 'the old order.' The material they have gathered is generally from Socialist muckrakers, who in turn are using the statistics manufactured by Socialist statisticians, whose figures in turn are vitiated by their philosophy that whatever is is wrong and that the sooner things get worse the better."

"Especially vicious," he continues, "is the propaganda put out by certain church organizations in this country, with the object of creating a sympathetic feeling here toward the Bolshevist views of the British Labor Party. This is being done despite the fact that the British Labor Party has brazenly announced its determination to destroy the Constitutional Government of England unless that Government accepts its decrees on international policies."

In the proposed stock taking Mr. Easley would include the ascertaining of the conditions of the working people now as compared with what they were, say, in 1880. "What were the wages, hours and working conditions," he asks, "of the men and women workers at that period? What were the hours and conditions under which children worked? Is it true, as admitted by the American Federation of Labor at its annual convention in 1914, that the luxuries of the wage-earner only thirty years ago are his necessities today? What has been the factory legislation in the last thirty years, which in that time has revolutionized the methods of sanitation in the workshops and provided for the safeguarding of the lives and limbs of the workers? It could be ascertained if it is true, as asserted, that 95 per cent. of all child workers under fourteen years of age—the requirements of the Model Child Labor bill—have disappeared from the factories, mines and mills of the country; that 85 per cent. of the 'ill-smelling sweatshops' and 'reeking tenements' have been abolished; it could be ascertained what the employers have done in the last twenty years in the matter of provision for the welfare of employes through safe work places, opportunities for recreation and education, model houses, rented or sold, and relief funds for sickness, accident and death benefits, as well as voluntary old age pensions—all affecting millions of railroad, factory and department store workers. Call attention to the complete reversal in the matter of dealing with accidents in industry when workmen's compensation acts took the place of the employers' liability laws in over forty States, the former placing the burden on the industry, while the latter placed it upon the worker."

Health legislation, the public school system, various political and legal reforms, increase in property among farmers and other achievements are mentioned by Mr. Easley, who continues:

"Point out that within the last twenty-five years there has been a remarkable gain in the popular concept of the rightful relation of industrial, railway and municipal utility corporations to the public. Twenty-five years ago they owned the country. Today—and in this I am not referring to the serious situation growing out of the war—the corporations have learned that they are the servants and not the masters of the public. And, strange to say, they now admit the justice of this reversal of attitude."

Mr. Easley said that he could go on indefinitely enumerating reforms such as those pointed out, and in conclusion says that "if under our present institutions we have done this much, we can certainly go on and do the rest if we will but give our minds and energies to the task, without any resort to the 'new order' Socialist-I. W. W.-Bolshevist proposals."

GERMANS DESPAIR OF COAL DELIVERIES

OUTPUT THERE FALLS OFF

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 5.—The recent troubles in Upper Silesia have caused a loss in coal production estimated at some 700,000 tons. This is sad in itself, but it becomes serious when one thinks of the coal deliveries which Germany is obliged to make to the Allies.

Under the Spa agreement Germany has to deliver as from the beginning of August 2,000,000 tons monthly, under penalty of French occupation of the Ruhr Valley, and today, at the end of the first month's working of that agreement, the coal situation has been outlined to me by Herr Hue, the German miners' leader, whose speech at Spa made such an impression upon Premier Lloyd George and other members of the conference.

Herr Hue assured me that partly by the aid of some 800,000 tons withdrawn from German industry, the stipulated monthly quota had been fully delivered during August, with the exception of from 20,000 to 30,000 tons for Italy, which could not be delivered owing to transport difficulties in Upper Silesia. As against this shortage, which was due to no fault of Germany, there have been delivered to Poland about 200,000 tons more than she was entitled to under the special coal treaty between the two countries, which over-delivery was insisted upon by the Interallied Commission.

But this endeavor to comply with the Allied demands requires a special effort by German miners, and this has been made by working forty-nine hours a week instead of the previous forty-two-hours' week in the Ruhr Valley, where some 480,000 miners are employed. In the Upper Silesian and some other coal fields the eight-hour day has been reintroduced. This special effort, too, has been made despite the bad food conditions which still obtain.

Germany is entitled under the Spa agreement to receive five gold marks for every ton of coal delivered, which sum must be spent on improving the food situation. This price has not yet been paid, however, so that the German miners have been unable to derive any benefit from it, although the general conditions are somewhat improved.

What is the motive force impelling the workers to make this special effort? The menace of French occupation of the Ruhr Valley. Herr Hue insisted most strongly that no doubt could exist as to the attitude of the German miners on this point. They are determined to stave off occupation by intensive production if possible and to strike if that is insufficient. Herr Hue recalled the assurance given by Mr. Lloyd George at Spa that German interests in Upper Silesia would be properly safeguarded, and that nothing would be allowed to interfere with coal deliveries from that region, on which the fulfilment of the Spa agreement to a great extent depended.

But all Germany is convinced that interference with German interests has taken place, that the German coal situation has been prejudiced thereby, and that the shadow of French occupation lies somewhat deeper over the Ruhr Valley. If there are many more stoppages of coal production in Upper Silesia, the occupation of the Ruhr Valley and all it involves may be an accomplished fact. This is why Germany so dreads the recurrence of trouble in Silesia.

PLEA FOR FEDERAL BANKS.

A plea to the public to aid as much as possible in increasing the earnings of the Federal Reserve Banks was made yesterday by W. L. Saunders, President of the American Manufacturers' Export Association. He points out that the member banks receive only 6 per cent. on their investments in the Federal bank and that the Government, which is the largest stockholder, uses all surplus above that amount for the purchase of Government bonds or strengthening reserves.

"The large earnings now being made by the Federal Reserve Banks are due mainly to the fact that the discount rate has been raised from 4¾ per cent. last year to 7 per cent.," he says. "The object of this raise is to prevent their member banks from getting too much cheap money. A bank, like an individual, will restrain its borrowings if it has to pay high for them.

"As these large earnings are turned over to the Government they will undoubtedly be used to purchase Liberty bonds, hence the public should have a keen interest in increasing the earnings of the reserve banks as much as possible."

SCHIFF, BACK, TELLS OF FRENCH RECOVERY

TREATY HOLDS BACK EUROPE

Creates Artificial Economic Barriers and Engenders Many Racial Animosities, He Finds.

Mortimer L. Schiff, the banker, returned yesterday on the French liner France from a visit to Europe. He said he had been astonished at the power of recuperation of France from her war losses.

"During my short stay in Europe," Mr. Schiff continued, "I visited only England, France and Belgium, and the time at my disposal did not permit of a very intensive study of European conditions. The impression I have received, however, from what I have seen and learned is that Europe is still suffering from the effects of the treaty, which has created artificial economic barriers, has engendered racial animosities and bred suspicion instead of confidence."

"As a result," Mr. Schiff continued, "serious political situations still exist, industrial rehabilitation has been retarded and nationalistic aspirations are making difficult the enforcement of the just claims of those who suffered so grievously through the war.

"With all that, and notwithstanding the accumulated burdens of the war, considerable progress appears to have been made in England, France and Belgium in re-establishing industry on a peace basis. Of Central Europe I cannot speak from personal knowledge, but there also sounder business conditions seem to be developing, although the political and inter-racial situation continues acute.

Rapid Reconstruction in France.

"I was particularly impressed by the extent to which normal conditions have been restored in the invaded districts of France. Much reconstruction remains to be done, but the fields are being cultivated, many factories are in operation and the population is facing its problems with courage and intelligence.

"While, as here, inflation and other causes arising from the war have brought about an orgy of spending in certain quarters, real France is hard at work and is again evidencing her thrift and common sense. Her fiscal problem is a difficult one, but that also is in a fair way toward solution. Belgium seems prosperous and England, notwithstanding her domestic questions, is handling her economic situation with her usual masterly skill.

"It is very apparent that the great bulk of people abroad, even those who formerly believed in it, have no faith in the League of Nations and consider it a Utopian dream, which has not solved the problems which confront Europe.

"It has become intensely evident to them," Mr. Schiff said, "that some other means must be found to insure the peace of Europe and the observance of international obligations, and that what is primarily necessary to accomplish this is unity of purpose among the allied nations, rather than an artificial formula."

Amos Stote's Observation.

Amos Stote returned on the liner after spending three months in France studying conditions generally for the firm of N. W. Ayer & Son of Philadelphia. He was impressed with the new spirit developed among the French to place their country back where she was among nations before the war as rapidly as possible.

"At Creusot," he continued, "the factories where cannon were made during the war are now being utilized for turning out locomotives at the rate of one a day, heavy machinery, steel castings for bridges and agricultural machinery. Twenty-two thousand men were employed in these works when I was there. The great engineering firm of Schneider et Cie has 80,000 men at work, of whom 42,000 are employed at Creusot. At Havre, where I embarked on the France for New York, I went over a factory where they make all kinds of electric wire and cable. They had a laboratory just completed in a new building which I think has no equal in the United States or any other country.

"The fact that France is coming back is demonstrated by the American firms developing their business in Paris and other cities. The Bankers' Trust is putting up a million-dollar building, the Farmers' Loan & Trust Company and the Guaranty Trust are all spending vast sums there, which they would not do unless convinced of the possibility of doing a big business."

With regard to living expenses, Mr. Stote said that, taking the difference in the exchange into consideration, living in France and England was at least 50 per cent. cheaper than in the United States.

ASBURY PARK STORES OPEN.

City Leases Provide for Seven-Day Week, Owners Insist.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Sept. 5.—Defying the Sunday closing order, many concessionaries opened their stores, one of them an auction shop, at 10 o'clock, and reaped a harvest from the record holiday throngs. They contend that their leases from the city provide for a seven-day business week. They said they would agree to close their stores next year, but would ignore a "ridiculous ordinance" of the city.

Judge Walter Taylor, recently elected City Commissioner on a "conservative Sunday" platform, issued the closing order several days ago. Only purveyors of food, soft drinks, ice cream, cigars and newspapers were excepted. Judge Taylor threatens prosecutions.

Next week the ordinance becomes effective which forbids bathing after 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

BALFOUR, FOR LEAGUE, WANTS AID FOR TYPHUS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—"Unless effective steps are immediately taken, the plague of typhus will be far more deadly in the Winter of 1920-21 than it was in the Winter of 1919-20," says Arthur Balfour, in a letter appealing for $1,250,000 out of $150,000,000 needed to deal with the growing menace in Poland and Eastern Europe. Mr. Balfour says:

"No European country, not perhaps even an island like Great Britain, can count itself wholly safe if Poland be allowed to succumb."

Mr. Balfour's appeal is addressed in the "name of the Council of the League of Nations" to "all members of the family of nations." The epidemic in Poland and Galicia, he states, is becoming an international danger, and the recent military events have made the need for money to cope with it more urgent.

Mr. Balfour proceeds, giving his authorities for his statements: "In Russia the disease will be an epidemic, an eminent doctor who has just returned from that country says. It has been swept from end to end by typhus, so that scarcely a town or village escaped, and half the doctors engaged in combating the plague have died. From this vast centre of infection the disease is carried westward by the unceasing stream of immigrants, prisoners returning homes, refugees flying for safety, who ing to their homes, refugees flying for safety, who crowd the railways. Two millions of these unfortunate persons have passed through Polish disinfection stations since the armistice."

COLLIERIES EXPECT MEN WEDNESDAY

COAL LOSS A MILLION TONS

WILKES-BARRE, Sept. 5.—It is generally felt that nearly all the collieries which have been tied up by the "vacation" protest against acceptance of the anthracite wage award will resume operations Wednesday.

Employes of the Buttonwood Colliery of the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal Company have decided to return in full force. Some of them went back yesterday. Miners employed at the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Company, Woodward Colliery, about 1,700 strong, decided at a meeting last night to resume Tuesday. The Franklin, Warrior Run and Mineral Spring Collieries of the Lehigh Valley will resume operations Tuesday.

The men in Local 1,432, employed at No. 20 Colliery of the Lehigh & Wilkes-Barre, will hold a meeting Tuesday to vote to return to work, and the men at Stanton Colliery will meet Tuesday night.

Operators stated today that the production of about one million tons of anthracite coal had been lost and about $750,000 in wages since the "vacation" of the miners began.

Clergymen, speaking from their pulpits in mining sections today, urged the miners to return, telling them that if they remained out too long they would lose all they expected to gain in the next two years. Miners of the Pennsylvania Coal Company have lost more in a two months' strike against a contractor system than they can gain in two years under the present award.

Speaking for the Executive Committee of the insurgents, Enoch Williams, leader of the "vacationists," said today that a meeting of delegates would be held Tuesday, when a vote to return to work might be taken. He added that the strike might end Tuesday if President Wilson reopened negotiations between the miners and operators, and if "a committee presents the case of miners of District 1 in whom the delegates have confidence."

The removal of John T. Dempsey from the office of District President does not mean that the insurgents will advocate an immediate return to work, according to Williams, who insists the miners are striking primarily against the award of the Anthracite Wage Commission. "Until President Wilson reopens negotiations there is positively no change in the situation," he said.

COAL OUTPUT INCREASES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Recovery in part from the depression in the week preceding August 28 marked the mining of coal for the week just ended with August 28, according to the report issued today by the Geological Survey, bringing production up to well above the 11,000,000 ton mark.

For the 205 working days of 1920 the production of bituminous coal reached 347,406,000 tons, which is 29,693,000 tons more than was mined in the same period last year. For the calendar year to date the hard coal mined was 57,512,000, as compared with 55,712,000 mined in the same period in 1919.

WHIP MOROCCO TRIBESMEN.

Spanish Forces Will Raid Sacred Town Nest.

LARACHE, Morocco, Sept. 4.—The Spanish military operations against the rebellious Moroccan tribesmen are continuing successfully. The column which set out from here has occupied Zautum, where it has intrenched while detachments construct a blockhouse at Benigorfa and other blockhouses protecting the bivouacs.

Several of the native chiefs have submitted, it is announced.

The next movement of the Spaniards will be upon Wazan, the sacred town of the Moroccans, where the Grand Sherif resides and which is an important centre for the Sherifian forces.

WITH $40,000,000 AID JEWS STILL SUFFER

The French liner France arrived yesterday from Havre with 1,500 passengers. Two baby girls were born in the steerage of Armenian mothers. The voyage occupied nine days, because France is economizing her coal.

Among the 475 passengers in the first cabin was Dr. Nathan Krass, rabbi of the Central Synagogue and member of the American Jewish Relief and Joint Distribution Committee, who for two months has been visiting the various distributing centres established abroad. In a statement he said:

"Although the American Jews have raised about forty millions of dollars in the last four years, many non-Jews contributing quite liberally, for the suffering Jews of Eastern Europe, this amount was inadequate to do constructive relief work. We kept millions of children and adults alive in the hopes that the coming peace would so alter living conditions as to enable the Jews to care for themselves. Our hopes were vain. Conditions everywhere are practically worse than in 1914.

"On account of the awful instability in Poland conditions generally are very bad there and the greatest sufferers are the Jews. Pogroms are very frequent. The Jews are accused of being sympathetic toward the Bolsheviki and more than that, they are accused of being Bolsheviki.

"The Polish Jews are loyal to Poland. Shortly before I left several thousand Jewish soldiers who had volunteered in the Polish Army were incarcerated and stripped of their uniforms, with no charges against them. As the Bolsheviki advanced upon various towns the Poles evacuated, but before leaving would loot and attack the Jews. I know that the moral rebuke or warning on the part of the United States and England would have a sobering effect and would safeguard the Jews from further outrages.

As a result of these outrages thousands of Jews have fled to Czechoslovakia, where they are fugitives without any means of earning a livelihood. In Prague, for example, I saw in the mortuary room at the Jewish cemetery a number of such fugitive families.

"In Vienna alone there are about eighty thousand fugitives, and more are entering daily. While I was in Vienna I heard rumblings of anti-semitism, and would not at all be surprised if an outbreak should occur during the elections in October.

"In Hungary the Red terror fomented by the Bolsheviki has been supplanted by the White terror carried on by the counter-revolutionists. Because a few Jews were associated with the Bolsheviki movement in Hungary—the vast bulk of the rank and file as well as 88 per cent. of the immediate leaders were non-Jews—there have been unbelievable pogroms in Hungary, particularly in Budapest.

With regard to Russia, Dr. Krass said that no matter what form of government finally is established in that country, the Jews cannot have worse treatment or suffer more than at present. In Germany he said that he found the sentiment in favor of the Republican Party because of the belief that peace between the two countries would follow Republican victory.

Another passenger on the France was William P. Larkin, Director of Activities of the Knights of Columbus, returning from a trip to France. He wore the button of an officer of the Legion of Honor, which was pinned upon his breast by Marshal Foch at Metz. The Knights visited the battlefields and the cemeteries where the American soldiers lie buried, including the large one at Romagne where 27,000 are resting.

Lieut. Col. Philippe Bunau-Varilla, once Chief Engineer of the Panama Canal and who acted in its sale to the United States, arrived on the France on a mission for his Government. He said that France's exports during the last seven months exceeded those in prewar times.

Members of the family of the late William K. Vanderbilt came to the French Line pier to meet Mrs. Cyril Hatch and her baby. She is the daughter of Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, and before her marriage was Miss Barbara O. Rutherford. Mrs. Hatch will stop with her mother at 650 Fifth Avenue.

WHOLESALE BRICK SELLS LOW AT $15

GLASS DISCOUNTS SHADED

Hudson River common brick is listed as having been sold as low as $15 a thousand, wholesale, as the Autumn building season opened. The best grades, which a fortnight ago were being held rigidly at $25, plus the usual additional charge for handling, haulage and 15 per cent. covering delivery to job, were topping $20 on Saturday.

It is significant that simultaneous with the introduction of counterbidding at first secret and later openly, some of the largest speculative apartment builders definitely decided to start at once with the erection of huge high-priced projects. The projectors frankly stated that they had succeeded in breaking through the building price barrier in nearly every department. Quantity purchasing by strong buyers succeeded in obtaining concessions on the part of manufacturers, but when it became known that shading had actually occurred almost the entire market settled down to open counterbidding.

It has been known for some time that desirable quantity business offered in the lumber department brought attractive concessions, and from that point, which dates back to around the 1st of August, there have been signs of willingness on the part of certain manufacturers to meet the others. The momentum increased as the week drew to a close, and there were indications that this week will show a noticeable buying movement in such departments, particularly as lumber, brick, lime and plaster, also that there will be some stimulation in the volume of new work going on architects' boards for new figures under the new market.

An illustration is found in the electrical supply department. Rubber covered wire has been slow to move out of manufacturers' and distributer's hands. Whenever the market slumps on steel conduit this condition exists in the electric wire department, because about three feet of electric wire is used to every foot of steel conduit. When there is a slump in building there is sure to follow closely a slump in the steel conduit business, and electric wire suffers accordingly.

Recently there has not only been a slump in the volume of building construction but also in the delivery of steel conduit over the railroads. The result is that the electric wire manufacturers contemplated at the week-end to cut the price of rubber covered wire this week, possibly 5 per cent., in order to induce prospective builders to anticipate their requirements for the immediate future.

The glass department also reveals something of this counter building movement. While the discounts as quoted in the Dow Service daily building reports represent the nominal market as it is in many cases, there have been exceptions downward within the recent past, and at times these exceptions have threatened to become the rule.

Now that the glass industry is in the manufacturing season there is a sharp question in the trade as to how long this softening process may be expected to continue. The best thought in the industry seems to lean toward the arresting of this tendency within the near future, as practically all the window glass that can possibly be manufactured during this "fire" will go directly into actual use, leaving the jobbing stocks low in the face of a growing demand, which, by the way, is significant of the entire line of basic building materials from asphaltum down to zinc.

The speculative apartment building interests who have been closely following the building material market trends upward and downward since the first of the year were favorably impressed with the attitude of the great steel interests in keeping their prices steady.

The fact is that the steel mills show no indication at this time to change their prices upward despite the fact that they can operate as fully as possible during the remainder of the year and still have a comfortable back-log running into 1921. By the end of the next thirty days there ought to be considerable shrinkage apparent in the premium situation in this department and the prospects are that the change will be downward.

The change in the building material price situation is being felt in the cement department. Although the inquiries during August for cement have been greater than ever known, exceeding the totals for March, April, May, June and July combined, and at the first of the month the cost of electric power in the Lehigh manufacturing district advanced 21 per cent., there does not seem to be much indication that prices will be advanced above the present level, at least just now.

On the other hand, there is little likelihood of prices of this commodity dropping to any extent. The keenest and most analytical minds simply say that over the period of the next few months the price of domestic cement will be found approximately where it is today. They gave as their reason for the expected stability that the market is fairly wriggling with export agents trying to obtain American cement for foreign markets

In August the total cement exports amounted to 700,000 barrels more than were shipped out of this country in August of last year, the record for last month being 1,645,000 barrels as against 930,000 barrels a year ago.

Regarding the newest factor as a prospective retardant of building activity, namely, rumors of a pending general strike in the building trades, this opinion was expressed:

"Americans want to see the skilled and unskilled laborer get not only a fair living but a comfortable one. The person who has been evicted from a home or those who are forced to find shelter for another year only under unhealthful crowding and inconvenience are likely to think of the part that the cost of labor plays in present day construction.

"Both employers and employes know that it is not the time to further harass the unhappy householder without a home. He has the city, State and nation behind him. All the authorities are more in sympathy with the need for speedily getting housing construction under way than with claims for further wage increases when the cost of living is going lower.

"The public mind is weary of strikes and strike talk and it is alive to the possibilities of the 'open shop' as an alternative to a further hindrance to the immediate starting of the building construction movement, and if, as you say, the cost of building materials is at last offering an opportunity to get construction under way, it will not be likely that the public mind will overflow with sympathy for a general strike in the building trades."

KILLED BY ELEVATOR.

Operator Caught After Making Bad Stop in Riverside Drive Apartment.

Henry Wasserman, an elevator operator, was killed last night when he was caught between the first floor and roof of the elevator in an apartment house at 460 Riverside Drive. The rescue squad of the Fire Department from Great Jones Street was called to extricate the body. The firemen cut away the metal work and released the body. Wasserman had been dead some time when his body was found.

It is believed that Wasserman made a bad landing when he stopped the elevator at the first floor and attempted to move the car by operating the lever while standing in the hallway, and he lost control of the elevator and was caught when he jumped inside as the elevator descended into the basement.

WANTS PROHIBITION TO INCLUDE DANCING

"The plea that these dancing masters make that they desire to 'purify the dance' and make it safe, is idle and entirely beside the mark. You cannot purify a polecat, you cannot denature a smallpox epidemic, you cannot make a rattlesnake respectable and reliable. The only thing to do with a rattlesnake is to chop off its head, and the only thing to do with the entire dancing mania, which has done more to corrupt the morals of this age than any other single force, is to destroy it, root and branch."

In this language Dr. John Roach Straton, in his sermon in Calvary Baptist Church last night, declared himself in favor of extending prohibition to dancing. He condemned the dance in general and the new "Wesleyan" in particular. Dr. Straton continued:

"But how pitiful it is! These modern dances have come up from the underworld of Paris, Chicago, San Francisco, New Orleans, New York and the Oriental cities, where dens of unspeakable iniquity exist. Just look for a moment at the succession that the new dance, 'The Wesleyan,' finds itself in. We have had now the 'French Can-Can,' 'Argentine Tango,' 'Boston Dip,' 'Bear Cat,' 'Rocking Horse Gallop,' 'Fox Trot,' 'Turkey Trot,' 'Dog Trot,' 'Horse Trot,' 'Dardenella Fox Trot,' 'Railroad Round,' 'Hesitation,' 'Bunny Hug,' 'Hug-Me-Tight,' 'Feather Dance,' 'San Francisco Glide,' 'Bellefield One-Step,' 'Dreamy Alabama Waltz,' 'Rocker Waltz,' 'Skunk Waltz,' 'Polka Castle Walk,' 'Dip Glide,' 'Whirling Swing,' 'Gaby Glide,' 'Wriggly Worm,' 'Kitchen Sink,' 'Jazz-Shimmy Shivers,' 'Cigarette Dance,' 'The Cheek-to-Cheek' and 'The Grizzly Grapple.'

"And now as the culmination of this slimy, silly, sensuous stream of moral infamy we have a dance named for these great saints and heroes of the modern church. It will doubtless be amended in practice and name, and soon be turned into 'The Wesleyan Wiggle.' Then next, I suppose, we will have 'The Episcopal Embrace,' 'The Congregational Canter,' 'The Presbyterian Promenade' and 'John the Baptist Bounce.'

"At its convention held here in New York a few days ago, the American National Association of Dancing Masters, according to reports in the papers, created a new dance, which they called 'The Wesleyan.' They gave the dance this religious name, according to reports, in the hope that by thus honoring the founder of the Methodist Church they would so impress the bishops of that church that the next conference would amend the church's discipline so as to permit 'The Wesleyan' to be danced.

"The dance is the devil's bait to catch the thoughtless and unwary. And let us hope that the bishops of the great Methodist Church, and the rank and file of their people will be too wise and godly to be caught in any such silly ways as these dancing masters have designed.

Calls it Insult to Christian World.

"The action of these dancing masters, when rightly viewed, is an insult to the entire Christian world. John and Charles Wesley were two of the greatest saints of God who have lived since Paul and Peter. It is nothing short of an outrage on decency and a distinct insult to the entire Christian world.

"The weak excuses which people make in justification of the dance are indeed idle. Some say that we ought to dance for the sake of grace, but the only grace in the modern dance is the disgrace of it, and especially is this true as applied to church members. I have never yet seen a dancing church member who was a soul-winner. The dance, therefore, so far as Christians are concerned, does not need regulation but strangulation.

"It is a well-known sociological fact that a large proportion of girls who fall come to their moral ruin through the dance, especially the public dance halls. There are four hundred dance halls in New York, and they are grinding a grist for hell every night in the week."

LONGSHOREMEN ASK LAW.

Seek to Have Protection Under State Compensation Restored.

To meet the emergency resulting from a decision of the United States Supreme Court, depriving longshoremen of the protection of State compensation laws, the American Association for Labor Legislation, 131 East Twenty-third Street, announced yesterday that a bill is being prepared which Congress will be called upon to pass, restoring the benefits of workmen's compensation to these and other maritime workers.

It is also announced that with workmen's compensation laws enacted to date in forty-three States and in Alaska, Porto Rico and Hawaii, in addition to the measure adopted by the Federal Government for its half million civilian employes, rapid progress is being made toward providing industrial accident insurance at cost through State funds.

"Sixteen States and Porto Rico have established State funds for insuring at cost the liability of employers and in seven of these States the funds are exclusive, eliminating expensive commercial insurance competition. The State funds save millions of dollars every year to industry, and at the same time permit more certain and liberal benefits.

"Recent reports from all parts of the country indicate an increase in social insurance laws such as sickness and unemployment insurance."

POLITICS AS SCHOOL COURSE

Public Service Institute Wants Pupils Taught Campaign Issues.

A plea for removing the city school system altogether from the financial oversight of the Board of Estimate was made to the public yesterday by the Institute for Public Service, of which Julius H. Barnes is the Chairman. Another suggestion was that each of the five boroughs should have its own Superintendent of Schools. A third proposal was that "campaign civics" and "labor civics" should be taught to the children during the first few weeks of this school year.

"It is unfair to the children who are being compelled this year to take community civics to focus their attention during the first weeks on the city water and fire systems when 110,000,000 people are debating campaign claims and the promises of political parties," said the statement.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH IS REOPENED

Services Held Yesterday in Historic Edifice Which Has Been Remodeled.

$250,000 SPENT IN WORK

Building Extended Forty Feet in Rear and Many Improvements Made in Interior.

The First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Eleventh Street, was reopened yesterday morning after having been enlarged and almost completely remodeled in the interior. This congregation four years ago celebrated its two hundredth anniversary.

In addition to the church proper the two parish houses, the one facing in Eleventh Street and the other in Twelfth Street—the propery as a whole forming a cross—have been renovated throughout their interiors. The Twelfth Street house, which is a five-story brick, was long the home of "Boss" Tweed. It will be used in part as living quarters for the church staff. The Eleventh Street house will continue to be used for parish activities during the week.

In all $250,000 has been spent. The work, with the exception of installing a new organ, has been done by the firm of Grosvenor Atterbury, architect, of 139 East Fifty-third Street. John Almy Tompkins, an associate of Mr. Atterbury, is responsible for the designing. Laurance W. Hitt was on hand yesterday to represent the firm.

Forty-Foot Extension Built.

The reconstruction was begun a year ago last June. Meanwhile services had been held in the University Place Church, that being one of two congregations which three years ago merged with the "Old First." The other was the Madison Square Church, of which the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst was pastor. On this site is now a white skyscraper. The University Place property is for sale, but until all the alterations are completed in the Fifth Avenue group of buildings the Sunday school and week-day activities will be carried on at University Place. The Rev. Dr. George Alexander, the venerable pastor, who is a bachelor, will continue to live in the upper floor of this house.

The enlargement of the First Church itself consists in the extension of the building forty feet toward Sixth Avenue, which was made possible by tearing down its back wall, using twenty-five feet of vacant land and purchasing a small strip, triangular in shape, of the back yard of the next door neighbor in Eleventh Street. These forty feet were utilized for a new bay to the church and the chancel. The bay provides six new pews on each aisle and a wide aisle in front of the chancel.

In the chancel are choir stalls and seats for the clergymen, with a rood or choir screen of Gothic design between. The screen is of oak and is highly carved with crosses and the heads of women angels at the apexes. At the left as one enters the church is a lectern, and from here the gospel lesson is read. In the centre of the chancel is the former communion table, so placed as to give, from the Fifth Avenue entrance, the effect of an altar. A new communion table, highly carved, is being designed, and it will be placed where the old one now is.

Gothic Pulpit of Oak.

One of the most striking innovations in the new furnishings is a highly carved Gothic pulpit of oak, standing ten feet high. In time the eight panels of oak carving will be replaced with memorials. This pulpit is reached by stairs in the rear. The old pulpit, which served the seventy-five years that the church stood on its present site, has been stored.

The alterations are not yet completed. Workmen will take possession again this morning. The organ will be rebuilt back of the pulpit and will be four organs in one, including an echo organ. This is the organ which was formerly in Madison Square church, but with some additional stops. The high gallery in the Fifth Avenue end where the organ had been for years has been utilized for worshippers. At present an old organ is being used which was bought from the former building of the First Presbyterian Church, Montclair, N. J. The four great chandeliers from the Madison Square Church, each having thirty-two lights, have been installed, taking the place of the opaque Gothic hanging "lamps" formerly there. The remodeled church will seat 1,064 persons.

In the chancel rood has been placed a perforated carved panel of the three churches which form the foundation of First Church. The "Old First" has been placed in the middle.

The preacher yesterday was the Rev. Thomas Guthrie Speers, associate pastor. His text was "Strength and Beauty are in His Sanctuary." In the audience were Mr. and Mrs. James M. Speers of Montclair, N. J., parents of the clergyman.

OBSERVER SAYS:
There are all kinds of houses for all kinds of people. There is just the house you want, too, but you may not have found it yet. You will if you try. There are many distracted home seekers who are looking for a nice, compact place with 8 rooms and bath for about $16,000, but they would never think of looking for it at Forest Hills Gardens. But it is there, a beautifully constructed house, built of tile, with tile roof and the very best of everything. It is one in a row, of course, but so are many others in this delightful community, and prices all the way up to $50,000. I don't think I can find another like this in all of the Garden or in the adjoining section, but this ought to make somebody happy. Observer, V 174 Times.

The New York Times:

The greater part of the classified advertising we have placed in The New York Times the past year has been from individuals' accounts, who order practically every announcement they make in The Times, due to the gratifying results.

We know of a number of sales made during the past year in real estate, ranging in prices from $7,000 to $100,000, which were due directly to advertisements in the columns of The New York Times.

$10,000 RUM SEIZED AT CONEY; 11 ARRESTS

AGENTS ACCUSED IN JERSEY

Cargo of Whisky Worth $4,000 Found in Car of Man Taken for Speeding in Harmon.

Eleven men were arrested and whisky and alcohol valued at $10,000, a 35-foot motor boat and a five-ton automobile truck were seized at 4 o'clock yesterday morning at Twentieth Street and Neptune Avenue, Coney Island, by detectives from Inspector Conboy's staff, who were in the neighborhood to raid bungalows, where it was suspected gambling was going on. The men were released under $500 bail each.

The detectives saw the truck stop and would have paid no further attention to it, they said, if they had not noticed a man get off the truck and turn out the gaslight in the street. They found in the truck thirty-seven cases of whisky, which, according to a tag on the boxes, was shipped by the Big Spring Distilling Company, Kentucky, and consigned to an Italian firm in Elizabeth Street, Manhattan. Besides the whisky there were 100 five-gallon cans of alcohol on the truck. The liquor was being loaded on the motor boat for Boston, it was said. No resistance was offered, and no shots were fired. Detective Frank Gilmartin found it necessary to draw his gun to stop a man carrying a case of whisky from the truck to the boat. At the sight of the gun the man dropped the case, smashing all the bottles, and threw up his hands.

The truck was owned and driven by Stephen Careppa, 22 years old, of 217 Bowery, Manhattan. The other men arrested were Salvator Consella, 261 North Street; Vincenza Bella, 190 Oneita Street; Ferdinand Marchesi, 406 Mannon Street; Samuel Tareso, 275 North Street, all of Boston; Anthony Cassata, 245 Elizabeth Street; James Zeffor, 160 Elizabeth Street; Joseph Livio, 117 Elizabeth Street; Charles Alba, 119 Elizabeth Street; Antonio Face, 117 Elizabeth Street, all of Manhattan, and Paul Solafino, 199 Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn.

Twenty cases of whisky, valued at $4,000, were confiscated by State Constabulary troopers under Captain J. A. Warner at Harmon, N. Y., yesterday. Harry Mittermyer of Dunkirk, N. Y., was arrested on a charge of speeding and a search of his car revealed the liquor. The State police said Mittermyer was transporting it from New York to Buffalo. A summons was served also on J. O. Stevens, also of Dunkirk. This is said to be the sixth load of whisky the State troopers have seized in Harmon in as many weeks.

Two arrests have been made in Paterson, N. J., and five more are expected tomorrow charging violation of the prohibition law. Two of the men to be arrested tomorrow are prohibition enforcement agents. It was said in Newark yesterday they were from territory outside of New Jersey.

Abraham Stein of 18 Main Street, and Morris L. Markowitz of 267 Hamburg Avenue, both of Paterson, are the men arrested. They have been arraigned before Commissioner Matthews in Newark and, according to prohibition agents, have confessed to being members of a whisky ring operating in New Jersey cities. Agents Murray and Sands are said to have bargained with Stein and Markowitz for $10,000 worth of whisky through a third person and later talked with the men themselves. Arrangements were made to have the liquor trucked from Paterson to Newark, through Trenton and to Washington and Stein and Markowitz are said to have assured Murray and Sands that everythink was safe as they were receiving the protection of two prohibition agents. Prohibition Enforcement Agent George A. Demo and several of his men waited in a cemetery along the Paterson boulevard for the truck with the liquor, but it never appeared. The Federal agents think the bootleggers were "tipped" off. The arrests of Stein and Markowitz followed. It was said in Newark these bootleggers were not connected with the alleged Eckert bootlegging ring.

Two men were arrested in Newark early yesterday morning on a charge of stealing twelve barrels and two cases of whisky from the store of Joseph Davis, a wholesale liquor dealer of 226½ Spring Street, that city. They gave their names as Harry Reinfeld of 106 High Street, Calmodico Trinno of 10 Stone Street, both of Newark.

Charged with stealing $5,000 worth of liquor from the store of Thomas Piccochi at 1,059 Sixtieth Street, Brooklyn, one night last week, Michael Trotter of 1,707 Park Avenue was held in $3,000 bail yesterday.

TO MARK FIRST COX HOME.

Arrangements have been completed for the unveiling of a monument at Cox's Corners, at Imlaystown, N. J., to mark the site of the first homestead in America of the family of which Governor James M. Cox is a member. The Democratic Presidential nominee has been invited to speak at the ceremonies, and the Cox family committee awaits word from him to fix the date of the ceremony.

The monument is to be erected on the farm of Thomas Martin, the original Cox homestead, and the shaft has been purchased by the descendants of Colonel Thomas Jefferson Cox of Zanesville, Ohio, who died in the civil war. The monument is of bronze, 6 feet high and 3 feet wide, and chronicles the fact that "Thomas and Elizabeth Blashford Cox were among the first English settlers of the Province of New Jersey." The monument also lists the heads of the family from the seventeenth century to 1873, and mentions those who fought in the Revolution, including General James Cox, progenitor of Governor Cox.

RAID TIMES SQUARE HOTEL.

Detectives attached to Inspector William F. Boettler's staff staged a spectacular raid early yesterday morning, when forty couples were routed out of rooms in the Times Square Hotel, in West Forty-third Street. The hotel manager was arrested, charged with renting the rooms for immoral purposes, and a woman, who said she was an actress, was arrested on a vagrancy charge.

The woman said she was Dorothy Boone, 26 years old. The manager described himself as Louis Wilson, 43 years old, of 206 West Forty-third Street. A crowd of several hundred persons quickly gathered in front of the hotel to watch the raid.

POLICE BATTLE 400 ALIENS.

Four policemen of the East Fifth Street Station had a battle with about 400 aliens in Tompkins Square Park, Avenue A and Seventh Street, last night, when the policemen tried to keep the foreigners from blocking up the paths in the park.

They had arrested Peter Ogradnak of 204 Avenue B and were trying to scatter the crowd when the foreigners attacked them in an attempt to free the prisoner. Reserves were sent from the East Fifth Street Station, and with their aid the crowd was driven from the park. Seven men were arrested, charged with disorderly conduct.

Dies in Gas-Filled Room.

With jets open and his room filled with gas, Philip Gilpin, 45 years old, was found dead in bed at his home, 437 West Forty-fourth Street, yesterday morning by his brother, Victor G. Gilpin, 660 Lincoln Place, Brooklyn. The latter said his brother had been despondent of late because he had been out of work.

THREE SELECT SIZES

In limiting Van Dyck to a few select sizes, the General Cigar Co., Inc. is acting in accordance with the General Cigar Co. policy.

Our aim is to produce as uniformly perfect a cigar as possible, and this can best be accomplished when the same workmen are constantly producing the same select sizes.

In other words, we believe in turning out the very choicest cigars that can be produced in Van Dyck in a few very select sizes.

Those Little Springs

along country lanes and through forests of Bedford County often come into my mind.

As one rides along he wonders why there is so much water here and there in the road.

An English friend of mine, Dr. Jowett, has spoken to me of miracles in dry places, and of strange experiences, in which there are fountains of blessings. Do not the little springs in the ruts of the life road mean something to us.

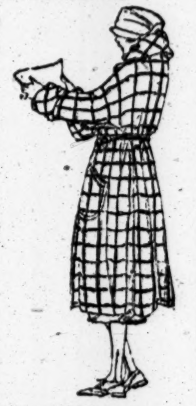
September 7, 1920.

FIRST time in many months such coats for $39.75.

For Miss 14 to 20



Only 30 of these coats, we regret to state.

Typical of London in style—severely tailored. Illustrated.

Fine woolen material is effectively cross-barred in harmonious tone—its the very kind of fabric now so fashionable in Paris and London. Blue with tan crossbars, tan with brown, or heather with a rich tone of brown.

Smart Pleated Skirts—all wool—$13.75

Skirts of all-wool two-toned material are decidedly unusual these days at such a low price, $13.75—and especially so when the skirts are so generously knife pleated. Skimping pleats are never smart.

WROUGHT iron wall appliques — Au Quatrieme.

Wrought iron wall appliques, made from the beautifully wrought branching old altar candelabra of Italy are in the form of delicate foliage and flowers. The iron has been gilded, and still has traces of dusky gold in its depths and folds.

The appliques come in pairs and are equipped with the original spikes for candles or may be wired for electricity.

AUTUMN and Winter Wraps are to be of deep-furred luxury and warmth.

The materials are soft and shimmering of surface and as luxurious to the touch as wool and silk can be made. The furs—and there is lavish fur trimming—are of the loveliest; deep in color and fine of pelt.

Fortuna cloth, evora cloth, marvella, peachbloom and exquisite silk and wool duvetyn, are the most-used materials among the finer wraps.

A wrap of pheasant brown marvella cloth has a great circular collar and deep cuffs of Hudson seal (dyed muskrat). This wrap features the wide sleeves set in low on the arm and gathered a bit where they join coat. This is a very smart fashion note that many of the better wraps feature. Price, $350.

Marvella cloth in saddle brown fashions another coat with embroidered panels down the back, and lavishly trimmed with a deep pointed collar of skunk and very wide cuffs of skunk. Price, $475.

Black duvetyn, embroidered in black—so many of the newest wraps feature these touches of self embroidery—has a great collar of black wolf, as fine as lynx, and cuffs to match.

Second Floor, Old Building

Illustrated is one frilled model that is becoming to so many women. The soft jabot arrangement in the front is one of the modes that Paris favors most at the moment. It lends a touch of softness and distinction to the most severely tailored suit. The hand-made filet lace used to trim this blouse is fine and of a good design.
